

Course Description:

Sixth grade students will be studying the history of human civilizations from the earliest societies through the fall of the Roman Empire. Students will be studying the geographical, social, political, economic, and religious factors that shaped the development of each civilization. Students will follow the shifts in societies and trace the ways that civilizations built on the accomplishments of previous civilizations. All religions covered in this course are taught strictly for the purpose of understanding how the beliefs of a people impacted the development of civilizations.
