Feagin Mill Middle School Teacher Awarded PAGE Educator Grant

HOUSTON COUNTY, GA – Matthew Topping, a teacher at Feagin Mill Middle School, has received a 2022 Professional Association of Georgia Educators (PAGE) Educator Grant. With these funds, Topping will purchase materials needed for his Algebra students to design, build, and launch water-bottle rockets, allowing students to study the parabolic trajectory of their creations.

The PAGE Educator Grant program, now in its third year, has provided more than $275,000 to hundreds of educators throughout Georgia, enabling recipients to purchase supplies and materials for classrooms, students, and professional development.

“PAGE is honored to support instruction and learning in Georgia’s schools through the educator grants to our members across the state,” said Executive Director Craig Harper. “These additional resources contribute to all areas of student needs, from academics to the arts to health and well-being. The grant applications, more than 1,150 this year alone, demonstrate the deep commitment Georgia educators have to enhancing school and classroom experiences for their students.”
