*comprehension strategy: good readers make predictions about what will happen next in a story...then they use words and pictures to find out if their prediction was correct

The Pigs, the Wolf, and the Mud

Three pigs lived in a mud hut. "It is a mess," said Pig One. "But pigs like a mess," said Pig Two. "Mud is fun!" said Pig Three.

"Get this!" yelled Pig One. She tossed mud to Pig Two. "Mud is fun!" yelled Pig Three. The bell rang. "Little pigs, pigs, pigs, let me in."

"It is a big, bad wolf!" said Pig One. "We can not let you in," yelled the pigs. "You will eat us up." "Then I will huff and puff," the wolf yelled back. He huffed, huffed, huffed. He puffed, puffed, puffed.

"Yuck!" said the wolf. "I can not huff in mud. I can not puff in mud." He rang the bell again.

"Pigs, pigs, pigs, let me in!" he yelled. "We will not let you in!" the pigs yelled back.

"Then I will kick, kick, kick," said the wolf. He kicked, kicked, kicked. The hut fell in! "Yuck!" said the wolf. "I can not look at this mud."

"You pigs are a big mess!" "Yes!" yelled the pigs. "Pigs like a big mess!" "But I do not!" yelled the wolf. "I must get this mud off. Good-bye, pigs."

"Let's make a hut," said Pig One. "We could use bricks," said Pig Two. "We could use sticks," said Pig Three. "We will use mud," said Pig One. "Mud is good!" said Pig Two. "Mud is fun!" yelled Pig Three. "Yuck!" said the wolf.
