Be a problem solver! Be an Upstander

One way to be a problem solver is to help someone who is being mistreated or bullied by others. One lesson that I like to use is called, "Be an Upstander" and it gives four ways to help someone who is being mistreated.

1. Be a Buddy – just walk up and stand by the person being mistreated. This will show that he has someone on his side
2. Interrupt – just walk up and ask the person being mistreated if he wants to go shoot a basketball or go to the other end of the lunch table.
3. Speak Out – Tell the person who is doing the mistreatment that it is not right and to stop. Others will probably notice and come to stand with you.
4. Tell Someone – tell an adult close by what is happening and let him/her handle the problem.

These are quick and easy steps to help solve a problem and to be an Upstander.

Library Journal

Hello and happy February!
Students have been reading
Valentine's Day, Presidents' Day, and Black History Stories this month. Second and third-grade students read chapter books.
February and March will also be RIF
distribution months.

And as always, happy reading!
Mrs. Burkett
