SUPPORTING YOUR STUDENT AT HOME

Students should be reading daily at home with parents, grandparents, siblings, or stuffed animals even! While your child is reading, ask probing questions about the text and about what they're thinking. Extend their reading by having them write about the story or even how they think the story should have ended. Rereading a story also builds fluency and automaticity, so if they want to read it again and again, feel free to let them!
