Monday Why Crickets Chirp Pather Than Sing: Myth At one time, crickets had the most beautiful voices in the entire forest. Animals from all around often stopped what they were doing just to hear them sing. One day, a group of crickets heard a frog making noise in a pond. "Ribbit," the frog said. He became as quiet as a mouse when the crickets laughed at the poor frog. "You sound terrible. We sound better than any other animals in the forest," the crickets said to the frog. The frog was upset and hopped away. Owl was the wisest animal in the forest. The frog went to Owl and told him everything that happened. Owl banned the crickets from ever singing again. They were told that from now on, they could only chirp.

The King and the Box: Folktale Long ago, there was a king, and he was never satisfied with anything that he had. His storehouse had more grain than any other king. Inside of his castle was more money than what anyone else had. One day, a trickster came to town. He asked to speak to the king. "I have a prized jewel far greater than anything in your kingdom in this box," said the mysterious man. Not satisfied with what he already had, the king deeply wanted whatever was inside of the box. So, the king agreed to pay all of the money he had to just have it. "That is not enough. Give me your grains too. This jewel is worth far more," said the mysterious man. Without looking into the box first, the king emptied out his storehouse and money room. Once the man gathered all of the king's riches and hid, he sent the box with a messenger to the king. To his surprise, the king saw that the box was empty.
