Introduction

Suicide is a major public health and mental health concern. Nationally, suicide is the tenth leading cause of death among all Americans and the second leading cause of death among young (10-34) Americans.¹ In 2018, the suicide rate in Alabama was 16.8 per 100,000, which is higher than the 2018 U.S. rate of 14.2 per 100,000.² Cutting across all ethnic, economic, social and age boundaries, suicide has a tremendous and traumatic impact on surviving family members, friends, and the community at large. Suicide generally does not materialize in isolation and is often associated with undiagnosed mental illness, such as depression. Other risk factors may include, but are not limited to, alcohol or substance abuse, feelings of hopelessness or helplessness, self-isolation or social withdrawal, anxiety, history of trauma or abuse, or the loss of a relationship.

In 2018, 116 youth and young adults between the ages of 10 and 24 died by suicide with 66 of those deaths in young people ages 20-24.³ According to the 2019 Alabama Youth Risk Behavior Survey (YRBS), 37.5% of youth felt sad or hopeless, 20.7% of youth seriously considered attempting suicide, and 16% of youth made a plan on how they would attempt suicide.⁴ In addition, 11.6% of youth attempted suicide and 3.8% of youth suicide attempts resulted in an injury, poisoning, or overdose that had to be treated by a doctor or nurse.⁵ Therefore, it is urgent that school districts have policies and procedures in place to assess the risk of, intervene in, and respond to youth suicidal behavior.

All school personnel (including, but not limited to, teachers, administrators, counselors, social workers, school nurses, support staff, paraprofessionals, bus drivers, and cafeteria workers) who interact with students on a regular basis are in ideal positions to identify and refer students who are potentially at risk for suicide. In 2016, the Alabama State Legislature passed the House Bill 16-28B-8, also known as the “Jason Flatt Act – Alabama”. Currently, the Student Bullying Prevention Act guidelines for suicide prevention programs, training, and policies requires local school systems to provide annual suicide prevention education training to all certificated school system personnel and to adapt a policy on student suicide prevention.

Definition of Terms

Alabama State Department of Education (ALSDE):

The state agency charged with the fiscal and administrative management of certain aspects of K-12 public education, including the implementation of federal and state mandates.

Assessment:

A comprehensive evaluation usually performed by a clinician, to confirm suspected suicide risk in a patient, estimate the immediate danger, and decides on a course of treatment.

Cluster:

A group of suicides or suicide attempts, or both, that occurs closer together in time and space than would normally be expected in a given community.

Crisis Response Team:

A multidisciplinary team of primarily administrative, mental health, safety professionals, and support staff who are prepared, trained, and ready to address crisis preparedness, intervention, response and recovery.

Evidence-based practices:

Suicide prevention activities that have been found effective by rigorous scientific evaluation.

High-risk student:

A high-risk can consist of one who has underlying issues such as learning disabilities, poverty, academic challenges, sudden life experience, experience bullying, traumatic events, victims of abuse and neglect, suicidal thoughts or attempts, relationship struggles, increase school absences including truancy as well as family dynamic obstacles.

Intervention:

Activities implemented to improve a situation which may have a potential of an adverse health outcome and designed to support individuals involved in the situation

Licensed mental health professional:

Professionals such as a Licensed Professional Counselor (LPC), Licensed Clinical Social Worker (LCSW), Licensed Marriage & Family Therapist (LMFT), Licensed Psychologist, Psychiatrist, Pediatrician, and a Medical Physician.

Local Education Agency (LEA):

A local school system pursuant to local board of education control and management.

Mental health:

A state of well-being in which every individual realizes his or her own potential, can cope with the normal stresses of life, can work productively and fruitfully, and is able to contribute to his or her community.

Prevention:

Activities implemented prior to the onset of an adverse health outcome (e.g., dying by suicide) and designed to reduce the potential that the adverse health outcome will take place.

Postvention:

Activities following a suicide to help alleviate the suffering and emotional distress of the survivors and prevent additional trauma and contagion.

Protective factors:

An attribute, characteristic, or environmental exposure that decreases the likelihood of a person's developing a disease or injury (e.g., attempting or dying by suicide) given a specific level of risk. For example, depression elevates a person's risk of suicide, but a depressed person with good social connections and coping skills is less likely to attempt or die by suicide than a person with the same level of depression who lacks social connections and coping skills. Social connections and coping skills are protective factors, buffering the suicide risk associated with depression and thus helping to protect against suicide.

Risk factors:

Personal or environmental characteristics that increase the likelihood that a person may try to take his or her life. Suicide risk tends to be highest when someone has several risk factors at the same time. Risk factors may encompass biological, psychological, and/or social factors in the individual, family, and environment including access to lethal means. Risk factors should not be confused with warning signs.

School System Personnel:

All individuals employed part time or full time by the LEA Board of Education. This is to include district level and school level personnel regardless of position and includes substitute teachers.

Screening:

A procedure in which a standardized tool, instrument, or protocol is used to identify individuals who may be at risk for suicide. Also see Assessment.

Self-harm:

The act of deliberately and intentionally injuring one's own body, such as cutting or burning. Although self-harm often lacks suicidal intent, youth who engage in self-harm are more likely to attempt suicide.

Suicidal behavior:

A spectrum of activities related to thoughts and behaviors that include suicidal thinking, suicide attempts, and completed suicide. Also includes preparatory behavior such as buying a gun, hoarding pills, writing a suicide note, etc.

Suicidal ideation:

Any self-reported thoughts or fantasies about engaging in suicide-related behavior.

Suicide:

Death caused by self-directed injurious behavior with intent to die as a result of the behavior.

Suicide attempt:

A non-fatal, self-directed, potentially injurious behavior with intent to die as a result of the behavior. A suicide attempt may or may not result in injury.

Suicide contagion:

Suicide risk associated with the knowledge of another person's suicidal behavior, either first-hand or through the media. Suicides that may be at least partially caused by contagion are sometimes called "copycat suicides." Contagion can contribute to a suicide cluster. Community and media education is vitally important to reduce this risk.

Warning Signs:

Behaviors and symptoms that may indicate that a person is at immediate or serious risk for suicide or a suicide attempt.

Requirements under State Law

Local education agencies (LEA) shall adopt a policy on student suicide prevention. Such policies shall be developed in consultation with school and community stakeholders, school employed mental health professionals, and suicide prevention experts and shall, at a minimum, address procedures relating to suicide prevention, intervention, and postvention.

To help LEAs in developing their own policies for student suicide prevention, the Alabama State Department of Education shall provide assistance in accordance with the School Suicide Prevention Program established by the Alabama State Legislature pursuant to the Student Bullying Prevention Act 16-28B-8 Ala. Code of 1975 includes the elements below to be interpreted as a policy “To the extent that the Legislature shall appropriate funds or to the extent any local school board may provide funds from other sources, each school system shall implement the following standards and policies for suicide prevention programs”.

1. All certificated public-school personnel shall receive annual training in suicide awareness and prevention. This training shall be provided within the framework of existing in-service training programs offered by the Alabama State Department of Education or as part of required professional development offered by an LEA.
2. The Alabama State Department of Education shall, in consultation with state suicide prevention organizations such as the Alabama Suicide Prevention and Resource Coalition and the Alabama Chapter of the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention as well as the Alabama Departments of Mental Health and Public Health and additional suicide prevention experts, develop a list of approved training materials to fulfill the requirements of the Jason Flatt Act which may include training materials currently being used by an LEA if such training materials meet the criteria established by the Alabama State Department of Education.

Approved materials shall include training on how to identify appropriate mental health services, both within the school and within the larger community, and when and how to refer youth and their families to those services.

Approved materials may include programs that can be completed through self-review of suitable suicide prevention materials.

3. The Alabama State Department of Education shall make referral, crisis intervention and other related information available to students, parents, and school personnel.
4. The ALSDE shall educate students in recognizing signs of ideation and other warning signs related to suicidal behavior.
5. The ALSDE shall promote cooperative efforts between school personnel and community suicide prevention programs.
6. The ALSDE shall develop a plan to assist survivors of attempted suicide, completed suicide, the death of a student and develop healing processes.

The policies, procedures and rules developed and approved to implement policies will be published, disseminated, and made available to students, parents and legal guardians and employees by any such means and methods customarily used for such purposes including publication on local school board websites.

School Climate

Schools should ensure that they maintain a positive and safe school climate. Fostering a feeling of connectedness between the students and the school, providing an opportunity for students to become involved in school activities, and ensuring an overall safe environment for all students are essential components of a safe and positive school climate. Many activities designed to prevent violence, bullying, and the abuse of alcohol and other drugs may also reduce suicide risk among students.⁶ Programs that improve school climate and promote connectedness help reduce risk of suicide, violence, bullying, and substance abuse.⁷

Schools should set high expectations on all staff and students to behave respectfully and kindly to one another. In a positive school climate, all students are respected, supported, and feel comfortable approaching an adult when confronted with problems. Importantly, bullying among students should be taken very seriously, as research has shown that students who feel victimized by other students or staff have an elevated risk of suicidal ideations and behaviors.

Prevention, Intervention and Postvention

Raising staff awareness about suicide and training staff to take steps that prevent it are critical components of any comprehensive school-based suicide prevention program. All school staff should understand that suicide poses a risk to students and that the school is taking steps to reduce this risk. The staff should be made aware that the school's mission includes providing a safe environment in which education can take place and that the mental health of students affects their academic performance.

School System Policy Implementation

Suicide prevention efforts are generally led by school counselors, mental health professionals, or social workers. However, it is important to remember that no one can establish effective suicide prevention strategies alone. The participation, support, and active involvement of others in the school and community are essential for success.

Local school superintendents should appoint a suicide prevention coordinator to plan and coordinate the implementation of the school district's suicide prevention policy.

The suicide prevention coordinator shall serve as the point of contact for issues relating to suicide prevention in schools and district policy implementation. The suicide prevention coordinator may be an existing staff member (e.g., school counselor, or safety coordinator). Most school systems already have teams responsible for student health and behavioral health issues, such as a Crisis Response Team. If so, consider adding suicide prevention to their mission and involving members of these teams as you assign responsibilities for suicide prevention strategies. All staff members shall report students they believe to be at risk for suicide to the school suicide prevention coordinator or a staff member the school suicide prevention coordinator has designated to act in his or her absence.

Training

All school system personnel shall receive annual training on youth suicide and school suicide protocols. The Alabama State Department of Education (ALSDE) will provide access to the School Personnel Suicide Awareness Training in a manner which will keep record of those who complete the training. The school personnel training is outlined below:

- General Suicide Knowledge including youth suicide data and relative terms and definitions
- Prevention covering risk factors and general information around suicide as well as student training options
- Intervention including warning signs and suggested school protocols and forms for suicide assessment, parent notification and professional referrals
- Postvention containing school community communication of a school personnel or student death and guidelines on school-based memorials and daily operations

The Alabama Department of Mental Health has provided a 4-page document titled You Are Not Alone (Appendix A) which provides an excellent resource as it summarizes four areas of discussion all around suicide. These discussion areas are Break the Stigma, Know the Signs, How to Help, and Help for Grieving.

The Alabama State Department of Education (ALSDE) recommends the use of evidence-based suicide prevention programs for K-12 students on mental health, coping and suicide annually. At a minimum, students need to receive suicide awareness education three times over their academic career with the suggestion of 4th, 7th and 10th grades. Student suicide programs may include "A Promise for Tomorrow" Student Curriculum by The Jason Foundation; Prevention & Awareness for Total Health, P.A.T.H., with Peer Helpers by ThriveWay; and existing programs including school developed and those delivered by partnered agencies. For Alabama specific data, information and free posters to display around your school, visit the Alabama Department of Public Health's website at <https://www.alabamapublichealth.gov/suicide/youth.html>.

ALSDE also recommends the use of any of these programs by any school system for immediate implementation:

Suicide Assessment and Referral

Most experts agree that a process by which people at risk for suicide can be identified and referred to treatment is an essential component of a comprehensive suicide prevention program. Suicide assessment usually refers to a more comprehensive evaluation done by a licensed clinician to confirm suspected suicide risk, estimate the immediate danger to the patient, and decide on a course of treatment. Although assessment can involve structured questionnaires, they also can include a more open-ended conversation with the individual and/or friends and family to gain insight into the patient's thoughts and behavior, risk factors (e.g., access to lethal means or a history of suicide attempts), protective factors (e.g., immediate family support), and medical and mental health history.

When a student is identified by a staff person as potentially suicidal, (i.e., verbalizes about suicide, presents overt risk factors, student self-refers, etc.) the student should immediately be seen by a mental health professional to assess risk and facilitate referral. If there is no mental health professional available at the school, a school nurse, school counselor, school social worker or a school administrator should fill this role to gather information through a basic situation assessment. The parent or guardian must be notified that the student needs an assessment by a mental health professional. School personnel will utilize the Assessment section of the Student Crisis Referral Form to capture information to better understand the situation to communicate to the parents and/or professional services.

Through discussion with the student, the principal or mental health professional will assess whether there is further risk of harm due to parent or guardian notification. If the principal or mental health professional believes, in his or her professional capacity, that contacting the parent or guardian would endanger the health or well-being of the student, the principal or mental health professional may delay such contact as appropriate. If parent or guardian notification is delayed, the reasons for the delay shall be documented. If the principal, designee or mental health professional suspects child abuse or neglect, the Alabama Department of Human Resources shall be notified immediately.

NOTE: All students that exhibit risk factors for suicide that do not rise to the level of warning signs or suicide ideation should be referred to the school principal and/or the school counselor or social worker for screening and further action if warranted.

For Students with Warning Signs for Suicide:

1) STAY WITH STUDENT & ASSESS:

- School staff should continuously supervise the student to ensure his or her safety. Under no circumstances should the student be left alone or sent back to class. Student must remain under constant adult supervision until student leaves school property with parent or guardian.
- School personnel to speak with student and gain information to assess the situation. The responses are to be noted in the Assessment section of the Student Crisis Referral Form (Appendix B).

2) IMMEDIATE INTERNAL NOTIFICATION STEPS:

- School staff contacts the principal or his/her designee, school counselor and school nurse for assistance. The principal or his/her designee, school counselor or school nurse should contact the school resource officer, if applicable.
- The principal or his/her designee, school counselor or school nurse should contact the central office designee which may be the Mental Health Service Coordinator.
- The central office designee needs to immediately contact the Crisis Team to be on stand by for this student and the engaged school personnel.

3) PARENT NOTIFICATION & ASSISTANCE:

- The principal or his/her designee and school counselor should contact the student's parent or guardian and require their physical presence on campus to meet and check-out the student.
- School staff should work with the student to complete a Student Safety Plan located on page 4 of the Student Crisis Referral Form (Appendix B) while waiting on the parent or guardian to arrive.
- When parent or guardian arrives to campus, the school counselor and Mental Health Service Coordinator, where applicable, should assist the family with urgent referral for professional assessment.
- When appropriate, this assistance may include calling emergency services, but in most cases will involve contacting the local crisis center or National Suicide Prevention Hotline or setting up an outpatient behavioral health appointment and communicating the reason for referral to the healthcare provider.
- A Parent Notification Letter (Appendix C) must be completed and a copy must be provided to the parent or guardian before they leave campus with the student. A Mental Health Resource List (Develop a local resource list utilizing resources in Appendix G) must be provided to the parent or guardian.

4) IMPACTED STUDENT SUPPORT:

If suicidal student has a sibling, relative, household member or close friend which may need to be counseled based on severity of situation or parental or guardian request, make immediate contact with that student. If an impacted student attends a different school, contact that school's counselor or appropriate designee and ask them to check on and meet with student.

* FOR A REPEAT REFERRAL ****

If a repeat Student Crisis Referral is made for suicide ideation or attempt, a doctor, licensed counselor or psychiatrist must see the student. For the student to return to school, the parent or guardian and the student must attend a Mandatory Re-Admit Conference with the school counselor where a Student Re-Entry & Support Form (Appendix D) will be completed. The parent must bring a mental health clearance letter of release from a qualified medical doctor or licensed mental health professional to the Re-Admit Conference stating the student is ready and able to return to school; this letter must be dated, on professional's letterhead and signed.

If the parent or guardian refuses to seek appropriate assistance for the student, the school shall have the option to contact and file a neglect report with the Alabama Department of Human Resources. The school may also involve the appropriate law enforcement agency, if necessary.

In-School Suicide Attempts

In the case of an in-school suicide attempt, the health and safety of the student is paramount. In these situations:

1. Call 911.
 2. Contact Central Office (e.g. superintendent or his/her designee).
 3. Contact Crisis Response Team.
 4. Secure the area as soon as possible and keep all students away.
 5. Send notes and runners to staff members informing them that a medical emergency has occurred. Include any additional instructions (e.g., "The bell schedule will be changed and will be manually sounded at an appropriate time.")
 6. Render first aid until professional medical treatment arrives.
 7. Provide constant adult supervision to the student to ensure student safety.
 8. Request a mental health screening for the student.
 9. Notify the principal and the school counselor regarding in-school suicide attempts.
 10. Contact the student's parent or guardian.
 11. Crisis Response Team will meet to assess whether additional steps should be taken to ensure student safety and well-being.
 12. Prepare a written statement to be distributed to parents and guardians either through email or by letter.
- For additional information, please refer to Appendix B: Action Plan for Suicide Attempt and Suicide Ideation on page 17.

Out-of-School Suicide Attempts

If a staff member becomes aware of a suicide attempt by a student that is in progress in an out-of-school location, the staff member will:

1. Call 911.
2. Contact the student's parent or guardian.
3. Contact the school principal and the school counselor.
4. Contact Central Office (e.g. superintendent or his/her designee).

* FOR ALL ATTEMPTS ****

For a student to return to school after an in-school or known out-of-school suicide attempt, the parent or guardian and the student must attend a Mandatory Re-Admit Conference with the school counselor where a Student Re-Entry & Support Form (Appendix D) will be completed. The parent must bring a mental health clearance letter of release from a qualified medical doctor or licensed mental health professional to the Re-Admit Conference stating the student is ready and able to return to school; this letter must be dated, on professional's letterhead and signed.

After a Death or Suicide

A suicide death or death by any means in a school community requires implementing a coordinated crisis response to assist staff, students, and families who are impacted by the death and to restore an environment focused on education. A meeting of the Crisis Response Team should take place as soon as possible once the basic facts about the death have been obtained to initiate a coordinated response.

Confirmation of Death

The principal or a representative of the school (i.e. counselor) should contact the family to offer condolences and to see if a visit to the family home would be permissible during this difficult time. It may be useful for a pair of representatives to visit together so they can support one another during the visit. It is important to respect the cultural and religious traditions of the family related to suicide, death, grieving, and funeral ceremonies.

The school representative(s) should:

- Offer condolences on behalf of the school and ask for any specific needs.
- Briefly share with the parents the ideas on how the school would like to respond to the death and ask for their permission to do so.
- Inquire about funeral arrangements. Ask if the funeral will be private or if the family will allow students to attend.
- Leave the parents with additional resources and information about grief counseling.
- (After all memorial services) Ask the family if they would like their child's personal belongings returned. These could include belongings found in the student's locker and desk as well as papers and projects they may want to keep.

Notifying School Community

Once a death has been confirmed, the school, district and school community need to be notified and support needs to be made available. Below is a notification list:

1. Principal will notify the Superintendent of schools.
2. Principal will notify all the faculty and staff.
3. Principal will provide faculty and staff with guidance for talking with students.
4. Notify the crisis response team.
5. Notify schools attended by family members of the deceased.
6. With parent permission, the school will make an official statement regarding the death of the student.

Appendix E: Sample Announcements for Notifying School CommunitySupport for Students

The following summarizes additional support that will be provided by mental health professionals after a student suicide.

Who: The Crisis Response Team

The School and/or District Level Crisis Response Team will provide grief counseling for students and school staff after a student or school faculty member death including but not limited to suicide. Additional support may include other school counselors, school social workers, and school-based nurses as well as other mental health professionals, local clergy, and other qualified persons from outside the school as needed.

Where: Designated meeting areas on the school campus.

Small group (less than 10) or individual counseling will take place in the school's designated meeting area(s) such as the counseling office, library, a lounge, or classroom.

When: Immediately and will be available for a minimum of 5 days.

Grief counseling will take place for 5-7 days immediately following the event and afterward on an as needed basis.

How: Students and Faculty will learn about counseling opportunities from school-wide announcements and homeroom teacher's announcements.

Considerations:

- a. Teachers, school counselors, and others involved in student counseling should beware of signs of personal burdens grieving students are carrying. These may complicate grieving and the counseling process.
- b. A student should notify a teacher if he or she is worried about another student. The teacher will then notify a counselor about the student and the counselor will take appropriate action immediately.
- c. The number of grief support counselors may be reduced as the demand from students and personnel subsides.

Reporting a Crisis to ALSDE

Upon a crisis including natural disasters, active shooters, lockdowns, suicide attempts and deaths, a report must be submitted by the LEA to the Alabama State Department of Education. The LEA Crisis Report form (Appendix F) is to be completed and submitted as soon as possible.

Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA)

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act or FERPA (20 U.S.C. § 1232g; 34 CFR Part 99) is a Federal law that protects the privacy of student education records. The law applies to all educational agencies and institutions that receive funds under any program administered by the U.S. Department of Education. Under FERPA, parents are generally required to provide consent before school officials disclose personally identifiable information from students' education records. There are exceptions to FERPA's general consent rule, such as disclosures in connection with health or safety emergencies. This provision in FERPA permits school officials to disclose information on students, without consent, to appropriate parties if knowledge of the information is necessary to protect the health or safety of the student or other individuals. When a student is believed to be suicidal or has expressed suicidal thoughts, school officials may determine that an articulable and significant threat to the health or safety of the student exists and that such a disclosure to appropriate parties is warranted under this exception (Department of Education, 2010).

APPENDIX A: You Are Not Alone

Break the Stigma

Bring Suicide Out of the Dark

Suicide is a major problem in the United States. Suicide is the tenth leading cause of death for all ages in the United States (CDC 2019). Thousands of people take their own life for a variety of reasons. Usually a person with suicidal feelings has experienced deep emotional trauma or intense situations. This could range from an abusive relationship to a serious illness or injury. Suicide doesn't always make sense to someone on the outside. Many people who are considering suicide feel as if it's their only option.

Mental health is just as important as physical health.

Promote Mental Health

Mental health is just as important as physical health. Just like you brush your teeth everyday, taking time to reflect on your feelings is crucial for a healthy mindset. Mental health looks different for everyone and everyone needs an outlet to decompress after a long day.

Mental health has long been overlooked in American society. The concept of looking perfectly fine on the outside, while suppressing your feelings can make it harder to live your daily life. More and more, people have started to normalize taking mental health days. We live in a work-centered society, so taking a break doesn't always feel accepted. Promoting good mental health habits is the first step in lowering suicide rates. By taking the time we need to promote a healthy way of living, people will learn how to better deal with their emotions in uncertain situations.

Suppressing feelings can make it harder to live daily life.

Join the Conversation

Suicide is not frequently talked about within our society due to the stigma surrounding mental health. Fear and unawareness contribute to the lack of discussion. People often feel as though they don't know enough, so it's better to say nothing. This is why we, as a society, need to promote mental health education.

Don't be afraid to talk about your personal struggles and conflicts. Everyone goes through hard times — from sharing these experiences, we can create deeper connections.

Promoting good mental health habits is the first step in lowering suicide rates.

All Ages are at Risk

Suicide affects everyone, everywhere. Suicidal tendencies can appear in any age, gender, or race. That's why it is so important for everyone to join the conversation. By familiarizing yourself with the symptoms, you could save the life of a friend, loved one, or community member.

Now, more than ever, we must be vigilant for symptoms of mental illnesses in the people around us.

Life After Covid-19

As we look forward to our "new normal" after Covid-19, we will need to handle the lasting effects of the global pandemic on our mental health. It will take time to regain social skills and readjust from uncertainty and loneliness. The end of the pandemic may leave even more people at risk for developing mental illnesses, like depression. Now, more than ever, we must be vigilant for symptoms of mental illnesses in the people around us.

Suicide was the 2nd leading cause of death for ages 10 – 34 in the U.S.

Suicide was the 4th leading cause of death for ages 35 – 44 in 2019.

Recognizing Suicidal Behavior

Sadness

Insomnia

Hopelessness

Withdrawal

Mood Swings

Changes in Eating

Drug Use

Self-loathing

Feeling Trapped

Despair

Thoughts of Death

Suicide can be hard to predict. A person who is developing suicidal thinking could have a variety of symptoms, or just one. In addition to the above, those struggling could also be dealing with feelings of guilt, pain, or being a burden; making a plan or preparations; struggling with self-harm or trauma; seeking revenge; taking risks; changing their appearance; talking about suicide or saying goodbye.

Educating yourself is a great first step in suicide prevention. If someone you know is exhibiting any of the above symptoms, reach out and help them get the support they need. You should reach out about their mental health even if you are unsure. If untreated, mental illnesses can leave people at higher risk to develop suicidal thinking. However having a mental illnesses does not mean a person will develop suicidal thinking.

The Importance of Language

Remember that even if a person is struggling with their mental health, they are still a person. Always use phrases that emphasize that they are a person before describing their mental illness. For example, you would say “This person is struggling with suicidal thoughts” rather than “They are a suicidal person.” The way we phrase our words can significantly impact their reception.

Supporting Those Left Behind

People who are affected by a suicide often experience feelings of grief and guilt. It can be hard to keep your mind from circling down the rabbit hole of “What if I did this differently?” and “Would they still be here if I did this?”

The intense feelings following a loved one’s passing can be really hard on one’s mental health. No matter how someone is grieving, it is important to let them know that you are there for them.

Special Resources for Grieving

Grieving looks different for everybody and is extremely taxing on our physical and mental states. People take different amounts of time to process a death, have different ways to cope with their feelings, and act differently when presented with a passing of a loved one.

Healthy grieving is not about getting over a death. It is about being present with your emotions and learning to live with them. Bereavement counseling, grief hotlines, and other resources are available if you or someone you know is having trouble grieving a loved one.

There was one death by suicide in the U.S. every 11 minutes in 2019.

47,511 Americans died by suicide in 2019.

How to Help

Call 911 for Emergencies

Assess the situation and severity of their suicidal feelings. In an emergency situation, call 911 and explain the situation. Stay with the person, remove all sharp and dangerous objects within the environment, and follow 911's instructions.

If the person is not in immediate danger, find a way to express your concerns. Preparation is key to make a meaningful interaction.

The Right Way to Ask the Right Questions

1. Explain the symptoms you have noticed

Write down the behaviors that have caused you to have this discussion. By being specific, it can help progress the conversation. It can also make it easier for the person who is struggling to recognize the symptoms.

2. Be direct

To have a serious conversation, it needs to be planned and thoughtful. This means do not casually bring it up as your friend is leaving. Rather, sit down and discuss your concerns in a controlled environment.

3. Frame your questions

Start this conversation by framing your questions to be answered with a yes or no, but not in a way that assumes an answer of no. For example, saying "Are you experiencing suicidal thoughts?" is a much more effective question than "You aren't thinking about killing yourself, right?" This helps to directly identify where the person needs help.

4. Validate

Many people struggle with mental health, so tell them that they are not alone. Listen to their feelings without judgment. However, do not promise secrecy, no matter the situation. Suicide can never be repaired, but friendship can. Stay with them until they have the resources that they need to be safe from harm.

5. Share resources

There are many available resources for people who are struggling with mental health on the local, state, and national levels. Take the first step and find resources that can help with their struggles. An internet search of your city and state followed by "suicide resources" will give you local hotlines and resources that are close to home.

There is one suicide for every estimated 25 suicide attempts.

There were more than twice as many suicides (47,173) as there were homicides (19,510) in 2018.

Help for Grieving

Help for the Grieving Process

Brianna Abbott is a counselor at Worthington Kilbourne High School and has been a Bereavement Counselor for over ten years. Her passion in life is to make a difference by helping others. Her job as a Bereavement (grief) Counselor is to help normalize grieving and reframe how people perceive deaths. Grief doesn't have a timeline, so she says she tries to help people "not get over their feelings, but live with them."

to help people
"not get over their feelings,
but live
with them."

Brianna's goal wasn't always to be a school counselor. She knew that she wanted to "help people when they're struggling in order to get them to a better place." She started her career at Lifeline Ohio, an organ donor organization, as the Community Education Coordinator. Here, she worked with support groups for transplant patients and families who lost loved ones waiting for a transplant. From this experience, she realized that she wanted to work with children and became a counselor for Worthington Schools. She later expanded her role to also be the district's crisis coordinator. She provides insight from her extensive background in grief counseling to prepare Worthington Schools for crises.

Brianna says mental health to her means "having the strength to feel your feelings and being present with them." It takes a lot of courage to be able to choose how you respond to any situation. By being in control of your emotions, you can do anything you set your mind to. She says "mental health isn't as obvious, but it is as significant as a physical injury." The biggest misconception about counseling is that seeking out someone for help is a sign of weakness. Brianna describes how courageous and strong people are when they reach out for help. Our society has such a stigma around talking about mental health, so it takes a lot for people to ask for help when they need it.

The hardest part of grief is acknowledging your honest emotions. Brianna speaks about how people struggle to feel their honest emotions because they don't want to impede on their love for them. Part of her job as an

"mental health isn't as obvious, but it is as significant as a physical injury."

Bereavement Counselor is to help people realize that having anger, sadness, or even frustration at a passed loved one does not take away from the love that you have for them. Society has made people feel like they can't express their feelings in order to be "strong" for those around you, but sometimes taking off that mask is exactly what you need to do.

Covid-19 Is Changing Our Support System

Brianna says Covid-19 has severely impacted her profession. The coronavirus has impacted every aspect of life from grieving to supporting one another. Many people feel helpless because so many things are out of their control. People feel guilty for not being there for loved ones, like they didn't do enough. Saying goodbye has always been hard, but with the lack of connection and physical support, many people are struggling.

Brianna says "the reality with every death is an element of fear that the loved one will be forgotten, and that the life they lived won't be for anything."

Society has forced many unrealistic perceptions of grieving upon us, and we need to realize that grieving is different for everyone. It takes time and energy to live with your feelings. Many people are concerned that they will say the wrong things, so they say nothing. Brianna urges everyone to reach out and be there for one another. While we might not be able to provide physical support, we can still support one another by picking up a phone, writing an email, sending flowers — anything that shows your loved ones that you care.

54% of Americans were affected by suicide in 2019.

Thoughts and attempts among high school students are higher than adults in general.
