CATECHESIS Q & A: DEEPENING OUR KNOWLEDGE

WHAT IS CATHOLIC EDUCATION?

By Mark Brumley (President of Ignatius Press)

Submitted by Ruben Beltran, Confirmation Program Coordinator

The Second Vatican Council's Gravissimum Educationis (Declaration on Christian Education) insists that "a true education aims at the formation of the human person in the pursuit of his ultimate end and of the good of the societies of which he is a member and in whose obligations as an adult he will share." The same document speaks of helping young people "to develop harmoniously their physical, moral, and intellectual endowments," and it insists they get it.

The Vatican's Congregation for Catholic Education defines a school as "a place of integral formation by means of a systematic and critical assimilation of culture." Integral means all the pieces are there and they fit together. Formation means education concerns the kind of person one becomes, not just what one knows. In other words, it concerns intellectual and moral knowledge but also virtues—habits of acting for the true, the good, and the beautiful. Integral formation also includes spiritual formation. The integral formation of the human person, which is the purpose of education, includes the development of all the human faculties of the students, together with preparation for professional life, formation of ethical and social awareness, and religious education."

In short, this document speaks of liberal education; that is, the education of the "free man," the person who knows his mind and exercises virtue; someone who seeks the true, the good, and the beautiful in his own pursuit of happiness and in his contribution to that of others. The Church presupposes all of that when she speaks of Catholic or Christian education.

The proper function of Catholic education involves evangelization and discipleship training for life. As the "Declaration on Catholic Education" states: "A Christian education...has as its principal purpose this goal: that the baptized become ever more aware of the gift of faith they have received and that they learn how to worship God, especially in liturgical action, and be conformed in their personal lives. Also, that they develop in the fullness of Christ and strive for the growth of the Mystical Body; that they are aware of their calling and learn not only how to bear witness to the hope that is in them, but also how to help in the Christian formation of the world."

Notice that the principal purpose of Catholic education is to form disciples—people who know and follow Christ and make Him known. Not excellence in education, as important as that is; not equipping students to have successful careers, however valuable that may be. But forming disciples. Do our students know Jesus, follow Him and share Him with others? In our zeal for academic excellence, do we obscure or minimize the evangelical purpose of our schools? How many leaders of Catholic schools can honestly say their institutions are principally about forming educated disciples? The "education part" of Catholic education must keep the "Catholic part" honest when it comes to the formation of the whole person, including the intellectual dimension. This helps Catholic education avoid becoming a glorified Bible study or apologetics program. When that happens, the "Catholic part" of Catholic education suffers, too. Vital dimensions of the student's life are not fully developed in light of the Gospel because they're not developed or adequately developed. The minds and wills God gave young people to exercise and grow are stunted.

But the "Catholic part" of Catholic education must keep the "education part" honest, too. Otherwise, Catholic schools may achieve academic excellence but at the expense of forming disciples. Ironically, such education is less than full academic excellence, for it has shaped the student without regard for his ultimate end—union with God. Catholic education must form the whole person according to intellectual, moral and physical excellence. But all of that must be ordered to the formation of genuine disciples of Jesus—people who know Him, love Him and serve Him.

That's what makes Catholic Education Catholic.

CATHOLIC SCHOOLS

ST. THERESE
CARMELITE SCHOOL ...
ENROLL NOW!
Become A Saint!

Dear St. Therese Parishioners,

With the collaborative help of our Provincial, Fr. Stephen Watson, the Carmelite fathers and I continue to be deeply committed to excellence in Catholic education. Building on this foundation and the previous success enjoyed by St. Therese School, together we will be undertaking some positive steps in the upcoming 2015-16 academic year. We promise to foster Catholic identity, incorporate Carmelite spirituality, and enhance our curriculum for the benefit of our students and their families.

As pastor and spiritual leader of St. Therese Church and School, I am excited to share the following news with you: We are blessed to be able to appoint one of our Fathers as chaplain of the school. Fr. Leonel Varela will oversee our faith formation and, with his leadership, he will be a huge asset to all of our students, teachers, and their families. Also, we are pleased to announce that our Carmelite Sisters of the Most Sacred Heart of Los Angeles will be working together with the Carmelite Friars in our children's religious education. Their contribution and presence to our school will be a wonderful addition to our exciting new vision!

In addition, we will be adding components to our curriculum to embrace what is known as a Classical Model of Catholic Education. This time-honored model integrates all of our subjects seamlessly with the Catholic Faith. It will enable all of our children to think logically and speak persuasively and will prepare them for whatever their future holds. I assure you that we will continue to honor our current curriculum. Many of our parish families have been requesting Classical Components/Electives to our current curriculum. This has been successfully done at other schools within the Archdiocese.

And while we have great affection and gratitude for the work of our current principal, Mrs. Carmela Lovano, we have hired a new principal, Mrs. Alma Cornejo, who will help us attain the goals and changes of the new vision. Our new school principal is a woman with a strong faith, committed to Carmelite spirituality, and brings with her decades of experience in classical curriculum and Catholic education and administration. The Carmelite Fathers are confident that our teamwork with Mrs. Cornejo during this transition will be respectful but with deliberate haste to bolster our already-existing curriculum.

Good things are coming! St. Therese School will continue to grow in excellence! Understandably many of you have questions. Answers are also coming. I have invited Mrs. Cornejo to attend our Spring Parent Meeting on May 18, 2015. However, I would also encourage you to email Mrs. Cornejo directly with any particular questions you may have (stsprincipalcornejo@gmail.com). In light of these upcoming changes, we would like to give our school families time to discern and pray about your return to St. Therese School. Therefore, we will extend the reenrollment date until after the Spring Parent Meeting on May 18, 2015.

I ask for your prayers and patience in this time of transition. I feel hopeful and encouraged with this wonderful work that we have undertaken. Mrs. Lovano, Mrs. Cornejo, and I are a united force in making this transition successful for the sake of our children. With God's grace, we will work together to prepare our children for God's Kingdom and for God's greater glory.

God bless you,
—Fr. Philip Sullivan, OCD, Pastor

Please Welcome St. Therese's New School Principal, Alma Cornejo!

We would like to welcome our new school principal, Alma Cornejo, who will begin her assignment for the 2015-2016 school year. If you would like to welcome her or ask her any questions, please feel free to send an email to: stsprincipalcornejo@gmail.com. We also want to take this opportunity to thank our current principal, Carmela Lovano, for her many years of service and dedication to St. Therese School.

Mrs. Cornejo has a broad academic background, with over twenty years of teaching experience in both public and private Catholic schools, as well as in home-schooling. In the last fourteen years she has taught Algebra I, Algebra II, Latin, Apologetics, and Religion at a private Catholic school. She also served on the administration of that school for eight years, overseeing student discipline and campus safety and helping to supervise and mentor a staff of thirty. She authored both their Parent and the Student handbooks. Under Mrs. Cornejo's leadership as head of the WASC committee in 2008, the school received an unprecedented six-year term from both WCEA and WASC for its initial accreditation. In 2014, she again steered the committee, resulting in another six-year term of accreditation. She is bilingual and has taught English as a Second Language and Mathematics in LAUSD.

She holds an A.A. in Mathematics, a B.S. in Human Development and an M.A. in Psychology, with an emphasis on Marriage and Family Therapy. She also holds a PPS credential and an M.A. in School Counseling. She has worked as a marriage and family therapist with Stillpoint Resources for five years.

Mrs. Cornejo grew up in the San Fernando Valley, the oldest of five children. She is a devoted wife and the mother of five children, ages eleven to thirty. With her abundant experience and her passion for excellence in Catholic education, Mrs. Cornejo is a valuable addition to St. Therese School.

WHAT IS THE CLASSICAL APPROACH TO EDUCATION?

"It is the ability to think that is our goal in a classical curriculum; we want our children to acquire the art of learning. It is not the number of facts they are acquainted with that measure the educational success, but what they are able to do with the facts: whether they are able to make distinctions, to follow an argument, to make reasonable deductions from the facts, and finally, to have the right judgment about the way things are."

— Laura Berquist (Designing Your Own Classical Curriculum)

The Basics of Classical Education

A Classical Education:

- Teaches the Child How to Think
- Follows the Child's Natural Stages of Learning
- Takes Account of the Child's Individual Needs
- Supports the Spiritual Formation of the Child
- Allows the Parents to Play an Integral Role

A Classical Education Creates:

- Learners who have the knowledge and ability to perform independent research.
- Students who are effective Communicators
- Students who are able to read and comprehend diverse written materials.
- Students who demonstrate rhetorical and analytical skills in their written work.
- Students who express themselves with confidence in written communication.
- Independent Thinkers
- Students who are able to analyze information, and form and explain their own opinions

A classical education will give our children the beginning of the education every educated person in Western Civilization once received, a classical or liberal arts education. The idea is to educate the students so that they develops all the powers of their souls, and their minds are formed, strengthened, and developed. The end of this educational process is wisdom. Man desires by nature to know, and that means we want to have not only the facts, but the reasons for the facts. We want to think about the most noble things, the most interesting in themselves.

Therefore, the goal of education is to teach children how to think; to help them learn the art of learning. If children learn how to learn, they will be to master any subject. Thinking can be done well or badly, but one can be taught to do it well. In large measure, the role of the teacher of grade and high school children is this: teaching children to think well. It begins in wonder and aims at wisdom.

The tools of learning, through which children learn the art of learning, are acquired by concentrating, at each stage of intellectual formation, on the areas of development that are appropriate to that stage in the child's intellectual and spiritual development. Further, all we do will be faithful to the doctrine and teaching of the Catholic Church, which shall enlighten and inform all the areas of the curriculum.

PRESENTATION CHAPEL OF PERPETUAL ADORATION

"He who receives Communion is made holy and Divinized in soul and body in the same way that water, set over a fire, becomes boiling... Communion works like yeast that has been mixed into dough so that it leavens the whole mass. Just as by melting two candles together you get one piece of wax, so one who receives the Flesh and Blood of Jesus is fused together with Him by this Communion, and the soul finds that he is in Christ and Christ is in him." --St. Cyril of Alexandria
