Houston Cares is a partnership between the Houston County School District and community partners to be hosted at the Lindsey Student Support Center. The clinic will provide medical, dental, and vision care for residents of Houston County. All services are free, and all practitioners are volunteers. Partners include Houston County Health Department, Trinity School of Medicine, Flint Energies, Central Georgia Technical College, Middle Georgia Community Action Agency, Peach Care, WIC, and many more.

“As a community resource center, we are pleased to be offering the Houston Cares Clinic again this year,” said Dr. Dana Wiggins, Assistant Superintendent for Student Services for the Houston County School District. “The variety of services provided for our students and their family members can truly impact their health in a positive way. We are thankful to our community partners for helping us ensure the vision of the Lindsey Student Support Center continues to thrive for years to come.”

Services will include health exams, hearing screenings, basic dental cleanings, vision care, vaccinations, mental health resources, and early childhood screenings. During the health clinic, there will also be representatives onsite to help families apply for Medicaid, Peach Care, and WIC.
