Science Parent Workshop

March 6, 2026

- Welcome/ Breakfast
- Science Station 1: This educational activity, based on Eric Carle's The Tiny Seed, guides parents and students in a hands-on exploration of the plant life cycle. We will discuss the book's themes and learn about the parts of a plant, culminating in the creation of a personalized potted plant to take home.
 - The Tiny Seed Book
 - Containers
 - Soil
 - Seeds
- Science Station 2: Parents will use the book Matter and a coke float experiment to teach them about the states of matter: solid, liquid, and gas. They will learn they can use any children's book to find a focus in science.
 - Matter Book
- Science Station 3: An activity inspired by Ada Twist, Scientist can help children learn about physical changes through mixing paint and creating colors, while parents receive background information on flower anatomy. It is important to note that mixing paint colors is a physical change, not a chemical one, as no new chemical substance is created. The mixed paint can be physically separated again through processes like chromatography
 - Ada Twist, Scientist Book
 - Paint
 - Canvas
- Science Station 4: Parents will use the book Magnets: Pulling Together to learn about repel and attract by making their own magnet using a nail, battery, and wire. They will use these magnets to see which items are attracted to them.
