New Milford's Mission Statement

The mission of the New Milford Public Schools, a collaborative partnership of students, educators, family and community, is to prepare each and every student to compete and excel in an ever-changing world, embrace challenges with vigor, respect and appreciate the worth of every human being, and contribute to society by providing effective instruction and dynamic curriculum, offering a wide range of valuable experiences, and inspiring students to pursue their dreams and aspirations.

English I College Prep

Grade 9

A primary focus of the course is to develop and reinforce effective reading and writing skills. Students are expected to generate literal understanding of text and progress with teacher guidance towards more abstract interpretations. Through various genres of literature, students in this course explore concepts including the hero's journey and an individual's place in society. The curriculum is designed to progressively challenge students to develop literal and inferential comprehension skills. Students compose multi-paragraph narrative, persuasive, and expository essays with both a clear thesis and a cohesive argument (emphasis on textual evidence, sentence structure, and appropriate usage of mechanics). In addition, students build vocabulary knowledge, engage in both formal and informal speaking presentations, and participate actively in discussions by practicing fundamental listening and speaking skills.

T	Responses are clear and demonstrate an understanding of an American identity.	PERFORMANCE TASK(S): Students will show that they really understand evidence of... An American identity
M,T	Students can write a nonfiction narrative about themselves or someone they know.	Write a nonfiction narrative (true story/memoir/biography)
A	Students' responses follow the structure of a nonfiction narrative effectively and convey complex ideas, concepts and information.	Consider how the idea of American identity has changed over time. Then, use your own experience or that of someone you know or have studied to write a brief narrative that explores the question:
A,M	Evaluate written explanatory texts by analyzing how authors introduce and develop clear central ideas.	How does your generation define what it means to be an American today?
	CCSS ELA- 9-10 Narrative Writing Rubric	Present a nonfiction narrative
T, M, A	Focus/exposition - Your story follows the form of a short story or narrative by using both dynamic and static characters in a well-described setting which follows plot structure.	You have read about immigrants' experience as they strove to adjust to the United States. Work with your group to develop a presentation (power point, podcast, video) that address the question:
		How do the realities of immigrants' experiences reflect or fail to reflect American ideals?
T, M, A	Organization/structure/plot - The events of your story follow a logical progression and form. The plot structure diagram diagram will help students organize their story. The exposition phase establishes the setting and characters, while conflict is introduced in the rising action. The climax reveals and	Students will select one personality from an instructor-developed list.
		If the instructor chooses to use a novel for this unit, they can pair with some of the non-fiction readings and adjust the performance tasks to pertain to fiction.

STAGE 2

Code	Evaluative Criteria	Assessment Evidence
A, M, T	Impact: Responses are clear and demonstrate an understanding of a hero's journey or transformation	PERFORMANCE TASK(S): Students will show that they really understand evidence of... A journey or transformation by:
M, T	Content: Students can explain a clear and understandable personal journey of transformation in a character	Writing an explanatory essay: What would a person need to survive a journey? Write an essay in which you answer the question: How are personal strengths and weaknesses magnified during the course of a journey?
M, T	Quality: Students responses follow the structure of an explanatory essay effectively and convey complex ideas, concepts and information	Use evidence from multiple texts to explain what traits are necessary for a successful journey.
M, T	Process: Evaluate written explanatory texts by analysing how author's introduce and develop clear central ideas	Delivering a multimedia presentation: With your small group, design a multimedia presentation about journeys that involve no travel. Students will read about people in different societies with different kinds of heros (interview, short story, poetry).. The presentation will answer the following: What different types of journeys are there, and how can they transform someone?
		Performance Assessment
		Explanatory Essay & Podcast The Odyssey (or other literary text) illustrates one of literature's greatest travelers as he struggles to get back home. After reading, students will write an explanatory essay about the personal strengths and weaknesses that shape our journeys. Students will write and research an everyday "hero" Students will answer the question: When does the journey matter more than the destination?

		If the instructor chooses to use a novel for this unit, they can pair with some of the non-fiction readings and adjust the performance tasks to pertain to fiction. GRASPS Goal/challenge - Create a podcast based on an element from your explanatory essay. This 3-5 minute podcast will explore a hero's journey and answer the question - When does the journey matter more than the destination? Role for student -interviewer/reporter/podcaster Audience for student work - interested podcast listeners Situation - Students will interview (or mock interview) an everyday "hero." They will create an engaging story through an interview and storytelling of a hero's journey. Examples could be: a healthcare professional who survived working with COVID patients; a rescue worker who saved someone; a teacher who created a new program; a patient who survived a health challenge...possibilities are endless. Students will interview a real person or research someone of interest. Products and performances generated by student -Students will produce a podcast that follows a podcast format: engaging audio, interview or dramatic scene or multiple people telling a story Standards/criteria for judging success -3-5 minute publishable podcast that follows assignment details & conforms to the impact, content, quality and processual evaluative criteria.
