Natalie and Megan prepare backstage during the Miss BHS Pageant.

Paul, we have just one word for that look . . . WOW!

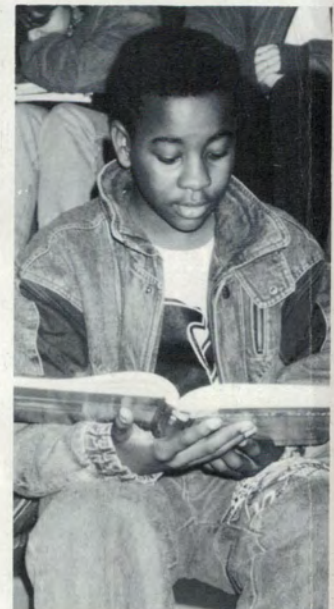

Doesn't our band, along with the majorettes and the dance line, look razmatazz?!

Reverend Scottie delivers his annual blessing over the school on the first day of classes.

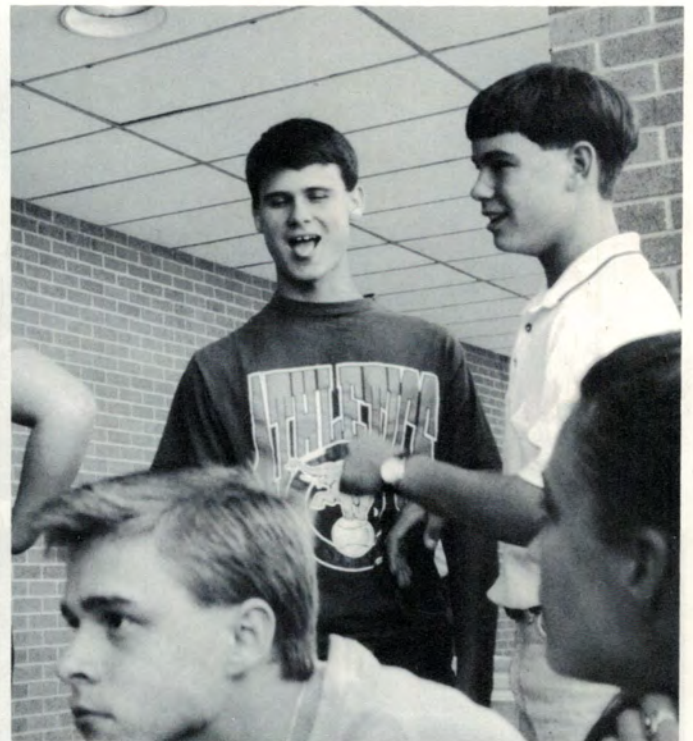

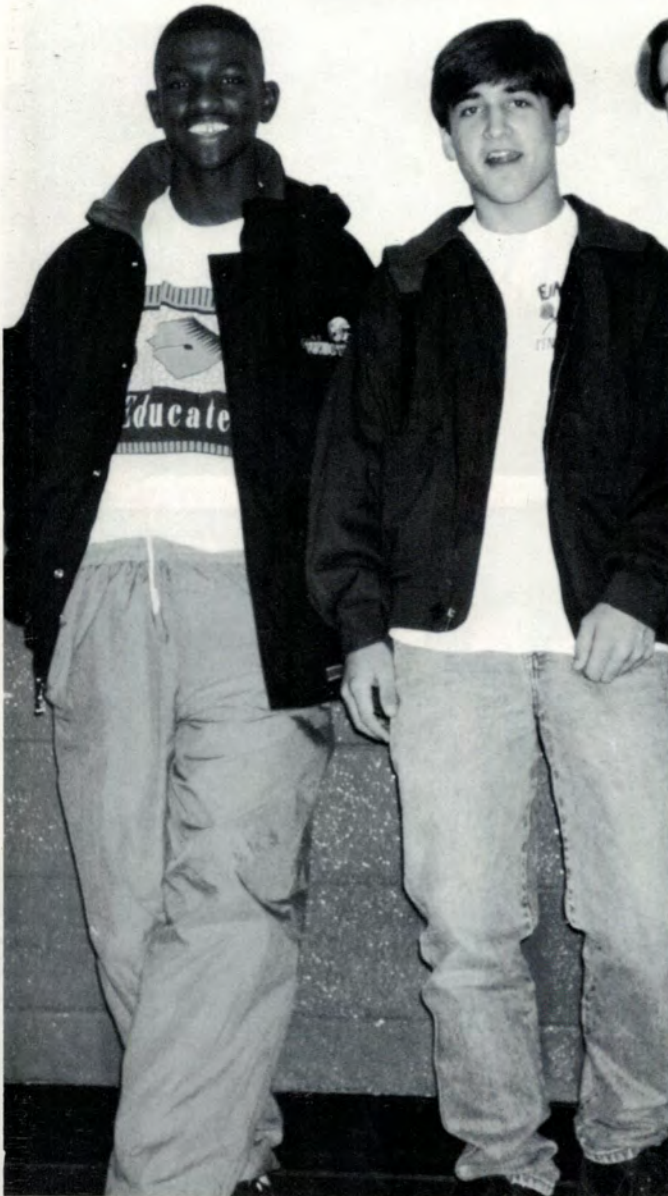

We know these senior girls look very sweet and harmless in this picture, but you ought to see them on the weekends!

Like this young man, all Bunkie High students study their little hearts out.

We wonder if, instead of being at school, they'd rather be at the beach? Hot sun, good-looking guys, warm sand, good-looking guys, big waves, good-looking guys ...

Oh, Dwaine, you've only been in high school a couple of months. You can't hate it this much already. Well, the freshman year is pretty rough, but it gets better!

Attention all teachers: PDA! PDA! PDA! (And, Ben, don't expect to be able to use that mistletoe in your hand as an excuse.)

And after y'all finish baking this pie, who's going to be unlucky enough to have to taste the first slice?

It's simply amazing what some people will do to get into a yearbook picture. Some people don't even seem to mind crushing a fellow classmate against a brick wall. Imagine how they act to get into a concert!

Notice how well behaved the sophomores are for their picture. (No doubt they were crushed against a wall or two last year.)

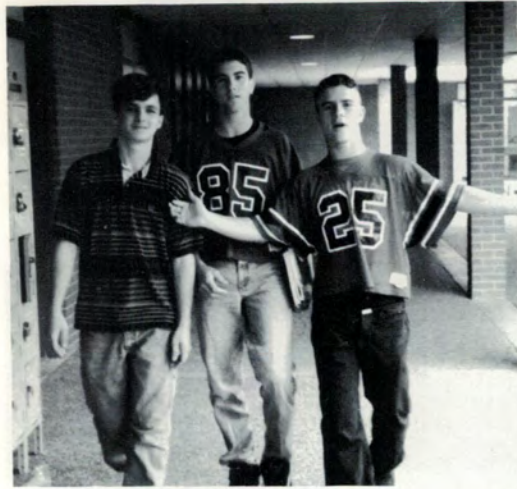

Occasionally, a student tries to get away from the noise and goes into the library to read at recess. Will wonders never cease!

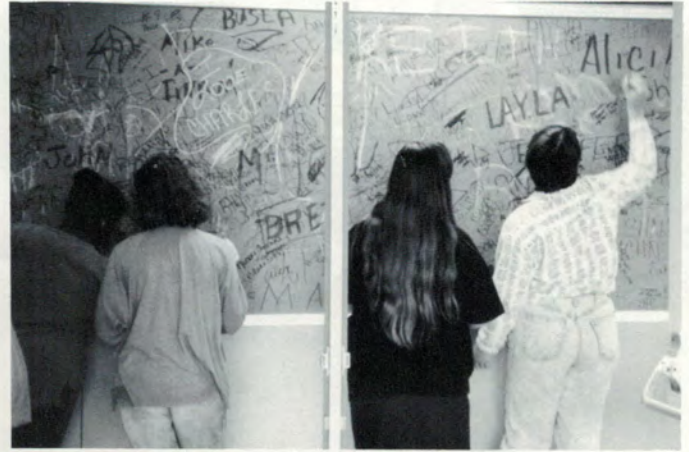

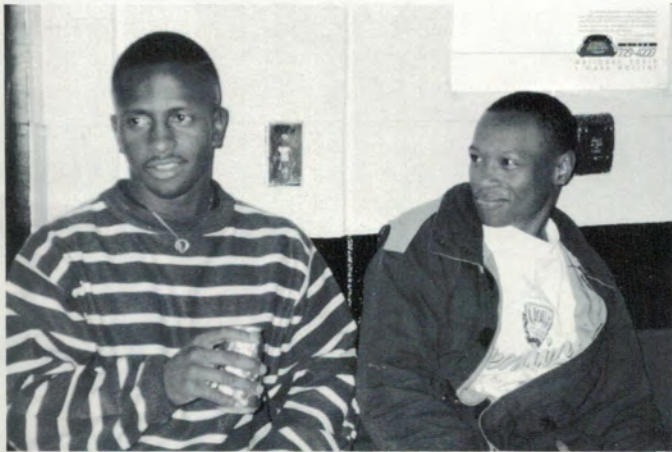

Some normal — and not so normal — scenes of life on the BHS campus.

After posing with the Homecoming Court for this picture, the senior football players led the Panthers to a Homecoming victory, defeating the Grant Cougars 41-6.

Leslie and Heather do a little spring cleaning in the chemistry lab.

Jenny, Tayna, Aimee, and Courtney are all dolled up for the 19th Annual FFA Christmas Dance.

Amie staples Reginald to the bulletin board as part of the display. WHAT?!?

Watch Dana's right hook, Michael! She might break your nose.

CHRIS

Knit H

"But, Momma, I'm really sick and I REALLY need to check out, so talk to Mrs. Kathy and tell her it's okay for me to drive my truck home."

Why are Spacish and Lachanda smiling so much? Because they aren't working on the yearbook this year, that's why! They know from last year how much work it is.

"Oooh, I've got some hot gossip! Listen to what I heard . . ."

"Yep, we LOVE this place!"

CHRIS SAMPSON: By day, just your average high school student; but by night, leader of The Knit Hat Squad.

Always there to help Mrs. Sheila, Nicole gets Karen and Aimee to help her with the decorations for the Miss BHS Pageant.

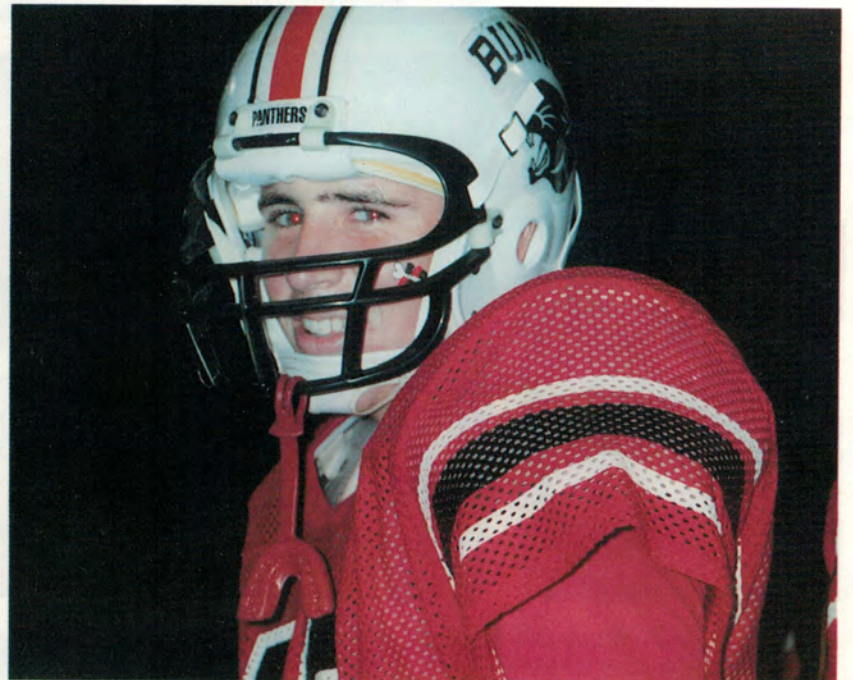

Seniors Renee and Catrina know that after this school year, life will never be the same again. Good friends will go their separate ways to begin the rest of their lives, some of them not to be heard from again for many years.

SPIRIT WEEK is full of excitement with Football Follies, Pep Rallies, Dress-Up Days, Homecoming Parades, and Class Floats.

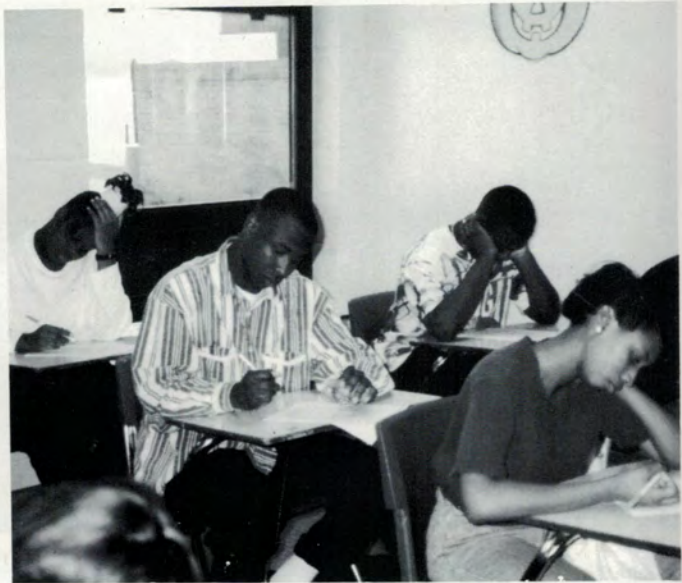

FOOTBALL FEVER!!

"Whew! Mrs. Doucet's punctuation tests can be murder, but they're not too bad if you study."

This is Tamiko Brown, the editor of the Senior Section of the yearbook. Tamiko is engrossed in her work — very serious business.

These students look like pretty rough characters, but they're really good kids. For instance, here they're working on the FFA Blood Drive.

Has anyone ever seen Evonda when she wasn't smiling? Such a happy student!

Blood donors Robin Taylor and Shauna Mayeux don't seem to mind giving blood. On second thought, Robin looks a little worried.

Anne helps to get the gym ready for the FFA Christmas Dance by sweeping away Christmas tree needles.

Jenny and Beth perform in UP THE DOWN STAIRCASE, the first dramatic production at BHS in several years.

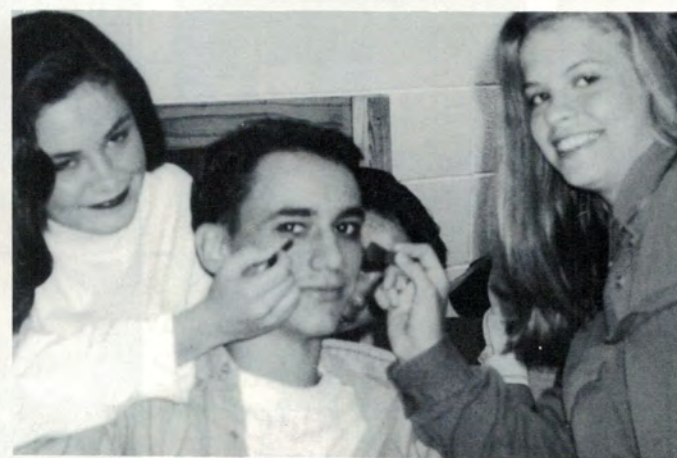

Melissa Laborde works on the yearbook, also known as BUNAVOLA, which got its name by taking the first three letters from the words BUNKIE and AVOYELLES and then adding the abbreviation for LOUISIANA.

Shawn Mitchell and Trinity Adams don't look too impressed with Natalie Belko's antics. By the way, where's the teach?

Anyone can tell that Paul Hood is really deep in thought over the questions asked at the Knowledge Master Open.

Jamie Bordelon and Joshua and Travis O'Brien build the set for UP THE DOWN STAIRCASE on the little stage in the cafeteria.

Adam Couvillion gets made up by some of the girls in speech class in preparation for his acting debut.

Below: some juniors; Right: some seniors; Far Right: some juniors and seniors mixed together.

At Beta Convention in Baton Rouge, these girls were so good that (if you look closely you can see them) halos began to form around their heads. And if you believe that . . .

In his hotel room at the Ramada Inn during Beta Convention, James Bordelon performed his impression of Elvis singing "Heartbreak Hotel."

Mr. Roy poses with Kim Fields, who was Tootie from the television series FACTS OF LIFE, as she stopped by school in October on the campaign trail for her cousin.

Natalie Baker, Miss Avoyelles Parish 1993, and Terri Descant, Miss Avoyelles Parish 1992 — of course Bunkie High students always win this title; Bunkie High girls are the prettiest in the parish.

Melanie Mayeux is crowned Miss Bunkie High School 1992-93 by her sister Mitzi, who was Miss Bunkie High School 1991-92.

SENIOR GOODBYE by Fran Jeansonne

Twinkle, twinkle little star,
 I've wished on you from near and far.
 Only one wish I've asked from you to me —
 Please rush along the year 1993.

In the fall of '89 when we entered the gate,
 Little did we know the lasting friendships we'd make.
 We were scared out of our wits of the strange, new place,
 As I'm sure you could tell by the looks on our face.

After surviving the painful seniors' hazing,
 We kept our freshman spirit blazing.
 When we were sophomores, we still had more to grow.
 As juniors we had one more year to go.

Then we were seniors — we were at the top.
 Our excitement grew and then began to stop.
 Thinking about the good times we've had
 Made us laugh, but then made us sad.

No more research papers, math tests, and such —
 Now that it's over, I realize I'll miss them much.
 Through LaPrairie, Dupont, and Welch we've grown.
 Now it's time to travel this road alone.

For thirteen years I've waited for this day,
 And now it's finally the 20th of May.
 I remember the great memories I've shared with many a friend,
 Now regret that today they must end.

So now it's graduation, and the time has come.
 We promise to be loyal friends to everyone.
 Around Bunkie High our fondest memories will center,
 For they prepared us for the real world we must now enter.

The GIRLS' and BOYS' STATE REPRESENTATIVES are (sitting) Beth Dufour, Sandy Ducote, Cherie Brouillette, Abby Turner, Jenny Smith, Jenny Blackledge, Nicole Barrere, (standing) Jim Mixon, Paul Hood, Louis Coco, Jeremy Lemoine, Jared Ducote, and Ben Callahan.

Shay checks over Mrs. LaPrairie's killer final; after all, an "A" would give her a 4.0 in English IV.

James is still in shock from having seen Elvis land in a UFO on the Hessmer highway.

Queen Amy I gets carried into school by Princess Peon Cherie I and Princess Peon Cherie II.

John is ecstatic because Madeline has finally agreed to go on a date with him. The date is set for April 31 ... but aren't their only 30 days in April?

Amy and Christy take a nap after studying all night for finals. Yeah, Right!

Guess it's safe to say that they're having a good time at the Sadie Hawkins Dance '93. We think a lot of people did. That was one wild party!

These senior studmen show the rest of their English IV class how to act like mature, self-respecting, responsible, industrious students.

Just hanging around and reminiscing about your high school years is a good thing to pass the time while waiting for GRADUATION DAY!

Is this our beloved, sexy, intelligent, mature Chris Humphrey a.k.a. The Scarecrow?

Although Diego won all sorts of awards at the Academic Awards Ceremony, he did not know the answer to Mr. Dupont's $64 question.

If Travis will just hit the nail on the head, Mr. Graser won't ever have to know that y'all broke it.

Just a sample of Bunkie High's
FABULOUS SENIOR STUDMEN! NOT!!!

It looks like Rebecca won the Greasy Pig
 Contest at the Couchon de Lait in Mansura.

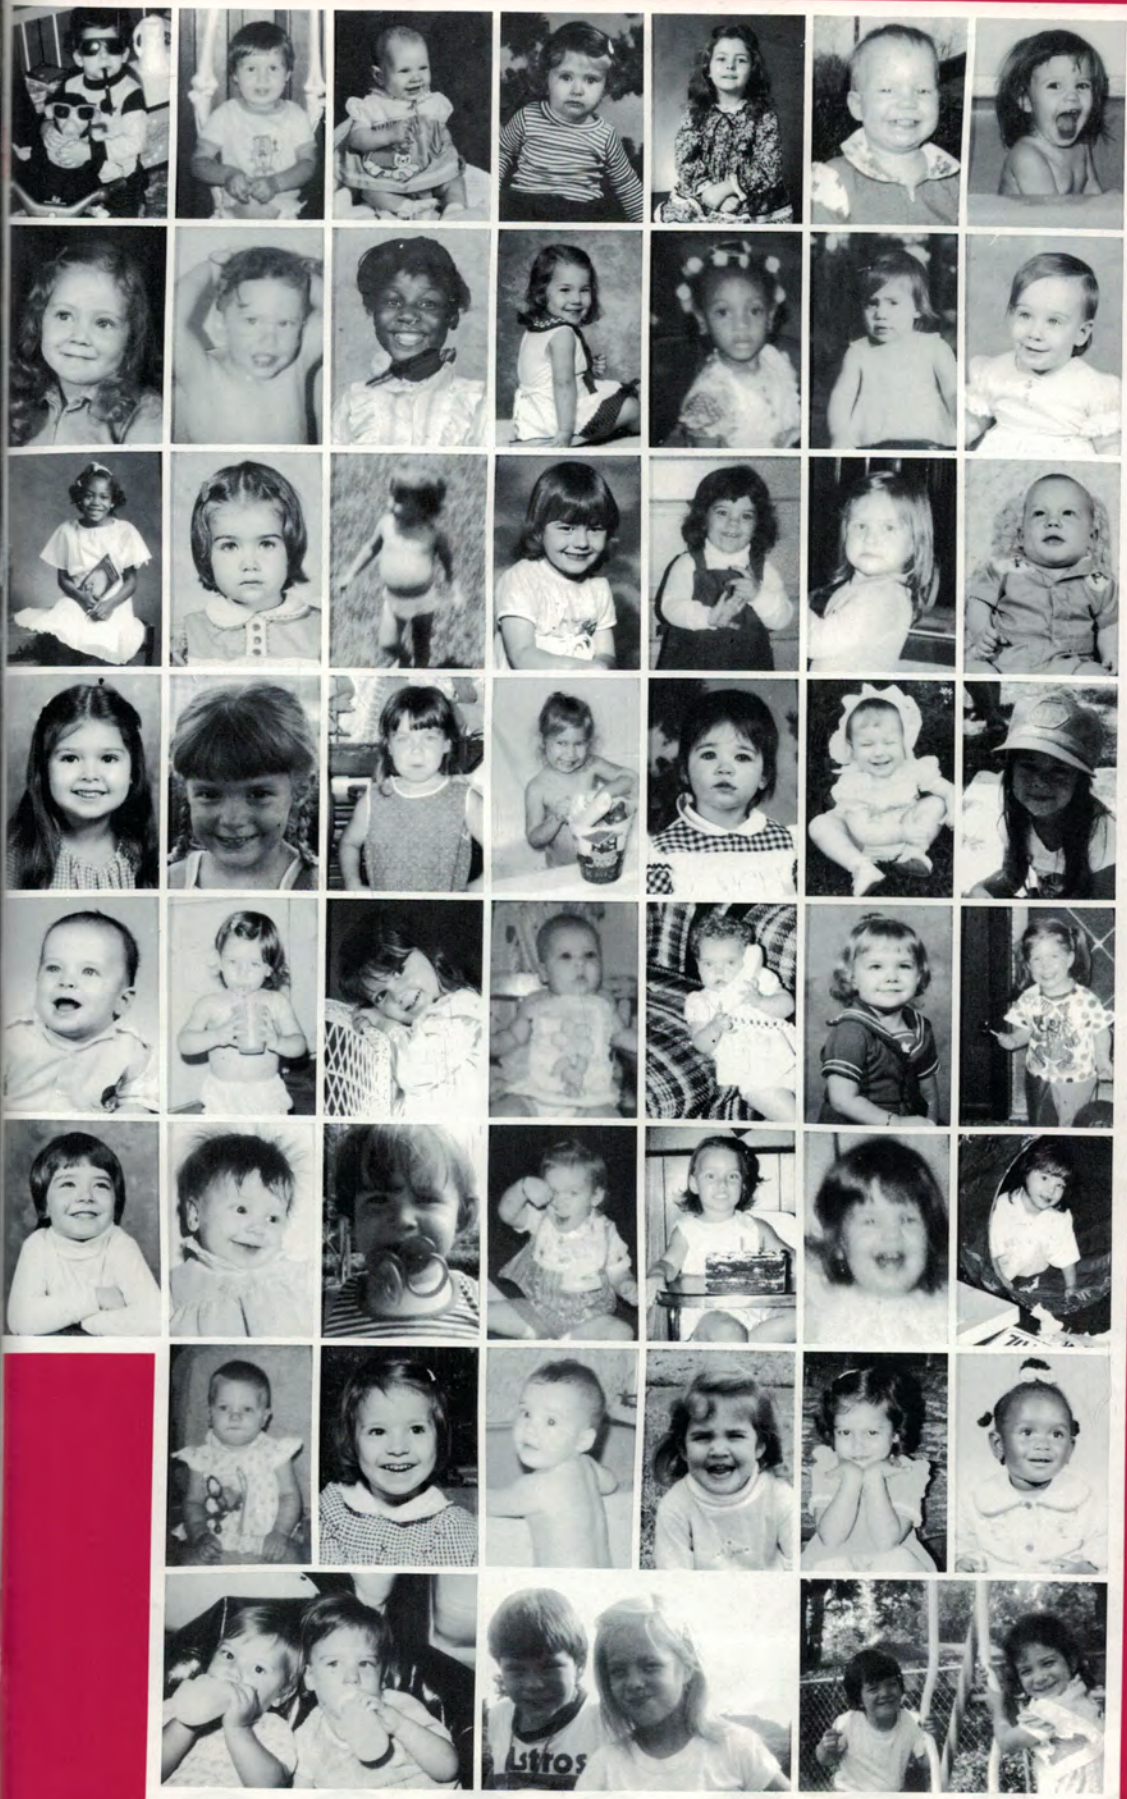

The senior boys have captured the senior girls. IT'S ABOUT TIME!

What's on your mind, Mark? Could it be
 April, or is it the month after March?

The Chicago dude decides to chill just a
 "lil" during an especially trying class.

During the production of UP THE DOWN STAIRCASE, Adam Couvillion played a potential dropout; Nicole Barrere played a friend of the new teacher, effectively portrayed by Jenny Smith; and Jenny Blackledge was a suicidal high school student.

Dorothy (Brigitte Rozas) oils the Tin Man (David Jeansonne) before they head down the Yellow Brick Road during the Drama Club's musical production of THE WIZARD OF OZ.

The very talented Patrick Hayes, who is not even in the Drama Club, contributed his time and expertise by serving as pianist for the musical.

It looks like some of these munchkins are out of step. Get with it, Edward and Joshua!

The Wizard, to the audience's surprise, was portrayed by Elizabeth Dufour. But to the audience's dismay, there was NO WITCH! Personally, we missed not having Toto in the play.

The SADD group had its slogan painted on this sign and then placed the sign in front of a wrecked car as a warning to drivers.

To reinforce the fact that every 23 minutes a teenager dies as a result of drunk driving, the SADD Club enacted the Grim Reaper Program.

The Students Against Drunk Driving, SADD, held an anti-drug rally with singing, dancing, and speeches to remind students of the hazards of using drugs and alcohol.

At the anti-drug rally, America's Pride provided entertainment and an important message.

PARTY TIME!

Only juniors were allowed to decorate for the prom this year. It looks like they could use a little help right about now, though.

More devoted juniors at work on the big event. Some gave all; all gave some.

Becky and Ned just got hitched at the Sadie Hawkins Dance, but we doubt they're heading to the Bahamas for their honeymoon.

After all the hard work, the gym looked great, but everyone was too tired to party. RIGHT!

Sadie Hawkins turned out to be a pretty hot event this year. Just about everyone passed a good time, especially Jason and Candra.

A new use for toilet paper: stuffing it into chicken wire to hide the lobby of the gym. It looks good, but it's SO MUCH WORK!

These couples take a break from the dancing to rest their aching feet, or is this just an excuse to spend a little quality time together?

Oh those girls do love to line dance. Of course, these girls were personally taught the Achy Breaky by Billy Ray Cyrus! Strut it, girls!

The picture-perfect background for An Enchanted Evening, the theme of this year's Junior-Senior Prom. The colors were red and black.

April and Mark — April's hunka, hunka burnin' love — sho' do look spiffy tonight.

Jessica and Melissa, like most promettes (a female who attends the prom), wore red dresses to match the background and the red roses.

Mrs. Suzette doesn't look at all sure about the gossamer ceiling, but it held up just fine and looked beautiful.
