90	It is very hard to have the same rules for every kid because every kid is different. One example being not every kid can carry a backpack filled with all the things required for a 4th grader without developing back problems. Smaller kids need wheels on them. 94	Communication, I get general report but if I could know real time what my son is working on I could help, for example writing sight word sentences and drawing a picture. If I know this is coming I could work on sentence structure so he is not feeling left out in class or getting marked for not doing work. I can help him at home which would help the teacher in class.	2/3/2023 3:13 PM

34	Centerville is a great school with many great teachers/admin staff	2/7/2023 11:02 AM
35	Some of the teachers need to pay attention to the things they say to students example: the sly comments to students on a daily basis. scenario: student tells teacher something they feel is important and teacher response with ...omg...you just love drama and you're to nosey These little shade/sly comments happen alot and honestly it makes the students not want to tell the teachers anything and makes the students feel like their feelings or emotions don't matter along with their trust in the teachers!!	2/7/2023 10:13 AM

44	Keep doing what they are doing. If others aren't getting what they need its because they haven't asked. There is nothing I have asked, that a CES staff member couldn't solve to help kids. 81	The problem with school systems is not a lack of involvement or a shortage of money. The problem is a lack of pay and lack of staffing. Teachers are spread as thin as it is. If you want to have child development you have to have one on one or at least small groups. The one size fits all approach doesn't work especially in todays society. A good start would be to throw money at the staff and not technology, parental activity, or even homework, most of us work 8 hours or more just like teachers, the last thing we want to worry about is school work. Pat staff more, hire more, and make the most out of the time you have with the kids. After that , let the kids be kids. We all have to grow up at some point, until then teach and let them have fun.	2/1/2023 7:40 AM
