

NYM HS First Quarter Star Students

Senior Chloe Kojlonen has a friendly and cheerful personality. She is kind and works well with others. She arrives to class prepared and knows exactly what needs to be accomplished. She demonstrates work ethic-persists with difficult tasks, communicates with others, asks for help when needed, and completes assigned tasks. Her persistence to keep trying in spite of challenges is admirable. It has been a pleasure to have worked with Chloe since junior high and to see how her skills have improved.

Senior Madison Ruth is a very caring young lady. She works well with others and includes her classmates so no one is left out. Her effort and determination is greatly appreciated!

Senior Henry Sobieski is a very hard working student. He is great at contributing to meaningful discussions. He has a very positive attitude and is very inviting to other students.

Senior Breck Hensch is a thoughtful contributor to discussions, and he works to shed light on multiple angles of the different topics and issues brought to the classroom. Is polite and will talk with students and staff alike. Breck has taken time out of his busy schedule to help us make "Shrek" for the Elementary Carnival.

Senior Natalie Pederson is a very responsible student. She has helped many students in my art classes. She also has taken time out of her busy schedule to help us make "Shrek" for the Elementary Carnival.

Senior Irene Mursu is a considerate young lady who works to include and support her classmates in discussions. Academically speaking, she is a capable and bright student who questions and considers ideas carefully as she participates in class.

Junior Charlotte Homstroem may be a foreign exchange student, but she exemplifies all the qualities that an Eagle should have. Her kindness and respect were noticed immediately, towards students and faculty alike. Her focused determination to be the best student she can possibly be has been an incredible asset in class. Charlotte seeks to learn as much as she possibly can while she is here, and I feel lucky to have her as a student.

Although new, Sophomore Alycyn Swanson feels like someone who has been a part of the NYM community for much longer. Her positive attitude and willingness to do her best in English has not gone unnoticed. I appreciate her comments during class discussion and always look forward to what she has to write and say on her assignments. It's clear that she belongs here, and I am sure the other teachers will agree that they love having her in their class!

Eighth Grader Dylan Selander helps his classmates, respects rules and others, his work is on time and planned out. He is an incredibly focused student and is incredibly respectful in the classroom. He strives to go above and beyond in his classroom assignments. Dylan doesn't complain or give excuses; he thoughtfully asks questions and always adds insightful comments during class discussion. He continues to grow as a student here at NYM.

Eighth Grader Rosemary Laudenbach participates in class and stays caught up through many early dismissals for her extra curricular.

Seventh Grader Aubree Salo volunteers for class, kind, considerate, and brings in historical artifacts for the class to learn from.

Eighth Grader Dominic Angel deserves to be a student of the quarter for several reasons. I have seen so much growth in Dom from his 7th-grade year to his 8th-grade year. His grit and determination to do better academically is a wonderful thing to see! He is also an incredibly kind classmate. He never fails to have a smile on his face and greet his teachers and classmates in a sincerely genuine way. I wish we had more students like Dom at NYM!
