

AUGUST 2025

National Immunization Awareness Month

Immunizations help save countless lives each year. A vaccine encourages your body to produce antibodies—special agents of the immune system that attack harmful elements, like viruses. These antibodies quickly learn how to fight off a particular disease, like the flu or COVID-19, which can be critical if you’re ever exposed to it.

Since August is National Immunization Awareness Month, double-check that you’re up to date on all recommended vaccines. Delaying critical vaccinations can lead to serious health risks; that’s why there are recommended immunization schedules.
