Harassment, Intimidation and Bullying Policy Statement

The North Wildwood School District prohibits acts of harassment, intimidation or bullying of a student. A safe and civil environment in school is necessary for students to learn and achieve high academic standards. Harassment, intimidation or bullying, like other disruptive or violent behaviors, is conduct that disrupts both a student's ability to learn and a school's ability to educate its students in a safe and disciplined environment. Since students learn by example, school administrators, faculty, staff and volunteers should be commended for demonstrating appropriate behavior, treating others with civility and respect and refusing to tolerate harassment, intimidation or bullying.

For the purposes of this Policy, the term "parent," pursuant to the N.J.A.C. 6 A: 16-1.3, means the natural parent(s), legal guardian(s), foster parent(s), or parent surrogate(s) of a student. Where parents are separated or divorced, "parent" means the person or agency which has legal custody of the student, as well as the natural or adoptive parent(s) of the student, provided such parental rights have not been terminated by a court of appropriate jurisdiction.

Types of Bullying Behaviors

Understanding Different Types of Bullying Behavior Bullying can occur in many ways.

Bullying can be Direct (“face to face”) or Indirect (“behind someone’s back”).

The type of bullying can affect the way parents describe or approach their child or a school about a bullying incident. Generally, there are four types of bullying behaviors: The type of bullying can affect the way parents describe or approach their child or a school about a bullying incident. Generally, there are four types of bullying behaviors:

- Verbal – Includes name calling, taunting, constant teasing or making threats
- Physical – Includes hitting, punching, shoving, spitting, or taking or damaging personal belongings
- Emotional – Includes spreading rumors, purposefully keeping people from activities and breaking up friendships or other relationships
- Electronic or cyber bullying – Includes using the internet, mobile phone or other electronic equipment to intentionally harm others.

Conflicts vs. Bullying

During a conflict, name-calling, threats, and other conduct that might look like bullying can occur. However, a conflict and bullying are very different. Unlike bullying, during conflict people are equally involved in some type of disagreement.

Conflict is considered mutual, meaning everyone is evenly involved.

Bullying, on the other hand, involves one or several people (the bullies) intentionally committing a mean or violent act against another person(s) or group of people (the victims)

Students with Disabilities

Judicial decisions and federal guidance concerning bullying and students with disabilities have focused primarily on the rights of students with disabilities who are on the receiving end of the harmful conduct. However, there are a range of situations in which districts must consider the rights of students who engage in behavior that may constitute bullying under the IDEA, the ADA, and Section 504. This includes students who have been identified under the IDEA as well as those suspected of having a disability and needing special education and related services.

Discipline Under Section 504 and IDEA

Discipline and Special Education is another area where the right procedures are critical to student success and state and federal compliance and is often an intersection of Special Education and Discipline.

Disabilities can influence school discipline and behavior, although it's important to be careful not to automatically attribute all behavioral issues to a disability. Here are some ways student behavior may be impacted by a student's disability:

- Emotional and Behavioral Disorders: Some students have disabilities that specifically impact their behavior. For example, students with Oppositional Defiant Disorder (ODD) or Conduct Disorder (CD) may exhibit disruptive, defiant, or aggressive behaviors.
- Impulsivity and Hyperactivity: Students with Attention-Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD) might struggle with impulsivity, hyperactivity, or inattention, which can sometimes lead to disciplinary issues if not properly managed.
- Communication Disorders: Students with speech and language impairments might struggle to communicate effectively, which can lead to frustration and potentially challenging behavior.
- Autism Spectrum Disorders (ASD): Students with ASD might have difficulties with social interactions and communication, which could be interpreted as misbehavior. They may also have a hard time coping with changes in routine or sensory overload, leading to outbursts or other challenging behaviors.
- Learning Disabilities: Students with learning disabilities might exhibit behavior problems out of frustration or as a way to avoid tasks that are difficult for them.
- Mental Health Issues: Students with conditions like anxiety or depression might exhibit behaviors such as withdrawal, inattentiveness, or acting out, which could potentially lead to disciplinary issues.

Students with Disabilities

In many cases, these behaviors are not intentional acts of defiance, but rather manifestations of the student's disability. This is why it's critical for educators to be aware of a student's disabilities and to have strategies in place to address behavioral challenges appropriately.

Addressing bullying behavior in the IEP

- Regardless of whether the behavior constitutes bullying, the IDEA implementing regulations provide that if a student's behavior impedes his learning, the IEP team must consider the use of positive behavioral interventions and supports and other strategies to address the behavior. 34 CFR 300.324 (a)(2)(i).
- If a student who engaged in bullying behavior is a student with a disability, the IEP team should review the student's IEP to determine if additional supports and services are needed to address the inappropriate behavior. "In addition, the IEP Team and other school personnel should consider examining the environment in which the bullying occurred to determine if changes to the environment are warranted." Dear Colleague Letter, 61 IDELR 263 (OSERS/OSEP 2013).
