35	I'd like schools to revert to textbook learning so they're not on the chromebooks as much. It will help them read more & challenge them. The computers allow access to information, so they dont have to work hard or put in effort to validate information. Also, less screen time. Computers serve a purpose because it is less weight & have more data; there should be a balance. Teachers should be more patient with children who may take longer to understand teachings/lessons. Thanks	1/22/2026 9:13 AM

77	I feel that reading is a big part of life. I feel if so whatever class/grade has the highest reading level should be allowed to take a trip to whatever the school can found with some of the parents help. im a 90s mom and some of these children can not read nor tell time nor know the value of money. I know its our job to teach our children but at sometime their single mothers with no village. And also I feel if we should get ride of laptops, it takes away from learning how to spell. :(1/16/2026 10:10 AM

115	Lots of fundraisers are being done at the school with no proper communication with where that money is going towards. The last flyer said for the adults. What adults? I think some of these fundraiser should be for the kids as well. Fundraising for a fun event or grade level fun day with parents or something like that. I'm not saying cut off completely the fundraisers either. I'm just saying use that money for everything not just incentives for teachers.	1/14/2026 9:13 PM
116	Letting us know that we can come in use the computer printer help look for jobs and school. Most parents dont know that's it help for them to be better	1/14/2026 5:23 PM
