Describe how the LEA will engage with stakeholders during the design and development of the district application. Include the types and number of stakeholders that will be engaged and the method of engagement.

The Local Education Agency (LEA) holds quarterly stakeholder meetings at both the school and district levels to ensure comprehensive engagement and decision-making. These meetings provide a platform for discussing various aspects of school operations and performance. To facilitate informed discussions, the Director of Instruction develops multiple surveys throughout the year, which are distributed to all stakeholders. These surveys gather essential information on school needs, school climate, stakeholder feedback, and the allocation and utilization of funds at each school. This systematic approach ensures that stakeholders are well-informed about the financial decisions and the overall environment within the schools.

During the third-quarter meeting, a critical review of the most recent survey is conducted. Stakeholders, including educators, parents, school leaders, community members, SAC members, local government representatives and district officials, analyze the collected data to identify trends, areas of concern, and potential improvements. This analysis plays a pivotal role in determining how federal dollars can be strategically allocated to support student learning effectively. By understanding the specific needs and priorities highlighted in the survey, the LEA can make datadriven decisions that enhance educational outcomes and address any gaps in resources or support.

Additionally, student voices are integral to this process. Surveys are also administered to students to gauge their interest in various programs and identify which opportunities they would like to see offered at the school level. This feedback is essential for understanding which programs and identify which opportunities they would like to see offered at the school level. This feedback is essential for understanding which programs and identify which opportunities they would like to see offered at the school level. This feedback is essential for understanding which programs are aligned with student preferences and needs, fostering a more engaging and supportive learning environment. This holistic approach to stakeholder engagement, data analysis, and resource allocation underscores the LEA's commitment to continuous improvement and responsive education.

Area of Focus 1: Well-Rounded Educational Opportunities

Describe the program objectives and intended outcomes for activities under this Area of Focus, if applicable During the academic year of 2024-2025, the Taylor County School District aims to support schools in advancing and executing supplementary curricular programs in specialized fields such as Career and Technical Education (CTE), Science, and Social Studies. Analysis of the 2023-2024 FAST progress monitoring scores indicates an imperative for enhancement within Taylor County. While the Taylor County School District has consistently allocated funds for enrichment programs at elementary schools, featuring certified instructors in disciplines like music, art, and drama, additional resources are required to enrich and bolster the holistic development of students. The expected outcomes include evaluating the success of the Well Rounded Education Opportunities initiatives by comparing district grade percentages provided by the Florida Department of Education between 2023-2024 and 2024-2025 in the domains of Social Studies and Science, alongside assessing the increase in industry certifications obtained from 2023-24 to 2024-25. The 23-24 FAST PM 3 data indicates the students who have previoulsy scored a level 3, 4 or 5 are losing ground compared to their peers. By adding the additional after school enrichment clubs, tied to the Florida Standards, should allow us to see an increase in the number of students who maintain a level 3, 4 or 5 or increase to that level of achievement. B. Describe how the LEA will periodically evaluate the effectiveness of the activities carried out under this Area of Focus based on objectives and outcomes, if applicable. The LEA distributes funding to school sites based on the number of K12 students. The school sites are tasked with conducting annual evaluations of their school improvement plans and comprehensive needs assessment to identify their requirements for the upcoming year. After developing and submitting their plans to the LEA, program implementation commences. Two assessment tools are utilized to gauge program effectiveness: pre and post-program student data and a school-level grant review conducted by the school leadership. For the school-level grant review, schools need to outline their implemented initiatives, outcomes, and whether they intend to continue these activities in the following school year. In most recent FAST progress monitoring data, the data has indicated the students who previously been at a level 4 or 5 are beginning to decline. Having enrichment opportunities will allow the students to develop a love of learning and motivate them to pursue their passions. These activities provide children with new and exciting experiences, allowing them to grow and develop in many areas, and unleash their full potential. The purpose of enrichment activities is to provide extended learning opportunities and challenges to students who have already mastered, or can quickly master, the basic curriculum. No Title IV, Part A funds will be used to address this Area of Focus. If this box is checked then the LEA does not need to complete the next question or the budget section for this Area of Focus. C. Describe the funded activities that will be implemented to address Area of Focus 1. Extra-curricular STEM events and after-school enrichment group activities. Introduction, Discussions & Activities

Introduction

The American alligator is an amphibious reptile that spends all of its time in and around swamps and rivers. Alligators and crocodiles are descendants from reptiles that lived between 225 and 65 million years ago.

The alligator has been a target for hunters for many years because of its leather skin that can be made into shoes, handbags, and other items. Hunting has greatly reduced alligator populations in the past. In 1969, the American alligator was placed under federal protection, and its numbers have since increased. In 1987, the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service declared the American alligator to be out of danger.

Pre-Trip Discussion

Students should discuss the vocabulary needed in order to successfully identify the basic needs of plants and animals. Talk about different plants and animals that can be found in school and at home. Then, discuss what types of plants and animals the students expect to see at Wild Adventures.

Pre-Trip Activity

Students will identify the basic needs of plants and animals. (See attached)

Post-Trip Discussion

Students will discuss how the basic needs of the alligators at Alligator Alley are being met.

Post-Trip Activity

Students will identify the basic needs of animals and what those needs are specifically for the American alligator. (See attached)

Park Activity

Teacher Instructions:

Students will study the alligators in Discovery Outpost and take notes on what makes them a consumer and information about their natural habitat. They will then create a food web to demonstrate the flow of energy in the alligator's ecosystem.

Hello, junior zoologist! Today you have an important assignment: alligator research! As you walk around Discovery Outpost, head over to Alligator Alley to help Wild Adventures decide where the American alligator belongs on the food chain. Take notes on important information like what they eat and their natural habitat. While you are conducting your research, think about what would happen if the American alligator suddenly disappeared. How would this affect the flow of energy?

Now that you understand a little more about the American alligator, draw a food web using what you know about the alligator and its habitat to demonstrate the flow of energy throughout an ecosystem. Remember to include a producer, consumer, and decomposer.

Post-Trip Activity

Teacher Instructions:

Students will take the information gathered from Wild Adventures and write an informative essay about what would happen if the American alligator were to disappear from its ecosystem.

The American Alligator

Now that you have had a chance to meet an American alligator face-to-face, think about all of the information you were able to collect. You have learned about its habitat, diet, and role in the ecosystem, but what would happen if the American alligator were to disappear? How would this affect the flow of energy in the ecosystem? Write an informative essay about what would happen if the American alligator disappeared. Be sure to include facts about the alligator's natural habitat, its diet, and its role in the ecosystem.

Pre-Trip Information

Wild Adventures is now home to over 100 American alligators which can be seen in Alligator Alley at the new Discovery Outpost.

Discovery Outpost is Wild Adventures' snappiest adventure with 3 acres of kid-friendly rides, a 21-foot Gator Bridge, and the opportunity to feed and even hold an alligator!

Pre-Trip Preparation

In preparation for Alligator Alley, students should explore reptiles, living and nonliving organisms, animal classification, the basic needs of alligators and their life cycle, their habitats, and the flow of energy within an ecosystem.

Introduction, Discussions & Activities

Introduction

The American alligator is an amphibious reptile that spends all of its time in and around swamps and rivers. Alligators and crocodiles are descendants from reptiles that lived between 225 and 65 million years ago.

The alligator has been a target for hunters for many years because of its leather skin that can be made into shoes, handbags, and other items. Hunting has greatly reduced alligator populations in the past. In 1969, the American alligator was placed under federal protection, and its numbers have since increased. In 1987, the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service declared the American alligator to be out of danger.

Vocabulary

Pre-Trip Discussion

Students should discuss the vocabulary needed in order to successfully classify living and nonliving things. Talk about different living and nonliving things that can be found at school and at home. Then, discuss what types of living and nonliving things the students expect to see at Wild Adventures.

Pre-Trip Activity

Students will walk around the school/playground and identify living and nonliving things found on their walk.

Post-Trip Discussion

Students will discuss the features of the alligators that were observed and what attributes classify them as a living organism.

Post-Trip Activity

Students will compare and contrast features of alligators to those of common household pets.
