5	My children experience good days, but mostly bad days due to inconsistencies with behavior management. One of my children feels singled out and often gets accused of doing things by peers leading to a defensive demeanor; the other child is more social and receptive to change.	2/25/2024 8:10 PM

9	As a whole school, communication has dropped off this year. There's been a couple of times where I havent found out about something until the night before.. another example is I was trying to find out info about baseball since I have a 7th grader this year. I always research before calling the school. I wasnt able to find anything in my own and the last year thay anything was posted about baseball on the schook website was 2022. I mainly wanted to know the time frame for tryouts and what kind of bat and equipment he would need. We have always played little league which has specific bat requirements so I knew middle school would be different and he would need a bew bat. I ended up calling the school and finally talked to someone in the athletic department who seemed to know just as much as I did already. It would be helpful to know specifics ahead of time so we can start buying things he will need early instead of having to buy everything at once right before the season starts.	2/25/2024 12:23 PM

If she had a sub, they didn't let her use it at all in class making her fall behind. To make matters worse, her teacher chose to tell her tough luck, she's getting a zero for those assignments.
