LAPD Chaplain Reveals Divine Moments Amid Wildfire Destruction: 'God, if You're Real, Show Me'

As firefighters battle the raging wildfires in Los Angeles, one police chaplain is offering comfort and spiritual support to those devastated by the flames. In the midst of this unpredictable devastation, Chaplain Steve Wilburn of the Los Angeles Police Department is bringing hope to survivors and first responders alike.

The wildfires have left neighborhoods in ruins, with entire homes and communities wiped out. For Chaplain Wilburn, the destruction is a powerful equalizer.

"This is an affluent neighborhood, but these people probably wouldn't have given me the time of day a week ago," he shared. "But today, when this happened, everyone is open. 'Can I pray for you?' 'Yeah. Yes, please.'"

Her experience and performance as attorney general, prosecutor, and community leader speaks volumes about her character and her dedication to the rule of law," said Grassley.

Most parents want transgenderism out of their kids' school

A new poll conducted by CRC Research finds that more than 75% of moms and dads do NOT want the schools promoting the transgender lifestyle in class.

Since the country is about evenly divided between Republicans and Democrats, that means a significant number of Democratic parents are NOT on board with the transgender agenda, which may — in part — explain what happened on election day.

The Supreme Court will hear another religious freedom case

The justices have agreed to consider a challenge to Obamacare lodged by Braidwood Management, a small Christian-owned business. The company doesn't want to be forced to cover certain kinds of healthcare, including medicate for HIV prevention because it “encourages and facilitates homosexual behavior in violation of our religious beliefs.”

The Rev. Boise Kimber, an Alabama native, was installed as the president of the nation's largest Black denomination on Monday night in a service at 16th Street Baptist Church in Birmingham.

Faith Events, Christian Prayers Integral in Trump's Inauguration.

On Monday, Jan. 20, Donald Trump will be inaugurated as the 47th president of the United States. In addition, since winning the election, the president-elect has made it a point to put faith front and center.
