Demarest Public School Prints First Edition of The DMS Press

Demarest Middle School is pleased to announce that our 8th grade students have published their first issue of The DMS Press. This new release has been created through Journalism, which is taught by middle school teachers, Toby Murphy and Michael Kassan. During the class, students work on writing articles and taking pictures on a variety of topics related to the middle school experience. This work is lead by the editors, who have worked tirelessly to publish their first issue. The students who created this issue are: Print Editor: Amanda Srebnik; Web Editor: Michelle Lee; Layout Editor: Tamara Kim; Marketing Editor: Catie Frank; Photography Editor: Jess Freeman.

In picture Superintendent, Mr. Michael Fox; middle school teacher, Mr. Toby Murphy and Journalism students.

Hi Toby,
Working on a press release for The DMS Press....

Can you confirm this is the first edition? And please provide names of the editors and any other children involved. Not sure if we need media releases- full faces are not shown.

Nancy/Jeanne- can you double check children in pic are ok to be published in the paper, just in case?

Thank you!
Deb
