During registration, senior Jonathan Norris decides which classes to take. He says, "Choosing my classes allowed me to have a schedule I was happy with."

The August 29 hail storm created havoc for "Crossvillians" on Main Street. Record winds and golf ball size hail were reported in the Mayland to Homestead area.

Senior football players ride on the fire truck during the homecoming parade. Senior Derek Tabor says, "Seeing all of the support from the community makes playing much more worthwhile."

Juniors Shea Nichols and Seanna Parrish enter the gymnasium before activity period begins. Parrish says, "Activity period helps me relieve my brain of the weekly pressures that cloud my train of thought."

On The Right Track

The 1990-91 school year got off to a bumpy start. Students had to go through a new registration process. Seniors and juniors came on August 16 and sophomores on August 17 to sign up for their classes as well as their teachers. "Registration seemed unfair because by the time the sophomores got to register, many of the classes were filled up," said sophomore Monica Graham. To add to the confusion, there were policy problems. Our track was also cautioned by the hail storm which hit the area on August 29 and cancelled school for over a week.

Amid this wreckage, there were bright spots. The Jet football team started their season with a win. Homecoming revved everyone's spirits the week of September 24. "Homecoming seemed to excite everyone. It was a welcomed change," said senior Jason Burton. To show their pride, students worked together to send good wishes to the American troops in the Persian Gulf.

As things took a turn for the better, the caution flags were lowered and green flags waved in their places. The year seemed more promising with each lap of time. More and more, things were on the right track.

Students show their enthusiasm during a pep-rally. Junior Brian Ragsdale says, "Cheering at the pep-rallies makes me feel like I am a part of every win."

Senior quarterback Daniel Walz calls a play to the offensive linemen. "The offense worked hard and their efforts paid off," Walz says.

During homecoming class competitions, junior Kelly Wheeler participates in the 'Lifesaver Relay. She says, "All I could think of was someone's toothpick jabbing me in the eye."

Masked in blue, senior Steve Smith enjoys the homecoming activities. "Showing my spirit is important," he says.

Junior Rodger Hargis and senior Samantha Qualls perform with the band during a pep-rally. "Jet pride rules!" says Hargis.

Winning Outlooks

As the year progressed, it was apparent that a racing attitude had overtaken the minds of many. Students found that the positive outlooks could not be escaped and were attributed to various reasons.

Sophomores discovered high school life was not all that bad. "High school is much more exciting than junior high," said sophomore Barbi Wisdom. There were ACT tests and prom decorations to keep the juniors in the right lane.

"Knowing you only have two years left keeps you smiling," said junior Vetta Farr.

Seniors looked forward to graduation. "Your senior year should be your best, so I did everything I could to make mine just that," said senior Daniel Maddux.

STUDENT LIFE

Beta club members throw candy to onlookers as they ride down Stanley Street in the homecoming parade. Senior Samantha Sherrill says, "Riding in the parade was fun because it gave us a way to show our Beta pride!"

LANE

Many students walked to town to view the parade. Junior Brad Houston says, "It was neat to see the parade coming down the road."

Junior Jack Emery and Jeri Adams display pride within the marching band. Adams says, "Jack and I have enjoyed being drum majors. It's a lot of hard work, but the band has really come a long way this year."

Senior homecoming representative Tracy Houser is presented on the 1990 senior float. "I was proud and delighted to ride on the senior float because our class put many hours of hard work into it," says Houser.

Jet Spirit On The Move

The parade was a very important part of homecoming festivities. Besides featuring many clubs, athletics, and homecoming nominees, it also boosted the morale of football players. Sophomore Jason Welch says, "Homecoming got all the players excited."

This year, parade day came with sunny skies and smiling faces. The week before was spent working on class floats. The hard work and dedication was then viewed from not only the high school, but all over town.

Sophomore Jennifer Cotrell watched the parade from Main Street. Cotrell said, "It was really neat to be able to pick out my friends in the parade. I also liked being deemed responsible enough to not be supervised by teachers." This opinion was shared by many students.

Friday, September 28, was the wrap-up day for many events during the week. Monday was Hillbilly day, Tuesday was Nerd day, Wednesday was Hippy day, Thursday was Army day, and Friday was Color day. Junior Shanda Keyes stated, "Dressing up was fun. It got the whole school involved in homecoming."

At the homecoming game, the winners of the float competition were announced. Juniors won first place with "Cook the Cougars", while seniors took second with "Simply the Best". Sophomores came in third with "Blooming into Victory".

The FFA, led by Alfred Gilliam, rode in the 1990 homecoming parade. Gilliam says, "It's great to see students get excited about school activities."

The Lady Jet basketball players joined happily in the homecoming parade. Junior Kristen York says, "Homecoming is a great and fun time of the year."

Homecoming Changes Pace

As the "true blue" Jet pride gleamed brightly homecoming night, the Jets soared over Campbell County, claiming a 47-7 victory. Sophomore football player Jeff Pleinis said, "For me, the game was the most exciting part of the entire week."

The coaches were pleased with both offense and defense, as was senior J.J. Walker. Walker said, "The offense played well, but the defense dominated the game!" The excitement of all that went on during the week brought the Jets together to form a closely knit bond.

Junior Kacey Hinch said, "We seem to have better school spirit. There is more involvement in school activities as opposed to last year. There is this excitement at pep-rallies that makes you want to participate and show your true school spirit."

The halftime ceremonies included the crowning of two traditional favorites. Senior Marie Page was crowned 1990 homecoming queen and senior Fredda Weaver was elected band sweetheart. Page said, "Being crowned homecoming queen is a feeling that cannot be expressed in words. It is a moment when you feel you are on top of the world."

All of the Jets' efforts were proven in this unforgettable night, which was memorable for both players and participants in the homecoming festivities.

Junior Chris Christopher and senior J.J. Walker make a forceful effort to help the Jets score. Christopher says, "It's very important to work as a team to gain points."

Senior football players continued the tradition of having their colors pinned prior to the homecoming game. Senior Bruce Turner says, "It was an honor to get my colors pinned."

After the game, the football team charges off the field with a 47-7 win. Junior Kevin Hedgecoth says, "Having a win felt great."

Senior Allyson Mayberry crowns homecoming queen senior Marie Page at halftime. "I was really excited that Marie won because she deserved to win," says Mayberry.

Senior Sean Turner crowns band sweetheart Fredda Weaver. Weaver says, "It was really great to know that the band members chose me to represent them as their sweetheart!"

Junior Jack Emery raises his arms in triumph after winning a class competition at the homecoming pep rally. Emery says, "Last year our class lacked in spirit, but this year we proved that we have it."

Students show their spirit during homecoming by dressing up for color day. Senior Patrick Graham says, "This was the best pep-rally I've ever been to!"

Pep-Rallies Boost Morale

Blue hair, yellow faces, loud music, glittering hats, cheering, and a sea of blue, gold, and white shirts — what does it all mean? It must be a pep-rally!

Pep-rallies were thrown back on the right track as school spirit teamed through the student body. "The pep-rallies were great this year. They were much better than last year's, and everyone got really excited. I was glad to see that people believed in our school again," said junior Karyn Daniel.

Possibly the most spirited pep-rally was the one attended by WBIR Action 10 News anchors Bill Williams and Bob Kesling. The local celebrities were there to present senior football player Randy Lewis with a poster and a pair of Converse athletic shoes, both autographed by basketball star Larry Bird. Footage from the pep rally appeared on Action 10 News that evening.

During the homecoming pep-rally, the entire school showed spirit with the cheering competition. Seniors won, while the junior and sophomore classes took second and third, respectively. "This is our last year so we cheered loudly in order to go out with a lasting impression," said senior Kelly Carson. Junior Loretta Sherill said, "The homecoming pep rally was a great way to get the football team ready for the night's game."

During the homecoming pep-rally, students got on their feet to cheer the Jets on to a big victory that evening. Senior Russell Wattenbarger says, "All the screaming and stomping during the pep-rallies was lots of fun."

During class competitions, juniors Scott Amonette, Holly Oaks, and Tamara Blair represent their class. Oaks says "I was worried about the junior class this year. As sophomores we had no spirit, but this year we do."

Friends Along The Way

Friendship is defined in Webster's Dictionary as being "a relationship between persons who like and respect each other and show warm affection." This may not be everyone's definition because friends mean different things to different people. Junior Angie Houston said, "A true friend is a friend to the end." Senior Laura Brown's definition of friendship was "someone you can confide in when you need them most. They are the ones who will stand by you through good times and bad." Whatever the definition, friends proved to be an invaluable part of our lives.

It didn't matter who you were, everyone needed someone they could talk to and count on. Teacher Linda Milam said, "You have to be a good friend to have a good friend. A good friend is someone you can rely on throughout the years."

Many students realized that soon they would be striving to accomplish their own dreams and going in different directions. This meant parting from childhood friends. Senior Jessica Gayhart said, "My friends have been very important to me through high school, and even though we'll all be going separate ways, I believe we will always try to stay in contact."

In achieving lifelong dreams and succeeding in an important goal, it always helped to have that certain someone that could help to make it all happen.

Special friends Johnny Kindred, Keith Blaylock, and Sherry Smith give each other a hug. "These are my buddies. It is great having friends," says Blaylock.

Sophomores Vivian Swallows and Renee Gunnels enjoy each others company at a ballgame. Swallows says, "Ballgames give me a chance to spend time with my friends."

Seniors Aleece Cross and Tracy Houser are all smiles as they walk each other to class. Houser says, "Friends make life more exciting and a little more adventuresome."

Juniors Bethany Sweeney and Paige Thackston express a great deal of friendship at the homecoming pep rally. Sweeney said, "Friends are kind of like money. You always need them."

Many students enjoy going to school activities such as ballgames to be with their friends. Junior Marianne Ralphs says, "I enjoy going to school activities because I get a chance to be with my friends."

Seniors Daniel Maddux and Jason Burton help to cheer the Jets on to a football victory. Maddux says, "It's times like these that I like to have Digger around."

Waiting to have their pictures taken are senior Patrick Graham, junior Tammy Mahan, and seniors Wayne Pugh and Tina Robinson. Mahan says, "The prom was really fun. I have a lot of good memories."

Seniors Jessica Gayhart and Shannon Isaacson relax after dancing the night away. Isaacson says, "We all just two-stepped to the country music."

Waiting patiently to have his picture made, senior Travis Christopher has his pose adjusted by the photographer.

Taking a break from the prom festivities, Melody Jason Seiber and Melody Allen relax at their table. Seiber says, "This is the best activity that the school has had."

Stepping Out In Style

As April 21, 1990 rolled around, a frenzied excitement filled the air. It was prom time and juniors and seniors were getting ready. "The prom is a special time because of the formality of the occasion. We do not see much of that around here," said senior Kim Elmore.

The prom committee wanted to make the prom one to remember. Under the direction of media librarian Doris Graham, the committee met after school to put the prom together. "Stand By Me" was chosen as the theme and the committee members decided on blue, black, and silver for the colors. The gymnasium was to be the location of the prom and once the colors had been picked, preparations were underway to transform the gym. The walls were lined with black plastic and the ceiling with blue and black streamers. Silver stars were put up along the walls and a bridge was designed for the entrance. A disc jockey was hired to play music. "I felt like I was going to be thrown away when I walked in and the walls were lined with garbage bag material," joked junior Michelle Eaton. As the evening concluded, many realized it was something they would never forget.

Leaders Of The Pack

If you wondered who those people racing around with orange boxes on Halloween were, do not fear. It was only Student Council raising money for their annual UNICEF drive. The money collected was given to UNICEF, a group which aids children. In charge of the UNICEF drive was junior Maggie Burrer. She said, "The student body was generous. We collected one hundred dollars which will be used by UNICEF to help children."

This project was only one of many that Council made possible. Student Council was also responsible for Friday activity periods and the upkeep of bulletin boards. Their biggest projects were the football and basketball homecomings. Senior Kim Elmore, who served as football homecoming chairperson said, "I was proud of the accomplishments Student Council made with Homecoming 1990. It helped bring out the school spirit in everyone."

Council also sponsored the intramural basketball league and the video yearbook. Other projects included the November food drive for the needy, the Red Cross blood drive in the spring, and elementary field day. The student directory and televising the morning announcements were new projects for the group. Sophomore member Kent Smith said, "Student Council was for everyone, not just its members."

Junior Waynette Matthews helps to prepare the "Jet Gazette", the Student Council newsletter. Matthews says, "This is my first year on Council and so far I'm loving every minute of it."

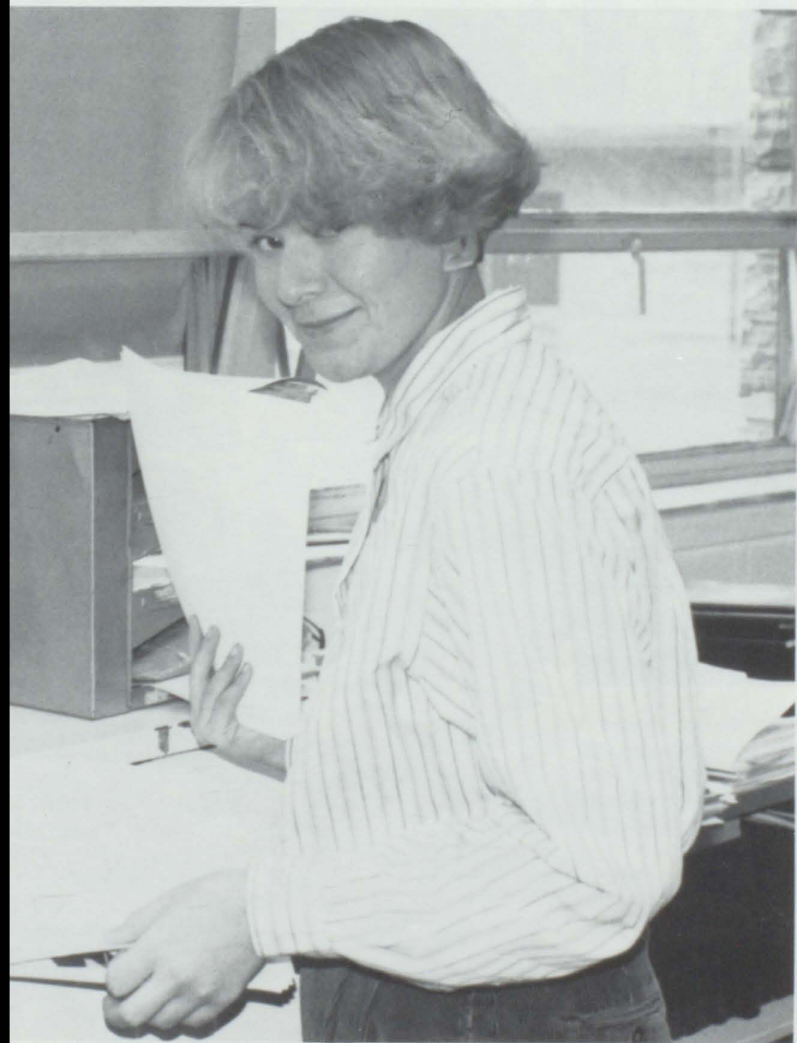

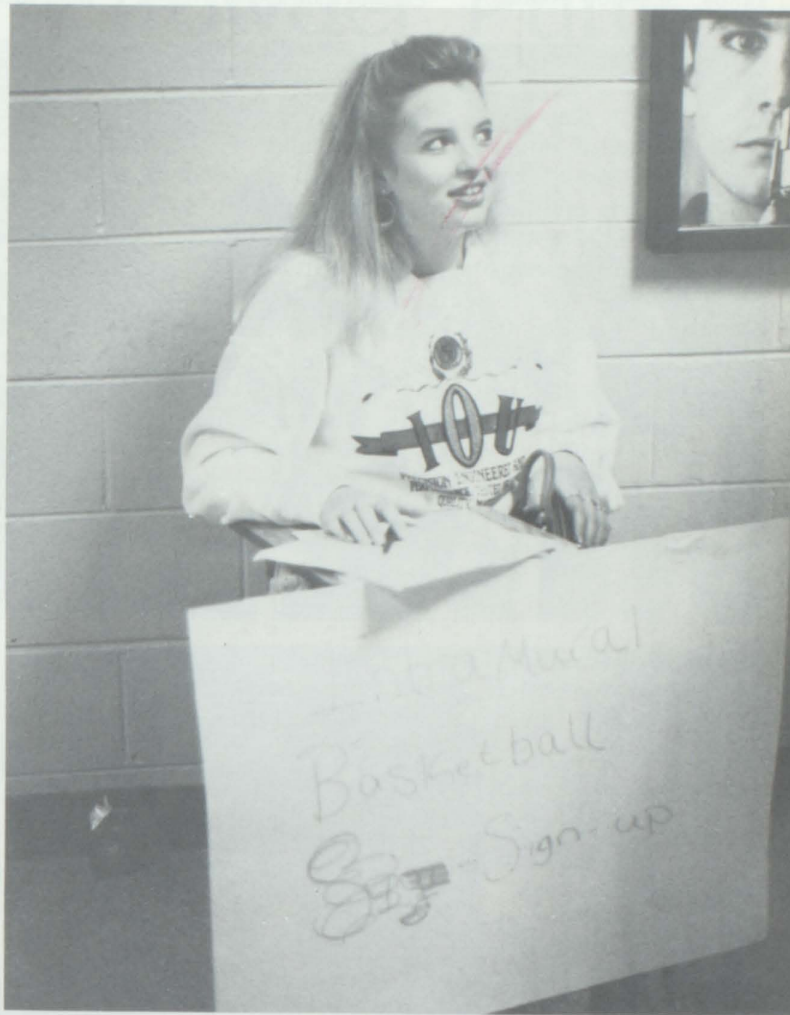

Senior Fredda Weaver sorts through activity evaluations. Weaver says, "The evaluations are necessary for us to pinpoint our weak areas and to find what areas we are succeeding in."

Seniors Stuart Millard, Daren Wyatt, Steve Smith, and Victor Franklin discuss possible activity period ideas. Franklin says, "The entertainment committee tries hard to provide exciting Friday activities."

Sophomore Lisa Oakes signs up participants for intramural basketball. Oakes says, "Getting people involved in intramural basketball is easy because of its increasing popularity."

As president of Student Council, senior Mark Krabousanos presides over a meeting.

Senior powder puff team wins the championship. First row: Aleshia Akins, Mandy Zimmerman, David Newberry, Amy Wilson, Susie Speich, and Meredith Simcox. Second row: Tammy Garrison, Mark Krabouanos, Shannon Isaacson, Steve Smith, Dena Houston, Kristin Kemmer, and Jason Kemmer. Third row: Charlotte Hayes, Michelle Altum, Valorie Buck, Anne Smith, Leah Upchurch, Krystal England, Kim Elmore, and Heather Triplett.

Senior Meredith Simcox makes a run for the end zone as her teammates guard her from the opposing sophomore team. Simcox says, "Powder puff was a lot of fun, even though it required a lot of work from each team."

Sophomore Becky Seiber makes a move against the senior powder puff team. Seiber says, "I wish our team could have won, but at least we had a lot of fun."

Seniors Sweep Powder Puff

The Sadie Hawkins festivities took place from October 29 to October 31. The students enjoyed an activity period for three days. The main activity was powder puff football. The Sadie Hawkins king and queen were also crowned.

"In the football games, all three classes had good teams, but the seniors inevitably prevailed," said sophomore powder puff player Vivian Swallows. The deciding game, which was a contest between the junior and senior teams, had several overtimes. When the dust had cleared, the seniors were victorious. Senior Valorie Buck said, "The juniors had a tough team and there were several times in the game when I felt like giving up, but we just threw a little extra effort into our playing and came out victorious." Junior Waynette Matthews said, "I really enjoyed watching the teams play. There was a lot of good spirited competition involved."

During halftime of the final game, seniors Eugene Adams and Tracy Simmons were crowned Sadie Hawkins king and queen.

Students get pepped up at the Sadie Hawkins powder puff game. Senior Rhonda Smith says, "The games were a nice break from class. It was also great that the seniors won."

Stepping In The Right Direction

As in years past, the band began practicing in August to prepare for the upcoming 90-91 season. The band spent many hours perfecting marching routines for the half-time shows at football games. Pep-rallies provided additional practice. Along with their halftime performances, the band also played in several parades. They hosted and performed in the Upper Cumberland Marching Festival. Drum major junior Jack Emery said, "We're really proud of the band. They've worked very hard this year.

The band attended three competitions this year; the Choo-Choo Classic, the Volunteer Classic, and the Admirals

Cup. The band received superior ratings at all the competitions and placed very well in individual categories including drum majors, majorettes, color guard, and drumline. Percussion section leader senior Kelly Pugh said, "The band has improved greatly over the last three years. As a senior, I am glad I have gotten to work with everyone."

The Jet Marching Band really worked hard to reach the peak of their success. Sophomore Kevin Saltkill said, "I am really proud of the band this year. We have proved to be very successful in the many activities that we have engaged in."

First Row: Jeri Adams;
 Second Row: Richard Marcum, Kevin Dean, Brian Douglas, Barry Brock, Darcy Tanner, Shelly Wright, Ron Neal;
 Third Row: Olana Burgess, Leeann Hamby, Jill Eastham, Valerie Burgess, Amber Hyder, Wendy Adams, Kristy Cottrell;
 Fourth Row: Samantha Qualls, Allison Lanquist, Candy Parrott, Holly Oakes, Jill Sherrill, Kevin Jolly, Suzanne Woody, Shelly Wyatt, Catherine Parsons, Sam Burton;
 Fifth Row: Fredda Weaver, Tiffany Pugh, Becky Bradley, Bill Dawkins, Tim Stepp, Ben Stapleton, Mike Burdick, Paul Norris, Robin White, J.R. Neely; Sixth Row: Judd Peak, Miranda Jones, Sharron Pratto, Jennifer Barrett, Julie Black, Tara Nelson, Kim Brummitt, Barbi Wisdom, Andrice Jones, Samantha Davenport, Lisa Thompson.

The C.C.H.S. drumline marches into position for the halftime performance. Senior Jason Young says, "The drumline works hard to keep the band in time."

The Jet Marching Band prepares for Homecoming activities. Junior Kim Brummitt says, "The flag corp has proven through various activities that we have what it takes."

Junior drum majors Jack Emery and Jeri Adams direct the Jet Marching Band onto the field during halftime. Adams says, "It's a great honor to be drum majorette. I love working with the band."

Playing with enthusiasm, senior Robin White says, "Jazz band gives us the chance to let our feelings loose through the music after an exasperating day!"

Jazz Band was a chance for students to interact with others after school. Sophomore Lisa Thompson says, "It's fun just being in a small group playing a kind of music we all enjoy."

The members of Jazz Band take a break from their rigorous rehearsals. Junior Emily McDuffee says, "This is my first year and it's a lot of fun. I really enjoy the different styles we play." Band members include Candi Parrott, Christy Sapp, Anthony Profitt, Sean Stephens, Denise Woods, Lisa Thompson, Emily McDuffee, Ben Stapleton, Fredda Weaver, Brandon Willis, Kevin Saltkill, Wayne Robbins, Robin White, Thomas Speich, Rodger Hargis, Judd Peak, Ben Roberts, Ronald Neal, Richard Marcum. Not pictured; Scott Campbell.

Playing To A Different Beat

For many years Jazz Band has helped to enlighten students about different styles of music. Junior trumpet player Rodger Hargis said, "Playing in the Jazz Band allows me to take on a different personality."

Each year, the jazz band participates in the school musical which is sponsored by the Jet Theatix. Last year the jazz band accepted the responsibility of learning and playing the music for "Guys and Dolls", a musical, in a short period of time. Playing in the musical also allowed jazz band members to develop a special relationship with other workers at the Cumberland County Playhouse. "Playing for the musical was unusual, but definitely something I won't forget," said junior Wayne Robbins. The group was also asked to perform for the musical "Annie Get Your Gun." "Rehearsals are inevitable." and "Practice makes perfect." were a couple of the phrases this group used quite frequently. Senior Kelly Pugh said, "Without hours of rehearsal our marching band would be nothing. The same philosophy holds true for jazz band. No one wants to hear sour blues."

Jazz Band creates an inspiring and musically varied environment for students. Sophomore Candi Parrott says, "I really love it!" Senior Christy Sapp says, "Jazz Band is a great chance for us to experience different types of music."

Junior Richard Marcum sits quietly, reflecting on the true meaning of jazz. Marcum says, "Jazz band is a great after school activity. Not only is it fun, but it also teaches you new ways of making music."

There were many students who went beyond normal expectations. Choir director Marty Gibson said, "We have a lot of very talented and dedicated students here. It's always nice to see them receive the recognition they deserve."

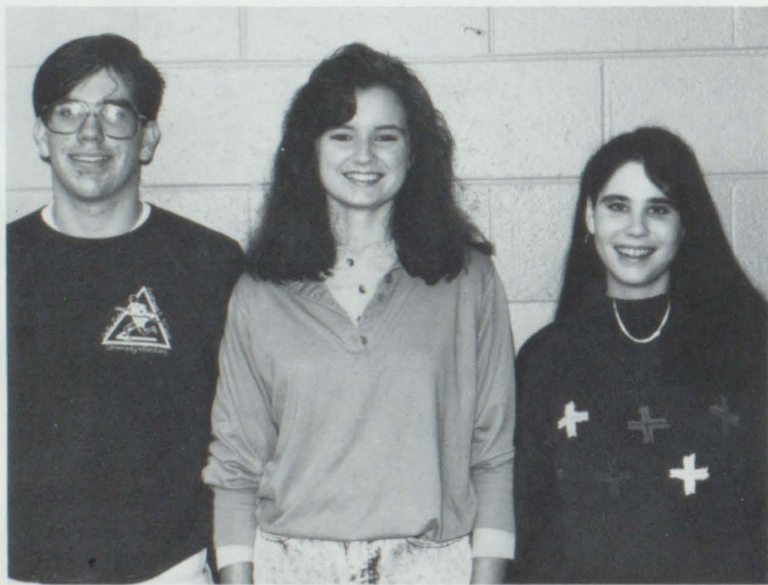

The girls' and mixed choirs worked very hard throughout the year. This hard work paid off when seniors Brad Lee and Misty Graham and junior Erin Bise and sophomore Ben Stapleton were selected as members of the All-East Tennessee Choruses. Lee was also chosen for the All-State Chorus.

Nine students were chosen during their junior year to attend Boys' State and Girls' State during the summer. This provided students with the opportunity to learn more about government.

Senior Tara Nelson said, "Girls' State taught us a lot about working together."

Governor's School gave students the chance to gain experience in their areas of interest. Senior Tiffany Tabor said, "It was the best experience I've ever had. It gave me a chance to work with other dancers who shared my love of our art."

There were also individual honors and awards given during the year. Senior Daniel Maddux was awarded the Daughters of the American Revolution Citizenship Award. Senior John Opfer was named a National Merit Scholarship Semifinalist.

Students who attended Governors School are senior Judd Peak, who attended the School of International Studies, junior Jeri Adams, and senior Tiffany Tabor, both of whom attended the School for the Arts. Adams says, "I thought it was a real learning experience."

Those selected as participants in the All-East chorus are senior Brad Lee, junior Erin Bise, chorus director Marty Gibson, senior Misty Graham, and sophomore Ben Stapleton. Stapleton says, "Making the All-East Mixed Chorus was an accomplishment which will help me in years to come."

National Merit Scholarship Semifinalist John Opfer discusses an economics assignment. Opfer says, "This honor has provided me with many opportunities. It has led to scholarships, to honors, and to a flood of worthless mail!"

Boys' state participants include first row: John Opfer, Micol Guigou, and Mark Krabousanos; second row: Judd Peak, Daniel Maddux, and Daren Wyatt. Guigou says, "Boys' State was unique in that we had to train both physically and mentally."

Seniors Prove

Senior Daniel Maddux is the winner of the Daughters of the American Revolution Award. Maddux says, "Winning the DAR Award was a big honor because it was voted upon by my peers."

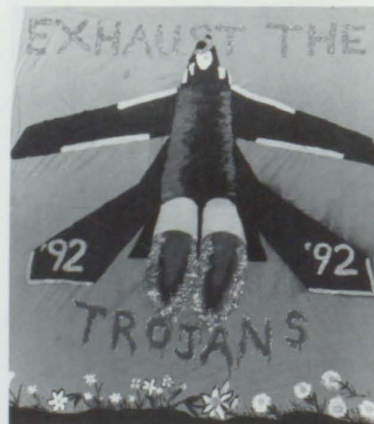

Girls' State delegates are Ruth Coley, Rhonda Smith, and Tara Nelson. Smith says, "Girls' State was a one of a kind experience."

Junior Glenn Zellner, senior Doug Monday, and sophomore Jenny Gouza participate in the chocolate drop contest. Zellner and partner Nate Carbaugh were victorious in the contest.

Junior Toby Newcome participates in the baseball bat spin contest. Newcome says, "Competing was a lot of fun even though I was dizzy for the rest of the day."

The senior, junior, and sophomore banners are displayed during homecoming festivities. The junior banner took first place, the senior banner received second, and the sophomore banner was third.

Seniors Prove Spirit and Win

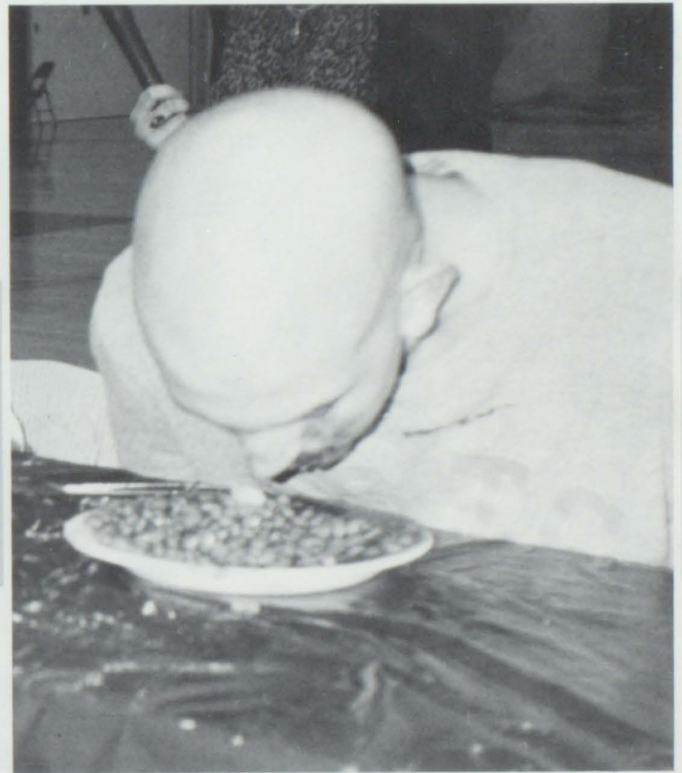

The festivities of homecoming week started with dress-up days. Senior Doug Monday said, "It was great to show everyone how wild and crazy one could get with their clothes. Besides, it cut out the monotony of wearing the same type of clothes every day."

The week's festivities led up to a Friday pep-rally and the class competition. Students participated in such activities as the wheelbarrow race, the chocolate drop, and the marble hunt. Senior Jeff Maddox said, "It is always fun to participate in class competition because you get to show the underclassmen who is the boss."

The bulletin board and banner competitions were won by the junior class. The sophomores took first place in the game attendance competition. The senior class won both the spirit and class competitions. The overall winner of Homecoming 1991 was the class of 1991.

"After the spirited pep-rally, the Jet fans were geared up to support their team," said sophomore Olivia Randolph. "This was probably the main reason that there was such a large crowd at the game," added Randolph.

Senior David Newberry eats toward a win in the bean eating contest. Newberry says, "It gave me gas, but it tasted good."

Senior Shannon Isaacson cheers during homecoming. Isaacson says, "The seniors showed a lot of spirit during the pep-rally."

Home Pride Extends Beyond School

Homecoming night festivities began with a ceremony honoring the troops in the Middle East. Yellow ribbons were placed on a yellow bow by students and teachers, honoring over fifty soldiers from Cumberland County. The crowd also wore yellow ribbons which were handed out before the games. The Barbershop Sounds then performed the national anthem.

Following the Lady Jets game, nineteen senior basketball players, managers, and cheerleaders were introduced. The traditional pinning on of colors then took place. The homecoming queen and king candidates were then introduced. Representing the sophomore class were Tiffany Christopher and Sean Graham. Christy Marlow and Brad Houston were the junior candidates, and Jessica Gayhart and Kyle Houston represented the seniors. The 1991 king and queen were Kyle Houston and Jessica Gayhart.

The Lady Jets extended a twelve game winning streak by beating the Soddy Daisy Trojanettes 98-45. The Jets were also successful in defeating Soddy Daisy with a score of 98-76. Senior Jennifer Yoder said, "The senior players have put in a lot of hard work and practice over the last few years. I'm glad our determination payed off in our homecoming game victories."

The 1991 Basketball Homecoming king and queen are seniors Kyle Houston and Jessica Gayhart. Houston says, "Being named homecoming king was both an honor and a surprise."

Members of the Barbershop Sounds, Brad Lee, Marty Gibson, Sean Turner, Ben Stapleton, Scott Hawn, Ben Roberts, and Roger Carter, perform the national anthem for homecoming night.

Senior Jennifer Bass scores a basket in the Lady Jets homecoming victory over Soddy Daisy. Bass says, "All of the seniors had a really good game, so that made homecoming even more exciting."

Senior Charles Scarbrough attempts a basket during the homecoming game. Scarbrough says, "Because it's homecoming, there's always an extra incentive to win."

Sophomore Tera Bayless and senior Tracy Houser perform their dance routine. Houser says, "The crowd always has a lot of spirit on homecoming."

Receiving hugs from juniors Kelly Wheeler and Kristen York, senior Jennifer Yoder says, "A homecoming victory means a lot when you're a senior."

Senior Roger Carter places third with his rendition of Elvis Presley's "All Shook Up". Carter says, "I was glad that the crowd seemed to like my act."

Sophomore Mandy Barnett and her band Swift Current perform the song "Proud Mary". Barnett says, "Our goal wasn't to win the contest, but to entertain."

Performing her dance routine, sophomore Samantha Davenport says, "Learning the routine took a lot of practice, but I really enjoyed performing in the show."

Members of the Barbershop Sounds, Scott Hawn, J.J. Buckner, Ben Roberts, Brad Lee, Sean Turner, Roger Carter, Ben Stapleton, and James Keck, perform "Duke of Earl".

Harmonizing Performances

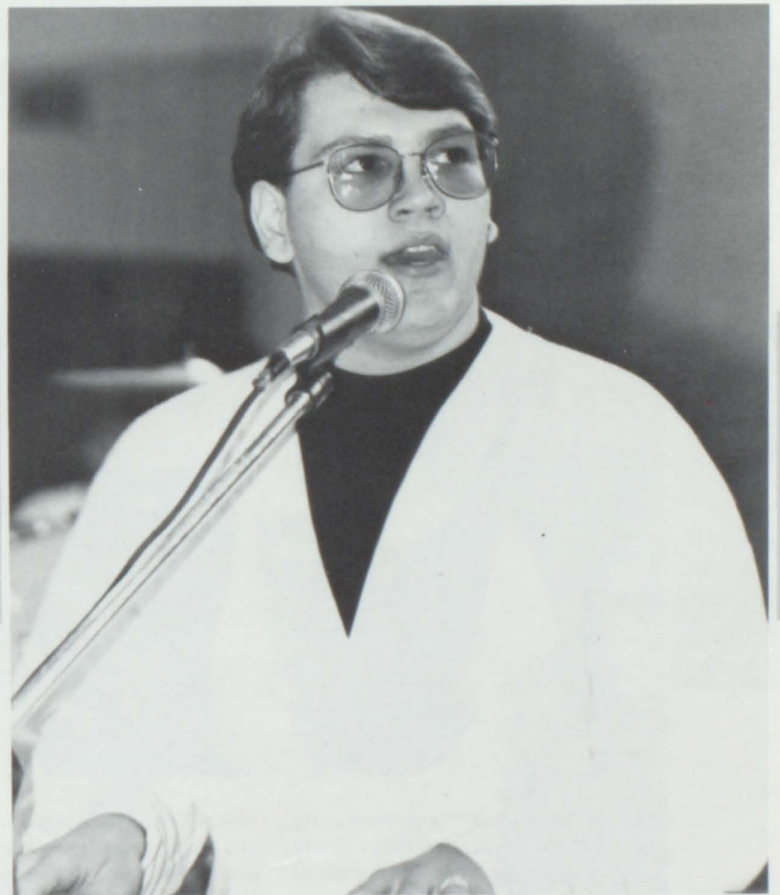

Each year the talent show gives students a chance to display their talents. This year, nineteen acts were performed in the show ranging from an Indian dance to popular ballads to 50's-style harmonizing. The emcees of the show were seniors Becky D'Armond and Jimmy Sutton.

Taking third place was senior Roger Carter. Carter did his impression of Elvis Presley, singing "All Shook Up." Carter said, "I just did it to have fun, but placing made it even better."

Senior Brad Lee placed second. Lee, who sang "Candle In the Wind," said, "I was really shocked when I heard that I had placed, but it felt good to know that people enjoyed my singing."

The first place winner was sophomore Mandy Barnett and the band Swift Current. The band's first performance was of the song "Joey." They ended the talent show with the song "Proud Mary." Barnett said, "I was very happy when we won, and I felt really fortunate to have such a good band."

Seniors Jimmy Sutton and Becky D'Armond serve as emcees for the talent show. Sutton says, "It's fun to watch the talented students and be able to go crazy at the same time."

Singing "Candle in the Wind," senior Brad Lee places second. Lee says, "It was the first time I had ever played for an audience, so I was really nervous."

Students Juggle Jobs

In addition to their responsibilities at school, some students were employed at various businesses in town. There were many different reasons for having jobs after school or on weekends. For some, it was the money they earned that motivated them to work. For others, their job was used as a tool to help in preparing for future careers. Sophomore Amber Simcox said, "Having a job allowed you more freedom."

An issue in the legislature was whether or not students were working too many hours. Senior Toni Early said, "I don't think that having a job affected my grades. If anything, I believe that the responsibility I learned helped me in my studies."

Not everyone had a job, however. Some did not have the time to spare, while others were not interested in working during school. Many preferred summer jobs. Junior Makesha Davenport said, "I prefer to have a summer job rather than working during school. It would be hard for me to go to school and then to work afterwards."

"May I help you?" is a frequently used phrase for seniors Nikki Frady and Scott Bandy while they work at Druther's Restaurant.

Senior Scott Hawn registers a customer's purchases over the electronic scanner at Wal-Mart. Many students found that department stores and restaurants served as a convenient job location.

Senior Steven Allred works at the Bookshelf in Highland Square Mall. "Learning to balance my job and my studies has been hard."

Sophomore Teresa Swallows and juniors Jennifer Slagle and Eddie Nobels prepare a customer's order at Har-dee's. "A part-time job is sometimes hard to handle," says Slagle.

As a cashier at Kroger, sophomore Billy Gluff waits for the next customer to come through his line. Gluff says, "I'm moving up the corporate ladder."

Junior Jack Emery and sophomore Barry Brock head to an afternoon soccer practice. Brock says, "It's a good sport for getting in shape and our coaches were really great."

Heading to the band room before school are sophomores Candi Parrott and Tammie Hood. Parrott says, "Band is a great way to see your friends."

Seniors Kim Elmore and Samantha Sherrill get reacquainted at a 4-H picnic. Elmore says, "4-H is a great way to make friends."

During the Christmas parade, senior clarinet player Sean Turner marches with the Jet Marching Band. He says, "Marching in parades helped us display our talents to a broader spectrum of people."

Before a play begins, junior Seanna Parrish relaxes in the dressing room of the Cumberland County Playhouse. "Participating at the playhouse is a really good way to meet new people and is also quite an experience."

Going The Extra Mile

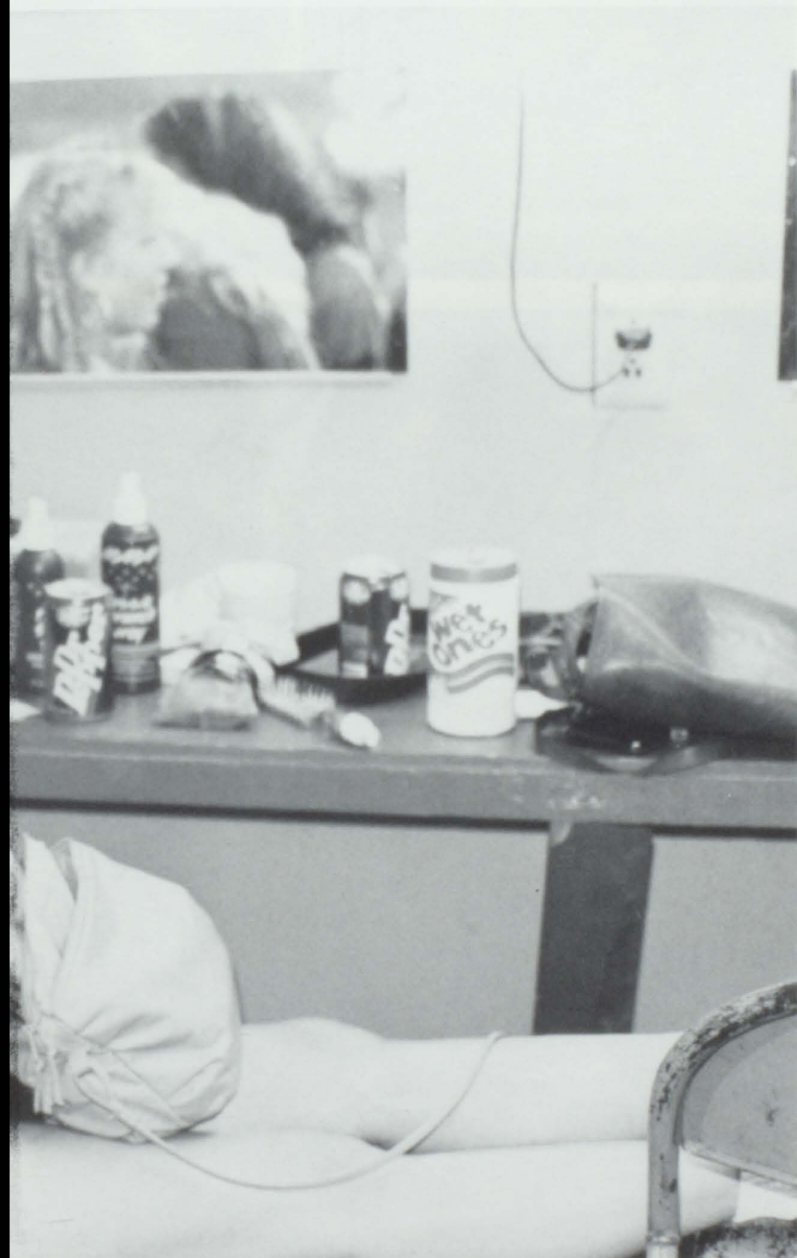

Students not only had social activities at school, but out of school as well. Often, students tried to keep school functions and free time separated. Junior Doug Ashburn said, "I really like to go out and snow ski in my spare time."

School related activities such as band, basketball, football, and cheerleading were enjoyed by many as an optional way to spend their time. Senior Sandra Fields said, "My extra curricular activities consist of working at Kroger, playing and practicing my band instrument and spending as much time with my boyfriend as I can."

Some students believed their free time was the only way of survival. Senior Marina Privett said, "Without my free time, my mind would explode from academic pressures." Others liked to expand their knowledge by taking part in school related activities provided for them. Senior Ruth Coley said, "Math Club has given me the opportunity to meet others who share an interest in mathematics."

Having free time gave students the time they needed for activities outside of school. "I value my free time because it helps me unwind and it allows me to take part in the things I enjoy," said junior Dewayne Davis.

Preparing for her part in the Tansi Haunted Stables, senior Hedy McNeil applies her makeup. McNeil says, "Even though the Haunted Stables took some of my free time, I still enjoyed participating in it."

“No Business Like Show Business”

There's no business like show business as many found out when they auditioned for the Jet Theatrix production of "Annie Get Your Gun". Chosen by director Ginger Hulbert, the musical told the tale of sharpshooter Annie Oakley (sophomore Mandi Barnett) as she travels with Buffalo Bill's (senior Scott Hawn) Wild West Show and falls in love with the star attraction, Frank Butler (senior Jeff Jones). "I think Annie was a good role for me because I'm a lot like her," said Barnett.

Junior Jack Emery played Charlie Davenport and senior

Holli Herron played Dolly Tate. Senior Jimmy Sutton portrayed Chief Sitting Bull. The cast was rounded out by numerous townspeople, cowboys, and Indians. "The play was a great experience which I will always remember," said senior Christie Garrett.

Students volunteered and were recruited to handle all the backstage work including props, sets, lighting, sound, and music. Sophomore Brandon Willis said, "Playing in the pit was fun and dangerous because we were always waiting for someone to fall in on us."

Colonel Buffalo Bill (senior Scott Hawn) and Charlie Davenport (junior Jack Emery) think of ways to fund Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show. Hawn says, "There's no business like show business."

An array of Indians surround Wild Horse (senior Shane Smiddie) as he begins his ceremonial dance. Smiddie says, "The play gave everyone a chance to show off their talents."

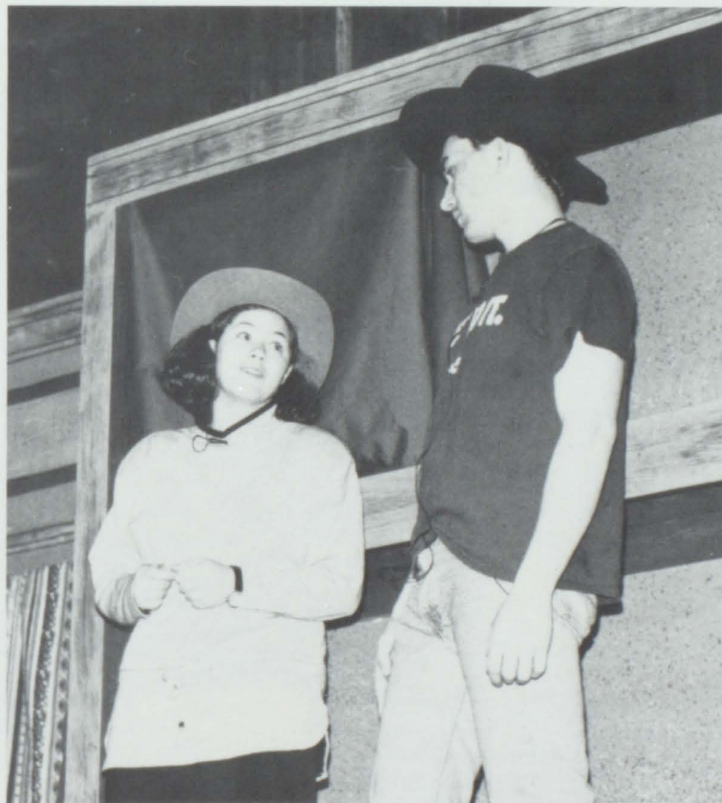

Annie Oakley (sophomore Mandy Barnett) tells Ms. Wilson (senior Jessica Gayhart) she can empty her gun on Dolly Tate (senior Holli Herron).

Cast members get excited about Buffalo Bill coming to town. Senior Sean Turner says, "The play was the hardest, most fun thing I had ever done."

Sophomore Chad Norris and junior Clint Parris load the off stage guns. Norris says, "I enjoyed working with the guns but I never knew when I'd fire a dud."

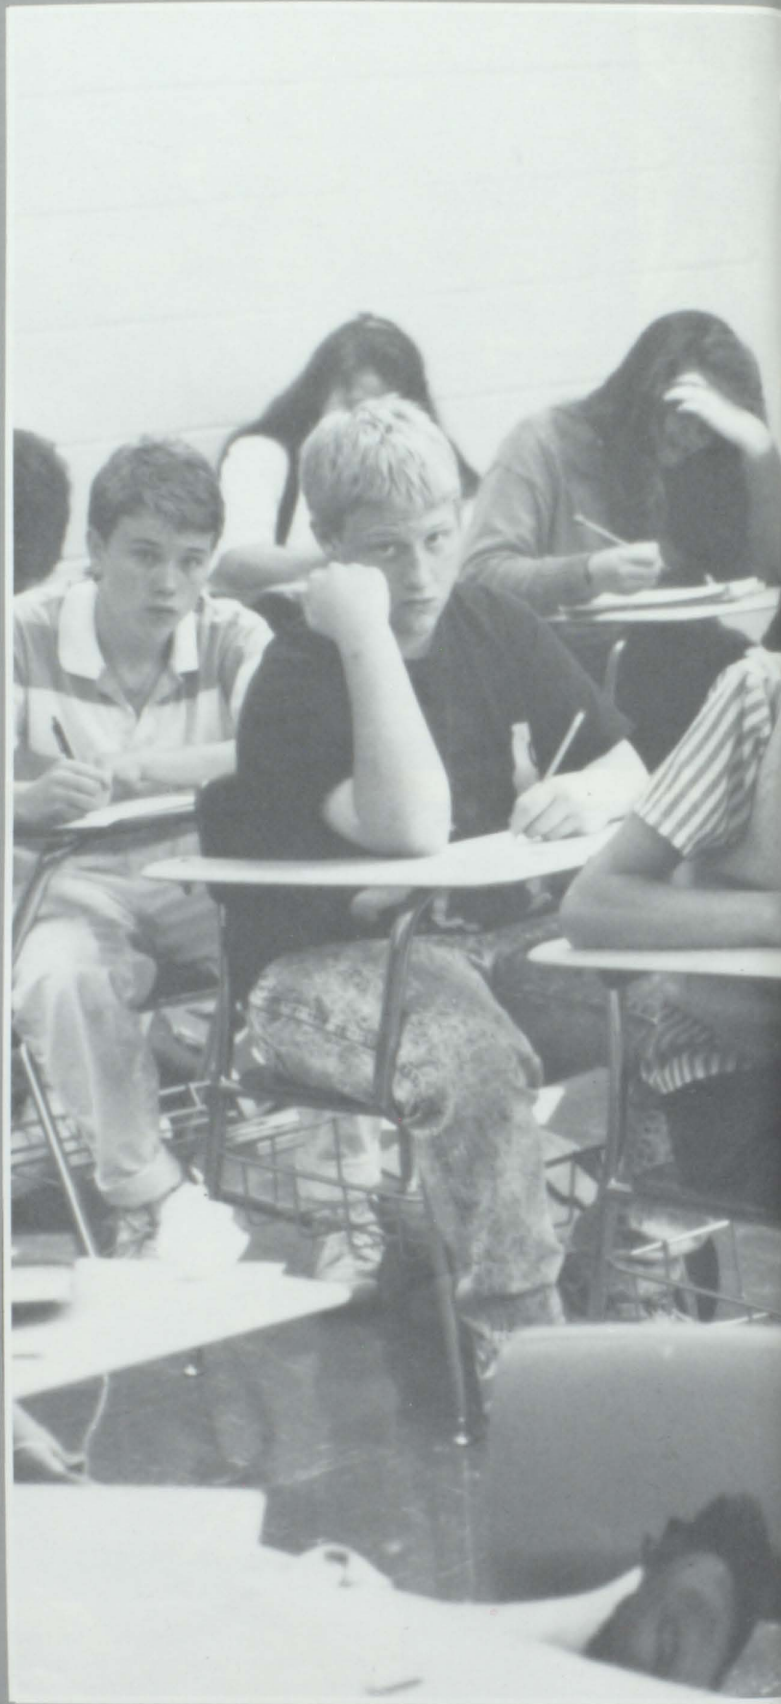

As they travel from town to town, Annie Oakley (sophomore Mandy Barnett) and Frank Butler (senior Jeff Jones) discuss falling in love.

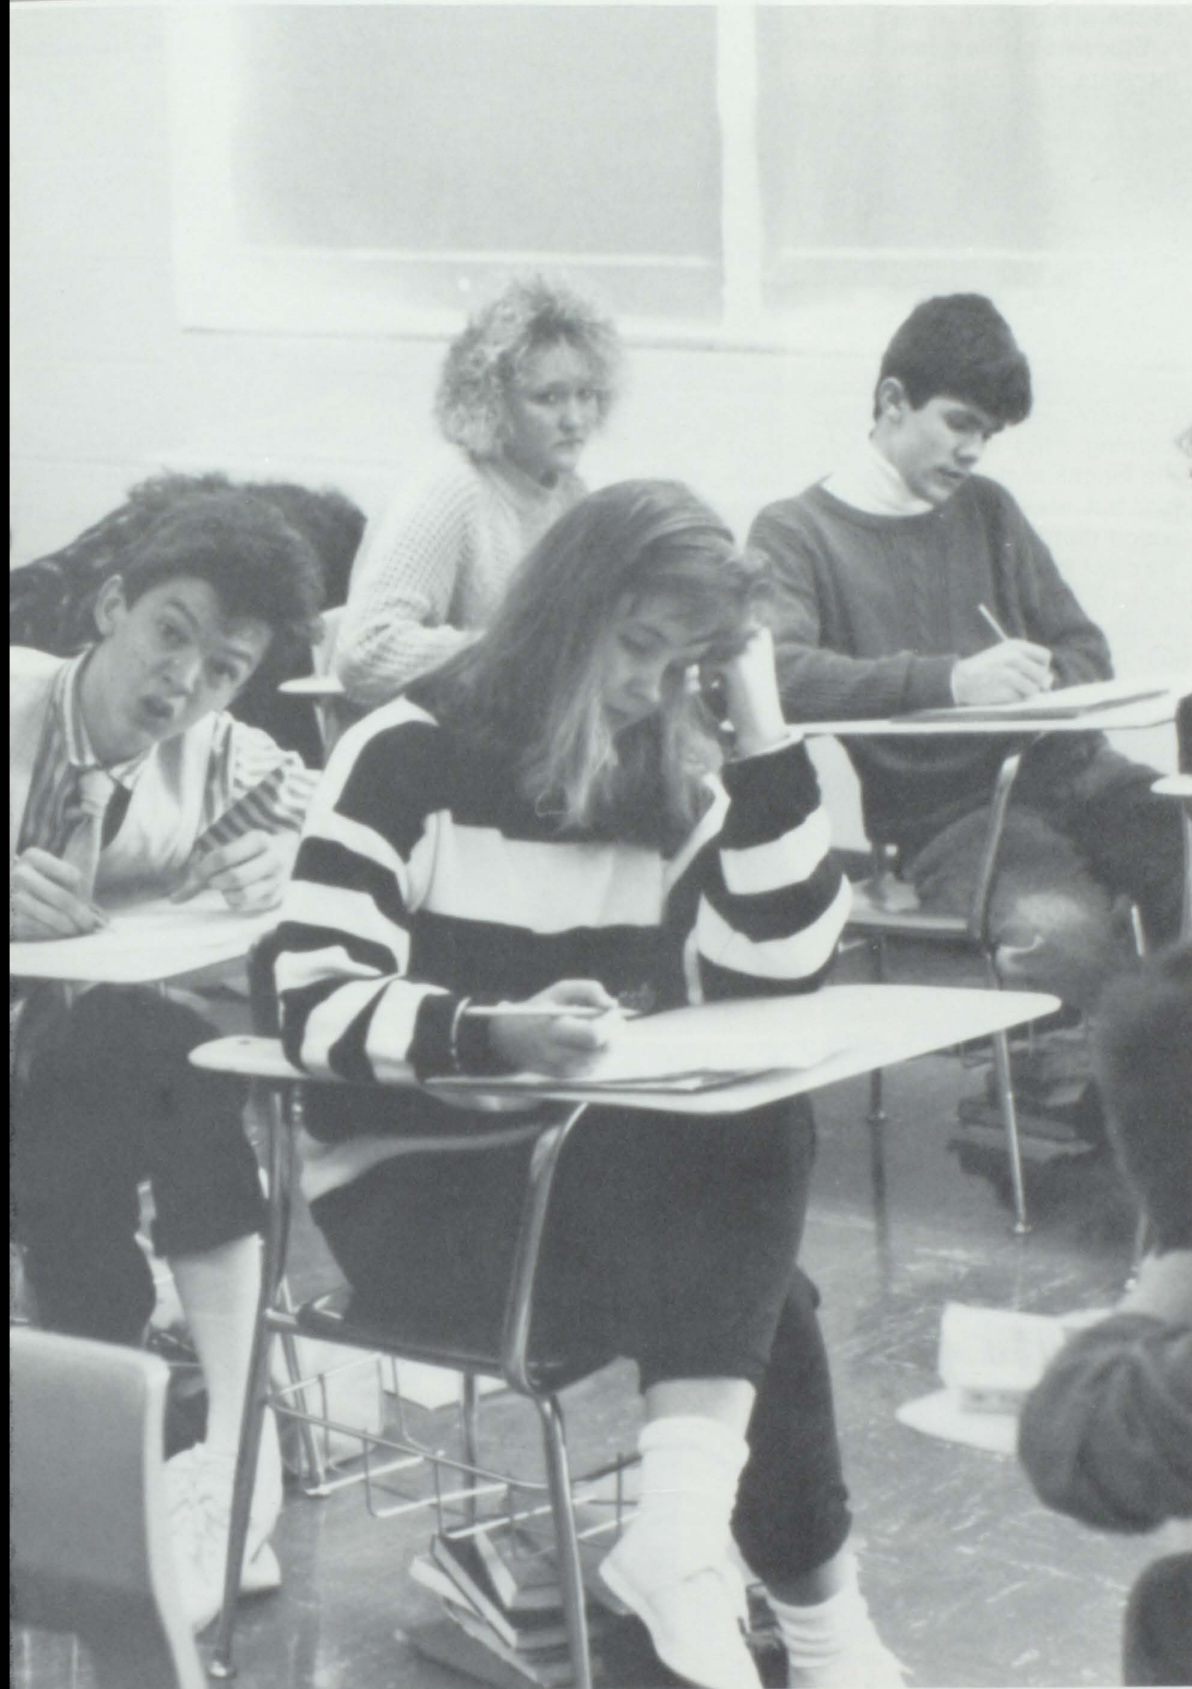

Preparing for the show to open, sophomore Brian Thompson sets the light cues on the light board. "Getting the lighting just right was a terrible task," he says.

ACADEMICS

Sophomores Trudy Rowell, Joe Young, Thomas Speich, and Kris Phillips take a test in Brenda Wyatt's English class on Nerd Day. Young says, "Well, my attire was the key to my success on the test."

Leaders In Any Language

Language was an essential subject to master if you wished to be successful in everyday communications. Several classes were offered to help students better express themselves. English was required each year. College bound students were required to take two years of the same foreign language.

English classes covered a broad spectrum of required learning. Each level, sophomore, junior, and senior, consisted of a curriculum which included reading, writing, vocabulary, grammar, and literature.

Senior English teacher Lou Crowder said, "Over the years, I've watched other English departments in schools around our area. From what I've seen, our department is way ahead of the others."

Students also explored their interests in foreign languages by taking French or Spanish. Candy Woods, French I and II teacher, said, "We have one of the best foreign language departments in the state of Tennessee. One improvement we could make is adding a language laboratory." Many students took the foreign language classes to meet college requirements, but ended up learning a lot about not only the language they were studying, but also the countries in which that particular language was spoken. Sophomore Tammy Phillips said, "French is a beautifully written and spoken language."

Candy Wood's French II students take time to work on their dialogue presentations. Sophomore Peter Hogue says, "Practicing French with the orange nerf ball was interesting as well as different."

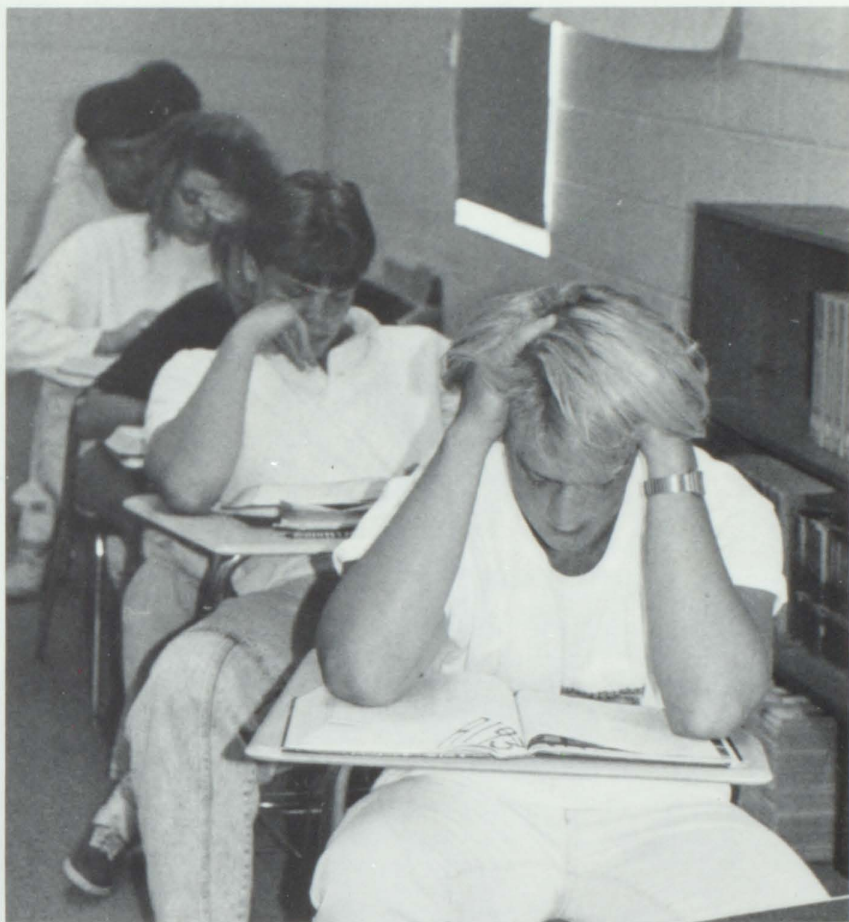

Jane Parris's French students work individually on conjugating verbs. Sophomore Michelle Stinnett says, "I really enjoy learning French, although at times it can be difficult to understand."

Trying to get their homework finished, senior Tammie Taylor and junior Kacey Hinch work in the library.

Junior Brian Adams does some last minute studying. Adams says, "I am currently trying to become more intellectual. This involves a lot of cramming before tests!"

Students in Brenda Wyatt's English class look over a test they have just completed. Sophomore Laura Goodwin says, "I couldn't imagine life without English. It is the highlight of my day!"

After completing their work, Bobby Backus and Stacey Sherrill patiently wait for their teacher's permission to go to lunch.

Dressed as a ghost on Halloween, special education assistant Sheila Rimmer shows off her costume. Rimmer says, "The students were very excited on Halloween."

Special Services Gain Ground

Special services, such as the VIP classes, provided extra attention and help for students that needed it. This atmosphere was created to better suit the needs of the individual student. "The VIP English classes provided intensive work in basic English skills in a small group environment," said VIP English teacher, Janet Bass.

Other special service classes worked basically in the same manner. They helped students overcome their difficulties with certain courses. Special services teacher Mary Payne said, "The students learn that they are not different from any other person, therefore they should be expected to take classes that improve their knowledge as well as their self-image."

In the special education classes, students were trained in different areas. This helped in the decision of which occupation they would best be suited for in the future. "Our philosophy is based on community-based instruction, which includes the vocational training at businesses in the community," said Peggy Paquette. Students learned specific skills such as shopping, banking, and using various community facilities to help them attain skills most likely to be beneficial to their future.

Juniors Sarah Hritz and Donna Murphy prepare to leave class. Murphy says, "Since computers are the key to our future, this class will be helpful."

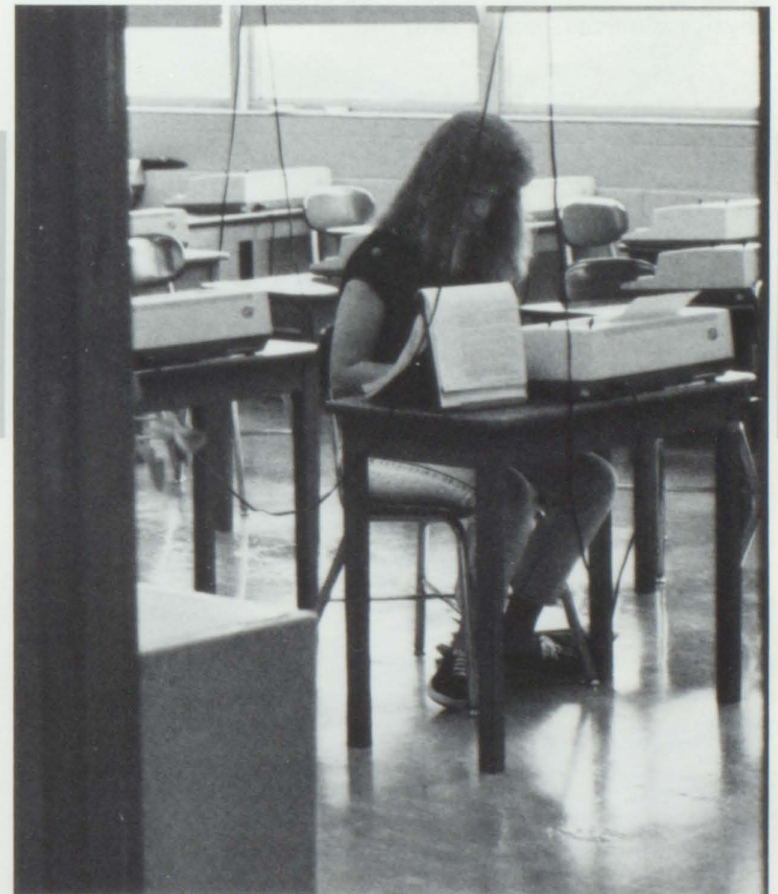

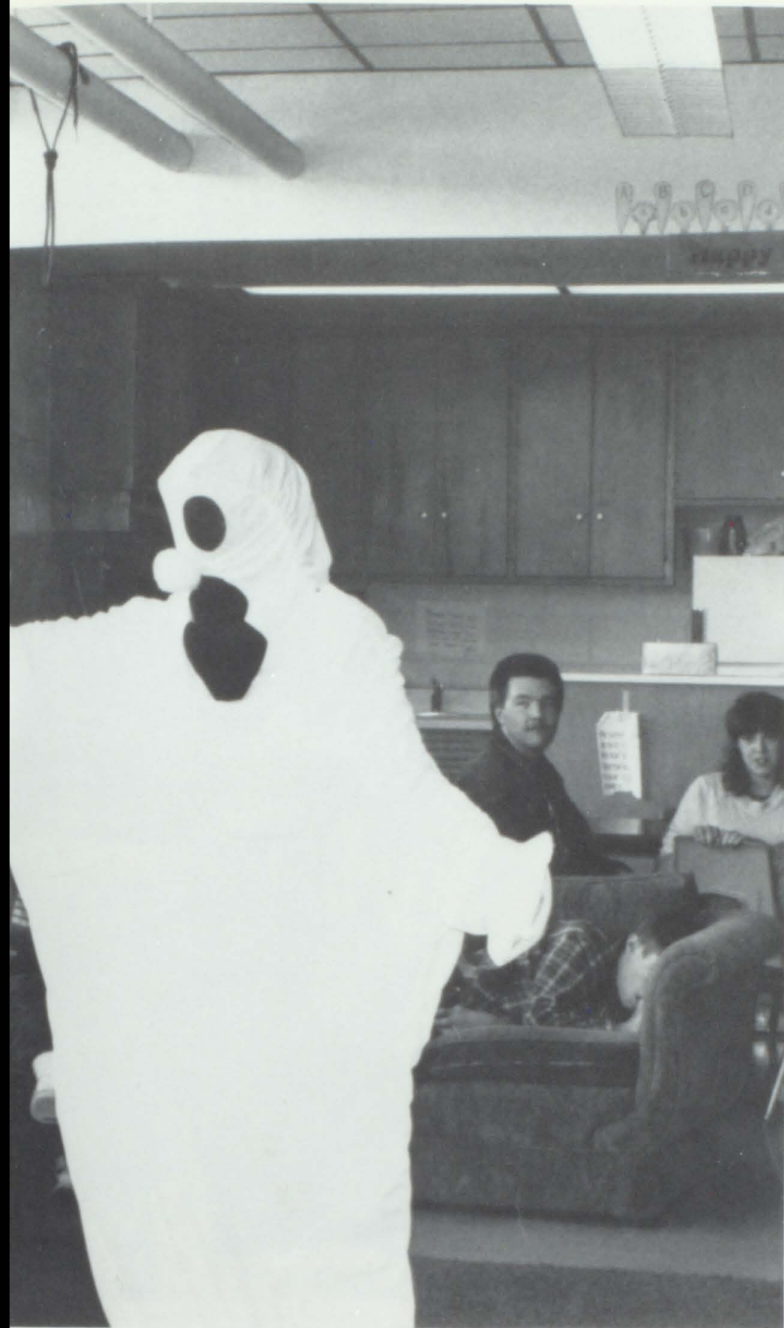

Senior Angela Lewis types in commands for the computer. Lewis says, "The computer helps me organize information more efficiently."

Preparing For The Future

Many classes were provided this year for those interested in preparing for a business related field. Students in business classes were taught the basics . . . typing, accounting, office technology, and word processing. "Computer science is a very worthwhile class to take. The future will require many skills with computers, so everyone should learn as much about them as possible," said senior Casey Cox. Sophomore Brian Green said, "I believe that it is very important for college-bound students to take typing. The skills I learned have also proven to be very helpful in writing reports for other classes."

Computer science teacher Brenda McDonald said, "Most of the business courses are hands-on experiences; that is, learning how to type, use the computer, use the adding machine and calculator." Some students were motivated to take these courses because of an interest in business occupations. Sophomore Jennifer Cottrell said, "I took record keeping because I feel that the knowledge I have acquired will be helpful in some of the careers I might choose."

In typing teacher Judy Turner's room after school, sophomore Amy Davis makes up a typing class she has missed. Davis says, "Making up typing is not fun when you have to forgo after school plans."

Activities Enhance Learning

Whether it was studying atoms or calculating the speed at which the hail storm fell, science students were busy learning about the world around them. "Just like other departments, the science department works as a group to plan and make sure our students are learning what is expected," said physical science teacher Colleen Wallace.

To help the students learn about science, teachers used activities to give students experience in the field. The classes frequently conducted lab experiments. The physical science students made mobiles to hang around their room. Physics students took a field trip to the Science and Energy Museum in Oak Ridge. Sophomore chemistry student Tammy Burgess said, "The labs helped explain the material we covered in a hands-on method which makes learning the material easier."

Though the activities were helpful, some students appreciated their science class as a whole because they planned to make science part of their career. Junior Kevin Turner, who planned to become a doctor, said, "What I learned in advanced placement chemistry and Biology II will be useful to my patients right before they go under the knife."

Sophomores Jason Reed, Andi Smith, and Thomas Mathis measure the density of liquids while conducting a chemistry experiment.

Students in Annell Shaffer's Biology I class discuss the environment during a group discussion. The environment is a growing concern for high school students.

Juniors Susan England and Jill Eastham work on completing a math assignment before the bell rings. "I tried to use my class time wisely," says England.

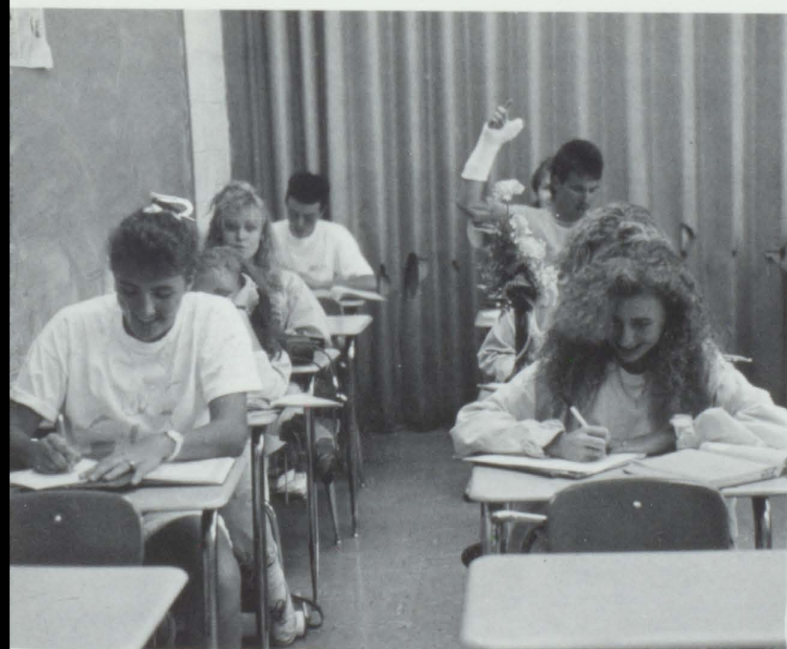

After conducting a lab experiment, senior Eugene Adams and junior Randy Burnett write a lab report. Burnett says, "The labs were interesting as well as educational."

Senior Samantha Sherrill works on an advanced math test during second period. She says, "Being able to use my calculator helps a lot during tests because I don't have to waste time trying to calculate the problems on paper."

Math Makes Leaps And Bounds

There are any number of classes that can be taken to satisfy the math requirements for those who are and are not interested in taking college courses. Sophomore Beth Baker said, "I am very satisfied with what I have seen of the math classes since I moved here. I feel that by taking as many as possible, I will be well prepared for whatever field I choose to go into in the future."

Algebra teacher Rita Keyes differed slightly with this opinion. Keyes said, "I believe that it is a mistake to force college-bound students to take extra math courses. Everyone does not need to know these subjects for their major in college, and our classes have become weaker here as a result of this change."

This is not to say that the classes are not sufficient for students who plan on going into an area of work involving mathematics. Math teacher Jim Dunigan said, "The classes here are sufficient for college-bound students if they apply themselves."

Math courses have increased in size over the past year. Junior Louise Maynard said, "With the many changes that the math department has undergone, it is well on its way to a successful future."

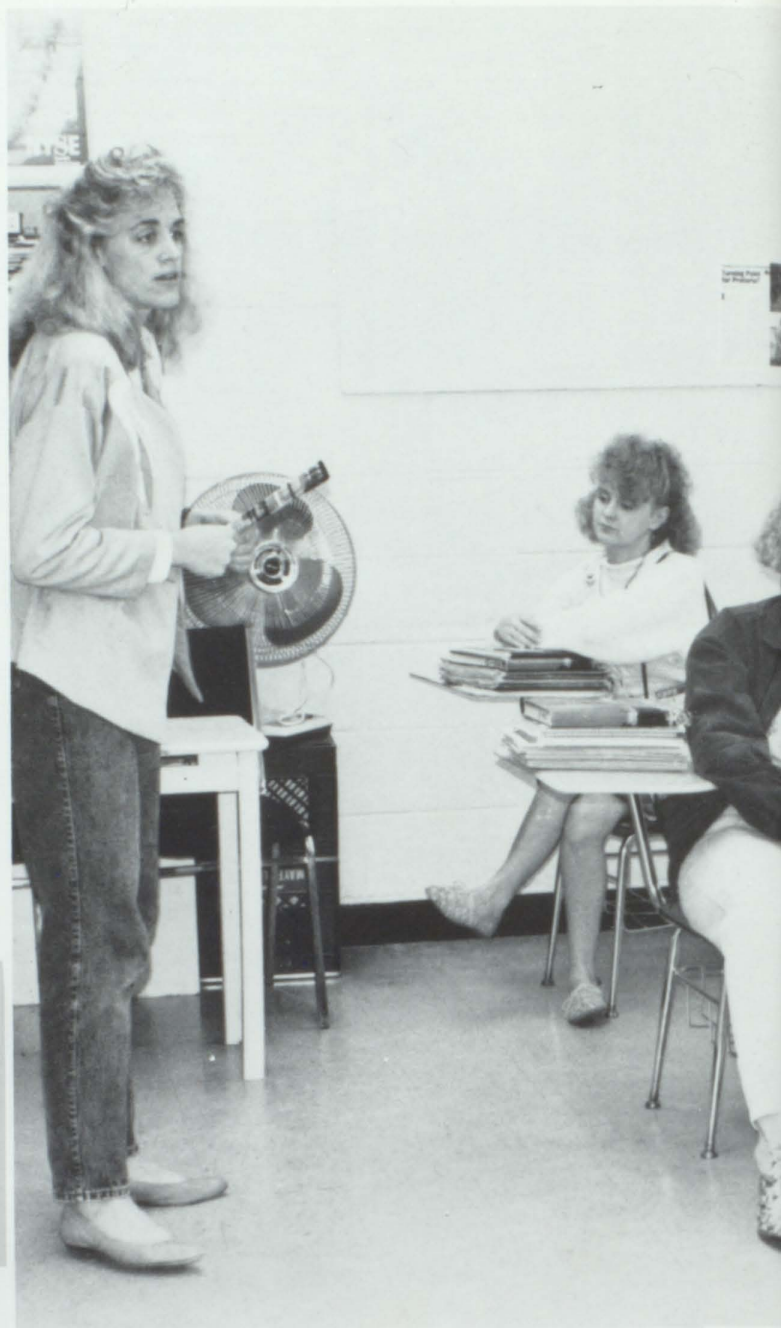

Trekking Through Time

Did you prefer the fall of the Roman Empire to the Revolutionary War? Or are ancient civilizations and political parties more your speed? Whatever event in the past might have gained your interest, the odds are you probably learned about it first in world or American history.

"History is essential to everyday living because it shows us the mistakes of the past and helps us avoid repeating those mistakes," said world history student Becky Seiber. Junior Jenny Bolin, who took both world and American history said, "Mr. Parsons and Mr. Davis were both terrific teachers. History was one of my favorite subjects and I was very satisfied with my education in that area."

While some students pursued a history credit, seniors completed their social studies credit requirements with half a credit of economics. This course taught students how to deal with financial matters. Students reacted to the subject differently. Senior Jason Kemmer said, "Economics was a great class, but it made no 'cents'."

Other classes were also offered to satisfy the social studies requirements. Psychology and sociology were two of these classes. Sophomore Monica Graham said, "I feel that sociology helped me to learn more about the everyday problems which I face. I believe that I will benefit from my experiences."

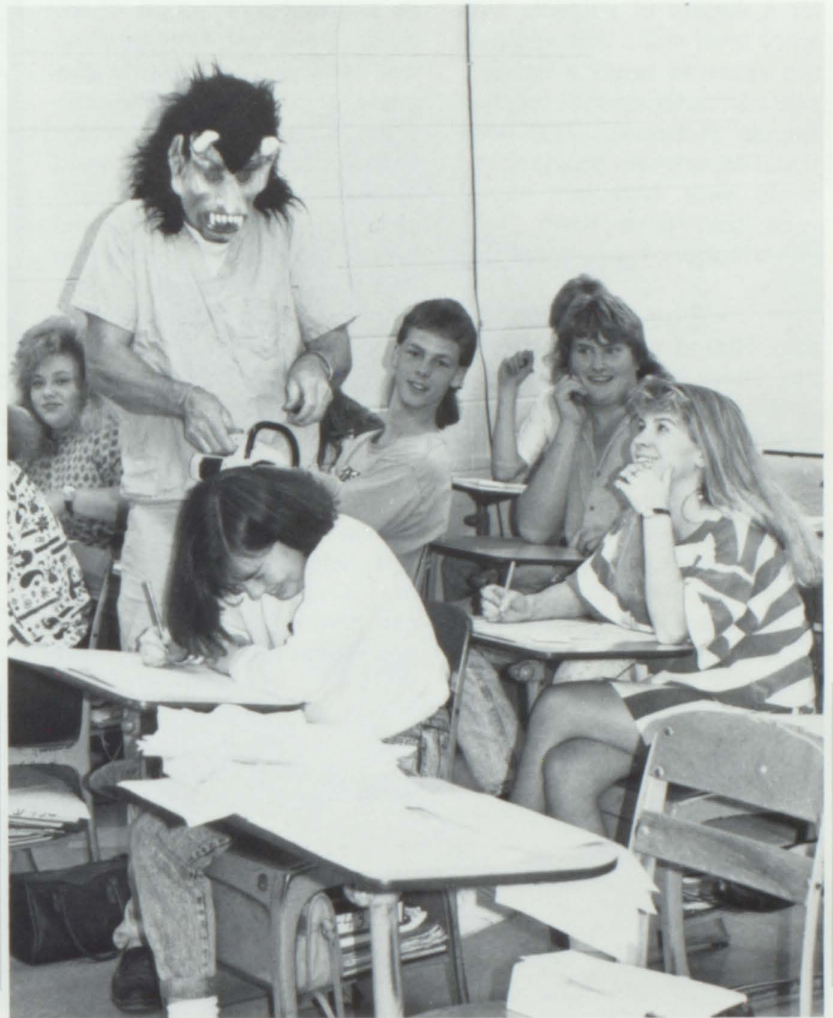

Senior Tina Rimmer prepares to copy her economics assignment down. She says, "I agree that economics should be a requirement to graduate."

Peggy Thomas's first period sociology students watch a movie about teen suicide. Senior Cassandra Murray said, "Starting your day out with movies about suicide can be very depressing."

Students listen as Teresa Sherrill lectures on economics. Senior G.G. Lewis says, "Economics is a really great class. Ms. Sherrill is a very good teacher."

History teacher J.C. Davis, disguised as a ghoul, jokingly saws junior Lisa Lewis's head off. As a witness to the event, junior Missy Hayes says, "Mr. Davis's sense of humor makes history class much more exciting."

To get additional information on the movie her class is watching, senior Deborah Hadley opens her book to the accompanying lesson.

Experience Steers Knowledge

"The vocational classes offer a variety of subjects with entry level skills that will help the students begin a career," said computer science teacher, Brenda McDonald. The vocational department provided students with hands-on experience that gave them more knowledge of practical job skills.

The vocational department also offered courses on adult life. These included family and parenting, adult living, and child development. These classes helped to prepare students for family responsibilities. Many activities, such as mock weddings, were used as teaching instruments. Students went through real marriage rituals. They dressed in wedding attire, held a ceremony and had a reception where there were refreshments as well as gifts. The students also made sand babies. The students were to provide twenty-four hour care for their sand babies to help them learn about parenting. This included finding baby sitters and having feeding times. Sophomore Beverly Davis said, "I learned a lot by carrying around the sand baby. It was embarrassing, but it taught me how to be a responsible parent." Janet Bass, a VIP English teacher, said, "The most important aspect is to help improve self-confidence and help the students learn that a high school education can prepare them for a more productive life."

During their study hall, sophomore Tammie Hood and senior Sonia Taylor work in the book store.

The students in Roscoe Freeman's building trades class completed this brick house located in Heritage Estates on Pigeon Ridge Road. Senior Mike Rimmer says, "The colonial woodwork inside made the house extra special."

Seniors Merri Lewis and Angela Bolin report poinsettias in Alfred Gilliam's horticulture class. The poinsettias are sold as an annual fundraiser during the Christmas season.

Trying to complete a quilt in her adult living class, junior Christy Wallace cuts out a complicated pattern. She says, "This is hard work for a first-time quilter."

Sophomore Brian Thompson and seniors Annie Stone, Misty Raymond and Patrick Graham ready themselves to begin an assignment in family and parenting class.

Visual Arts Add Variety

Art, drama, band, choir, and acoustic guitar were the classes students had to choose from for a visual and performing arts credit.

Art was taken by those with and without an artistic talent. Senior Rusty Mellette said, "Art is an expression of the mind, but obviously I don't have one."

"Drama is an outlet for those that are already full of dramatics," said junior Angie Lane. This year the drama classes undertook many projects including the play "A Death In Scarsdale" and the spring musical.

The Jet Marching Band competed at several competitions and received superior ratings at each event. They received an overall second place at the Admiral's Cup Competition. They also hosted the Upper Cumberland Marching Festival.

Under the direction of Martin Gibson, the mixed, girls', and general choruses performed concerts throughout the year. Sophomore Ben Stapleton, who sang in the mixed chorus, said, "With Mr. Gibson's unique teaching methods, we learned a lot about the music we performed."

An acoustic guitar class was added. Senior Jody Parsons said, "The class enhanced guitar skills and provided a new way to obtain an arts credit.

As part of his introduction to theatre class, senior Chris Foust participates in the Tansi Haunted Stables.

While in girls' chorus, sophomores Missy Christopher, Michelle Abel, and Tammy Burgess listen to director Martin Gibson's instructions.

Dressed for the occasion, sophomore Scott Rose scares visitors at the Tansi Haunted Stables as the Gory Gourmet.

Juniors Christina Edwards, Erin Bise, Margie Parsons, and Jennifer Slagle rehearse their mixed chorus selections for an upcoming concert. Slagle says, "Rehearsal is the key to a good performance."

Sitting in health class, sophomore Tammie Hood works on a health report. She says, "I try to complete a large portion of my work in class so I do not have to take everything home."

Students Stay In Gear

Students stayed in shape both mentally and physically as a result of the health, physical education, and driver's education courses offered. Carolyn Landreth, physical education and health teacher, said, "I think health and physical education were important in developing a lifestyle which will enable people to live fulfilling and productive lives."

Health and physical education were required courses for a diploma. To graduate, students had to have a half credit of physical education. Health was offered as an early bird class while physical education was offered during the summer to accommodate those students who could not fit these two classes into their regular schedule. Senior Kim Elmore said, "Taking physical education during the summer allowed me to complete my graduation requirements and it made me one heck of a golf player."

Driver's education was not a required class, but many students signed up for it. These students were interested in lowering their insurance rates or becoming better drivers. Sophomore Teresa Lawson said, "I feel that driver's education was beneficial in becoming a more experienced driver."

CLUBS

Riding on the Future Homemakers of America float, senior Anne Smith waves to the crowd. "Clubs provide great opportunities," says Smith.

CLUBS

Making A Significant Difference

Interact was a community-help organization sponsored by the Rotary International Club. Members participated in a number of activities. They sold ghost grams for Halloween to raise money and put together fruit baskets for needy families. They also donated presents to needy families during Christmas.

Sophomore Cammie Netherton said, "I feel as though I have gained a lot by being in Interact. Helping others helps you realize that you have significance in this world." Senior Misty Graham, club president, said, "Because Interact is a service organization, our goal was to be involved in projects in school as well as in the community. With the help of our sponsors and active participation by members, we were able to accomplish this task and take pride in the success of our club."

Members met during activity periods and after school to plan and carry out scheduled activities. Junior Makesha Davenport said, "Staying to take part in Interact activities was made more enjoyable with the presence of my friends."

Sophomore Teresa Lawson assembles Halloween ghost grams. "I'm glad the ghost grams were so successful. Not only were they fun to make, but the money raised enabled us to complete our annual Christmas projects," Lawson says.

During open house, which was sponsored by Beta, senior Kim Elmore speaks about the purpose of the Academic Booster Club.

At Beta meetings, members participate in various activities. Junior Sheryl Webb says, "We always use part of our meeting time for fun activities."

Beta Makes Seasonal Progress

"I was very happy with what Beta accomplished over the year. The whole club worked hard, and I think everyone involved gained some good experiences," said Beta president senior Lonny Higdon.

In November, Beta members donated food to make Thanksgiving gift baskets. These were then given to the Good Samaritans for needy families in Cumberland County.

During the month of December, Beta took on another worthy project by donating toys and Christmas presents to needy children. Junior Karyn Daniel said, "I really enjoyed that project because it made some children very happy."

Beta initiated a school-wide project called CCHStars. The purpose was to recognize worthy students who would have otherwise gone unnoticed. Beta secretary senior Kim Elmore said, "I think CCHStars is a very good idea. There are a lot of students who deserve a pat on the back."

Other activities the club took part in were sponsoring open house, selling SantaGrams, and decorating the school Christmas tree.

The Making of Tomorrow's Leaders

Vica was a youth organization aimed at helping young people enrolled in trade and technical education. They worked toward developing not only dignity but leadership qualities as well. Senior Scott Pennington said, "I believe that Vica helps you to develop a positive attitude toward experiencing new ideas."

Vica stands for the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America. Sponsor Ruth McCoy said, "I feel that vocational education is the strength of America. I think that every student should be enrolled in a vocational class at some time because it builds self-esteem and pride."

Vica was unlike most other clubs in that it also met as a class first, second, and third period throughout the year. Senior Scotty Swallows said, "Participating in Vica in a classroom atmosphere has been very interesting. Besides allowing us more time to learn, I believe that the extra time allowed us to create a better relationship between members."

Decoding The Economy

The Distributive Education Clubs of America, known as DECA to most, was an additional branch to J. D. Atkinson's marketing classes. Members learned about the economic marketing system, including how it worked and the benefits which could be reaped from it. Students traveled to various competitions where they used their knowledge to compete in categories such as general marketing, general merchandising, and fast food. "DECA gave me the chance to express my authority," said vice president senior Aleshia Akins.

DECA also gave some students the opportunity to leave school in the afternoon and go to a job while receiving a credit. "I was able to obtain the credits I needed to graduate and also able to go to work which enabled me to earn money," said senior Barbara Brown.

Teamwork Makes Learning Fun

Building trades was a three hour a day course that lasted the whole year. The class emphasized and taught not only teamwork, but also cooperation. The major project of the class was building a house. Instructor Roscoe Freeman said, "Collectively, this is the most enjoyable group of students I have ever had. They enjoyed working, playing, and learning as a team. This year's class makes me eager to come to school every day. My job is not work, it's enjoyable. Thanks to E.H., E.R., T.B., T.C., J.H., M.M., and R.P."

Senior Travis Christopher said, "Building trades is an interesting, fun, and enjoyable class that prepares you for the responsibilities that you will face after graduation."

Senior Eric Honeycutt said, "Building trades is good experience for those who would like to work in this kind of environment when you get out in the job world."

Seniors Mike Rimmer and Tony Moore discuss a Building Trades house.

Vica officers are Casey Cox, Lisa Russell, Scott Swallows, Traci Stevens, Byron Hamby, Shawna Simmons, and Rhonda Wellman.

Taking Part In Democracy

Young Democrats, one of the two politically inclined clubs, met during the first half of the activity period. The club gave many the opportunity to develop their interest in politics. President Russell Wattenbarger said, "It's important to have an understanding of politics. Not only for the future, but just to understand the present."

However, there was also a lighter side to the club. Though completely serious in their purpose, the club took part in lots of fun activities. "Young Democrats was fun because we were always having cook-outs," said Senior Beverly Conley. These cook-outs enabled the members to become more familiar with one another.

The members also took a trip to the state capitol in the spring with the Young Republicans and Student Council. They toured the capitol building as well as the offices of Senator Anna Belle O'Brien and Representative Shirley Duer. Senior Allyson Mayberry said, "The club helped us grow politically. It opened up outlets for us to express our political awareness and concern."

Senior Jason Kemmer takes notes on the meeting as he listens to president Russell Wattenbarger give details on the next Young Democrats activity.

Junior Kevin Hamby and senior Wayne Pugh listen to the discussion during a Young Democrats meeting.

Heather Triplett and Tara Allen lead the Young Republicans February meeting.

Young Republicans Pitch In To Help

The Young Republicans organization helped students develop their particular political interests. "I felt that it was important to decide upon which political party I am going to support in the future, especially with the current state that the world is in," said senior Tara Allen.

The students participated in several activities such as sending a care package and writing letters to the soldiers in Saudi Arabia. They also helped Shirley Duer in her 1990 re-election campaign. "I feel that the club unites students in a common bond and promotes familiarity between the members," said sponsor Ruth McCoy.

The club members also enjoyed a trip to Nashville, Tennessee, in the spring. This was an annual trip taken in conjunction with the Young Democrats and Student Council. Participants were able to talk with Senator Anna Belle O'Brien and Representatives Shirley Duer and I.V. Hillis. They also sat in on legislative sessions and toured the capitol. "The trip is an excellent way to learn about our government system and how it works. I regarded it as a fun learning experience," said junior Vickie Delvers.

Teaming Up For Fellowship

CLUBS

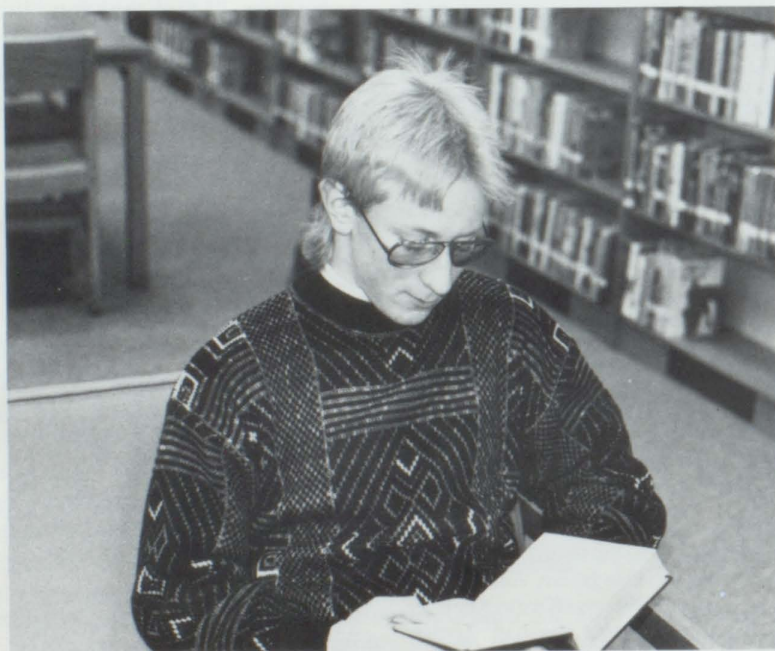

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes was one of the many after school clubs offered. The members of FCA met once a month. Football coaches Dennis Webb and Gary Cooper usually led the meetings. Sophomore Sean Graham said, "I enjoy the FCA meetings because the talks we have are very interesting." Roland Smith, pastor at Central Baptist Church and Greg Cater, ex-punter from the NFL, were two guest speakers for the group.

Sometimes meetings were held at Coach Webb's house where Christian videotapes were viewed. When meetings were held at Central Baptist Church, everyone was able to use the facilities of the building for fellowship and recreation. Sophomore Eli Hill said, "FCA is good because it provides you with ways to use your spare time to benefit yourself and others."

Preparing for a club meeting, junior Matthieu Mollet reviews a text in the Bible.

Sharing Spiritual Ideas

"The Bible Club provided students the opportunity to stay in touch with their faith in places other than church," said sophomore Tammie Hood. The group met during the latter half of activity period under the supervision of English teacher Lou Crowder.

"Meeting with others who share my faith allowed me to grow spiritually. I also made many new friends and was able to spend more time with people I was already acquainted with," said sophomore Beth Baker. They were able to discuss their religious views and questions within the group. Senior Sonia Taylor said, "Bible Club is a time for students to get together to study the Bible and pray."

"Bible Club is a lot of fun. It's nice to study with people your own age other than at church. Knowing there were others who believed in the same things I did made me feel more secure in my beliefs," said junior Waynette Matthews.

Preparing For The Next Step

"Upward Bound is an excellent preparation for the future. I feel more informed about my educational choices," said senior Kellie Carson. Each Wednesday students from Tennessee Tech University came and tutored students for one hour who were interested in attending college. The members gained exposure to campus life and also went on field trips to art exhibits.

"Upward Bound gives students many opportunities to pursue their academic interests. We also went on field trips and took various classes at Tech on Saturdays," said junior Dwight Burke.

Sponsor Peggy Thomas said, "The members share a sense of comradery because of the many experiences they have together." Senior Nina Johnson said, "Upward Bound is a great program. It would definitely serve to benefit more people if they were more informed about it."

Upward Bound member Tracy Birmingham takes time out to study. Birmingham says, "I enjoyed the field trips we took to different colleges."

FCA sophomore members Billy Gluff and Mark Hollingworth get a good workout by participating in a basketball game.

Upward Bound: Dwight Burke, Kelley Crews, Kellie Carson, and Tracy Birmingham.

Fostering Scientific Advances

CLUBS

The Science Club worked toward several goals. One such goal was to learn about scientific businesses and advances within our community. Another purpose included fostering an interest in science and science related classes. Also, the members were encouraged in the pursuit of higher education and careers in the scientific field.

The club participated in a field trip to the Science and Energy Museum in Oak Ridge. Senior Paula Burrer said, "I think my belonging to the Science Club has helped further my understanding of chemistry." Junior Holly Oakes said,

"I really enjoyed the time spent in the club. Even if you do not plan on a career in a related field, I feel that it is important to learn as much as we can about our world and how it is affected every day by scientific research and experiments."

Math club members display the winning entries from the geometrical Christmas scene contest. Sophomore Randy Smith said, "The Math Club is important because it encourages people to do well in mathematics."

Adding a New Touch

The Math Club participated in a number of activities. They sponsored the county eighth grade math contest and raised money to send students to Tennessee Tech for the state math contest. They also raised money to put up plaques in the halls. These plaques will display engineering scholarship winners, state math contest winners, and Math Club winners.

Sponsor Velma Buck said, "The major goal for the Math Club is to help students develop a positive attitude towards mathematics." Sophomore Sean Graham said, "I believe that my participation in the Math Club will foster any ambition I have toward a mathematically based career." Sophomore Eli Hill said, "Belonging to the Math Club this past year was a great experience. Raising the money for the plaques was difficult, but it is very gratifying knowing that the people they honor will get the recognition they deserve."

Creating Writing Confidence

The Writer's Guild was a club offered to all students interested in participating in the publication process. Club members were mainly responsible for the publication of the literary magazine entitled "Mirrors". Students who were not members were encouraged to submit material also. This annual publication included short stories, essays, and artwork submitted by students and teachers.

"Mirrors" was entered in the Humanities Festival at Roane State Community College. Club sponsor Jane Parris said, "We've won first place every year we've entered. We do a great job and I'm really proud of that." Writer's Guild president Anita Burnett said, "Basically, one of the best things you can do is get writing experience. Writer's Guild is there to encourage writing on every level." Writer's Guild was also sponsored by Brenda Wyatt.

During a Writer's Guild meeting, senior Amanda Underwood and juniors Chris Foust and Rodger Hargis discuss the progress of the literary magazine.

Science Club members make plans to visit the Oak Ridge Science and Energy Museum. Senior Michael Hodge says, "The club made science more fun."

Spreading A Sprinkling Of Spanish

"The goal of the Spanish club was to give students a chance to gain a better understanding of the language and culture," said president Misty Monday. This was made possible by fund-raisers for the club. Candy bars were sold to raise money. A Valentine dance was scheduled for the members.

Sophomore Scott Wright said, "The Spanish club is great to belong to. I enjoyed learning a language that is so universal." This opinion was shared by other members such as sophomore Sheila Matthews. Matthews said, "I feel more prepared to travel to a Spanish speaking country now."

Secretary Barbi Wisdom said, "Serving the Spanish club as an officer has been a unique experience for me." Sophomore Tiffany Christopher said, "I feel that I learned from the extra responsibilities."

CHESS — First row: Brian Ragsdale, John Opfer, Jack Emery, and Kevin Turner. Second row: Chris Free, Brian Ray, and Alan Reynolds.

Teaming up for a practice match, juniors Alan Reynolds and Brian Ragsdale play chess in the library.

Queens, Kings, and Checkerboards

"A horse, a horse. My kingdom for a horse," junior Brian Ragsdale said as he contemplated his next movement in an afternoon chess game. Often, one needed piece could mean the whole match to someone. "Not much can compare to the thrill of victory or the agony of defeat," said Ragsdale.

The chess team won third place in the Fourth Annual Oak Ridge Fall Scholastic High School Novice Competition. In March, the team traveled to Baylor, Chattanooga, to compete in the regional tournament. The members also competed in the state competition in March. Junior Alan Reynolds said, "Chess allows you to command an entire army against your enemy."

Members also competed individually in tournaments such as the County Scholastic Championship and the Cumberland County Championship. Junior Kevin Turner said, "My competitive spirit lacks only the patience of waiting to yell CHECKMATE!"

Paintings, Pops, and Pen Pals

"The French club provided students an opportunity to expand their international horizons," said French club secretary sophomore Anna Murphy.

Among the activities the members took part in was a trip in conjunction with the French classes to the Tennessee State Museum in Nashville to see the MASTERWORKS Art Exhibit. This included paintings from such artists as Picasso, Renoir, Van Gogh, and Monet. Sophomore Darcie Eischied said, "It was an amazing exhibit. I was really glad the club provided me with such interesting activities."

Other activities included selling candy bars as a fundraiser. Many members also chose international pen pals through the club. Junior Amy Swisher said, "The pen pals were a good idea. They served as an outlet to learn about another culture which was one of the purposes of the club."

Two senioritas, sophomores Tracy Benson and Ginny Gouza, show their enthusiasm to the crowd during the homecoming parade.

Thoroughly engrossed in the latest issue of Bonjour magazine, junior Makena Davenport and sophomore Amy Boston study during French class.

Preparing For Life's Responsibilities

CLUBS

HERO was a club which helped students become involved in many real-life activities. Junior Tabitha Norris said, "I feel that HERO is important because it gives you a chance to relate to what life will be like for many of us in the future."

Senior Vickie Phipps said,

"HERO gives me a chance to prepare myself for responsibilities that will arise later in life."

Junior Faye Hamby agreed with Phipps. Hamby said, "I want to be able to have skill and ability to take care of my future family, and HERO gives me the opportunity to learn those skills."

HERO participated in many activities during the year. The club assisted in the Jaycees Christmas Shopping tour. They also prepared fruit baskets for an area nursing home and held a breakfast for the children at Kids Incorporated.

Competence and Confidence

One of the main purposes of the Tennessee Office Education Club (TOEC) was to develop vocational competence in office occupations. It also served to help develop poise, attitude, and tact among its members. TOEC was composed of students enrolled in business and office occupation courses. The club helped students become more prepared to enter the world of work by providing them with a job skill and a certain amount of confidence.

One yearly event TOEC participated in was honoring the school's secretaries on Secretary's Day. This year TOEC also sent Christmas cards to the soldiers in Saudi Arabia. Senior Dena Houston said, "I was glad that we decided to send cards to the soldiers. It made me feel like I was really doing something to help."

Senior member Kim Tabor said, "I plan on having an office occupation in the future. This club helps me to prepare for the many challenges which will await me."

Service Group Offers Support

The Future Homemakers of America was a service organization which participated in many various activities throughout the year.

The club was especially active in supporting the American soldiers in the Persian Gulf. The members adopted an engineering company on the USS Independence. They also sent a thank you book and a banner to the 212th National Guard Unit. The club sponsored Christmas for people in the war area, and they also sold shirts for Desert Storm.

The club also concentrated on several local and school projects. Sponsor Geraldine Nixon said, "FHA builds community leaders." Junior Donna Murphy said, "FHA gave me the opportunity to meet people with a common goal." The members sold balloons to help raise money for the American Cancer Society. The members also made and delivered tray favors to an area nursing home.

HERO members, Vickie Phipps, Tonya Davis, Teresa Gollither, Melinda Scroggins, and Faye Hamby visit the Life Care Center.

Sweet Sounds Invade F-Wing

CLUBS

Most any day, one could enter the halls of F-wing during fifth period and hear an array of female voices flowing from the band room. "What kind of wonderful sound is that?" you might have asked yourself upon hearing them. It was the voices of the girls' chorus.

Under the direction of Marty

Gibson, the girls' chorus sang selections such as "Chapel of Love" by the Dixie Cups and "Lollipop" by the Chordettes. "The music we performed was fun which made the time we spent polishing it more interesting," said sophomore Tammy Burgess.

Besides the annual choir concerts and other various functions, this was the first year the group was taken to a competition. Senior Lori Burdette said, "It's been interesting to see the changes in this program in both the music and the activities we participated in."

Members of the mixed chorus provide entertainment at the open house. "Our "Supermarket Minuet" was a real crowd pleaser," says sophomore Barbi Wisdom.

Mixing Business With Pleasure

"Being in mixed chorus was a great way to have fun if you liked entertaining," said sophomore Candi Parrott. The mixed chorus, which met fourth period under the direction of Marty Gibson, was composed of soprano, alto, tenor, and bass voices. They performed a variety of selections such as Billy Joel's "We Didn't Start The Fire" and the entertaining "Supermarket Minuet", a musical farce about the perils of grocery shopping.

The chorus enjoyed performing at numerous functions including the fall, Christmas, and spring choir concerts, the open house on November 15, and the choir department's elementary schools tour. They also took their talents to competitions such as the East Tennessee Choral Festival. Senior Kelley Crews said, "Going to the competitions was new to me but nonetheless exciting. It was a good time to give ourselves a pat on the back."

Learning A General Concept

The general chorus met sixth period under the direction of Marty Gibson. Throughout the year, the members learned music such as the comical "Granny Got Run Over By A Reindeer" and the traditional Christmas carol "Silent Night". They performed at several choir concerts and also provided part of the entertainment for the student body on December 19, the day classes were dismissed for the Christmas and New Year holidays.

"Being in both girls' chorus and general chorus gave me two opportunities to learn about music; however, in general chorus we got more opportunities to learn through listening instead of through performance," said sophomore Misty Beasley.

Sophomore Jody Lewis said, "General chorus was a less concentrated music class than others which were offered, but we had more fun that way. We had more leeway with the music we performed."

CLUBS

Acting On Experience

"The drama club made many student's lives more enjoyable by bringing dramatic actions into them," said sophomore Bill Dawkins. The drama club participated in many events. Members helped put together the Tansi Haunted Stables and also worked backstage and performed in the school musical "Annie Get Your Gun". "The musical was a blast to work on. It took a lot of time and effort, but it was worth it," said sophomore Mandy Barnett who portrayed Annie Oakley.

Through the drama classes, many members were able to attend various play productions at the Cumberland County Playhouse such as "Tennessee, USA!" and the holiday production of "Peter Pan". Students also traveled out of town to see plays such as "Sherlock Holmes" at the Nashville Academy Theatre.

Members were not only able to view plays, they were also able to act in plays themselves. Scenes were performed from plays such as "Steel Magnolias", "Haiku", and "Inherit The Wind". "Acting in front of peers is tough because they are a person's worst critics," said junior Allison Grover.

Sophomore Jill Kemmer, juniors Jennifer Marshall and Junior Daniel Hepburn, and Seniors Brad Lee, and Jamie McCloud perform the play "A Dopey Fairytale" for the student body.

While at a 4-H get-together, seniors Bryant Henry and Sandra Fields discuss upcoming judging events in which they will be competing.

Learning The Four H's Of 4-H

"I pledge my head to clearer thinking, my heart to greater loyalty, my hands to larger service, and my health to better living for my club, my community, my country, and my world."

This was the 4-H motto which was committed to the memory of many club members. "We were encouraged to help those around us today by being the leaders of tomorrow," said sophomore Missy Ward.

The members participated in various leadership events. These included public speaking contests, citizenship activities, and judging competitions. "The 4-H activities that were available helped build character in a person. I enjoyed both the public speaking and judging events because I learned skills which I could use in many aspects of my life," said senior Samantha Sherrill.

The members also worked in conjunction with the local 4-H Honor Club on activities such as a trip to the Ice Chalet in Knoxville, Tennessee in the winter. "We tried to combine hard work with fun to keep everything interesting," said sophomore Danny Baisley.

CLUBS

Finding A Productive Path

Encouraging students to stay in school was one of the main goals of the Pathfinders organization. Sponsors J.D. Atkinson and Ann Looney helped members by discussing the advantages of a complete education and regular attendance patterns.

Members participated in activities which would help them in the future. They used job skill workbooks. Pathfinders also assisted its members in finding summer jobs through the Job Training Program. "Pathfinders is a good experience and will help me a lot in the future," said junior Sallie Wilbanks.

During a Pathfinders meeting, sophomore Robin Bowman, sponsor Ann Looney, and sophomores Romell Phagen and Kelly Bowman discuss the advantages of staying in school.

Stepping in the shoes of Alfred Gilliam, student teacher Adam Bastian teaches the agriculture classes. A native of Sparta, Tennessee, Bastian is finishing his education at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville.

Future Farmers Get A Rough Start

The Future Farmers got to work early repairing damage on the greenhouse caused by the August hailstorm. Students from five classes spent a strenuous six weeks repairing the damage. Junior Jerry Piercy said, "The hailstorm did some 'hailatious' damage." Despite the damage, the poinsetta crop was able to be sold during the annual Christmas fundraiser.

A new project for the members was raising four calves. The calves were bottle fed and cared for by the Agriculture Science II class. Sophomore Anthony Music said, "Throughout the year, the calves grew and gained strength." The calves were sold in the spring in order to fund the project in the future.

Other projects included attending the annual FFA convention in Kansas City, Missouri, and participating on various judging teams. Senior Scott Douglas said, "Competitions in FFA are good for people to get into because you meet new people and have a great time."

Making A Better Environment

Improving the conditions of the cafeteria was important to many students. The Youth Advisory Council made this task their goal.

Under the direction of YAC, speakers were installed in the cafeteria which enabled students to listen to music during their lunch period. The Prime-time Pizzas were first introduced to YAC sponsor J.D. Atkinson who helped the new entree find their way to the serving line. "We tried to make the cafeteria as pleasant a place as possible," said junior Kelly Wheeler.

Club president junior Emily McDuffee said, "Often, it was hard finding the time to accomplish everything we planned, but the improvements we were able to make were important."

SPORTS

The cheerleading squad expresses the feelings of all Jet fans as they display their "End With A Win" banner before the football team runs onto the field.

THE

LAP

Driving for a Victory

The Jet football team began preparing for the up-and-coming season by attending football camp at Cumberland College in Williamsburg, Kentucky. This gave the players a chance to become acquainted with the newcomers and to learn the responsibilities that were left behind by former players. The Jets played their first game of the season against White County and came out victorious. This was the first opening game won by the Jets since 1985. The victory over the Warriors began a winning season for the Jets.

"I'm very pleased with the way the season turned out for the players. It shows that their hard work really paid off."

— Coach Dennis Webb

The 6-4 record sent the Jets to the Nurserymen's Bowl in McMinnville, where they faced Warren County. Junior Tony Green said, "It is great to be good enough to be invited to a bowl game." The Jets had three District 5AAA All-District players: Chris Christopher, Robert Clarke, and Kevin Hedgcoth. Clarke was named player of the year. Coach Mike DeRossett said, "We worked hard and the season showed just how much we wanted to win."

Junior Nicky Jones and senior Jeff Jones prepare themselves for play defense. N. Jones says, "The enemy must not be allowed to score. That is why the defense is so important."

Junior quarterback Dewayne Davis hands the ball off after calling a play. Davis says, "It was a good experience playing backup quarterback. It gave me a headstart for next season."

Trying to avoid a tackle, junior Kevin Hedgecoth scrambles with the ball. Hedgecoth says, "It's great trying to make that extra yard."

Sophomore Sean Graham attempts a tackle. Graham says, "We had a great season this year, and hopefully we will win even more games next year."

Junior Chris Christopher gets on the trail of the offensive opponent. Christopher says, "I hope they're not getting this on film."

Coach Dennis Webb congratulates his team after their victory over Sparta. Webb says, "The team played hard and deserved the win."

While giving Jason Seiber some specific instructions, Coach Gary Cooper still has time to joke. Cooper asks, "What do you think of the haircut the players gave me?"

Camp Secures a Winning Season

During the summer the football team spent six days at football camp at Cumberland College. This was quite a change since in the past they had gone to camp at Carson-Newman College. Senior Derek Tabor said, "Football camp was long, hot, and rigorous. It required getting up at 5:00 a.m. and having an 11:00 p.m. curfew, even though we were not allowed to leave camp." Altogether there were six teams present. Along with daily exercise sessions, each team practiced three times a day.

"Camp was long and hard, and the food wasn't as good as last year, but we survived."

— Junior Randy Burnett

The Jets scrimmaged the following schools: Powell, South Young, Smyrna, and Maryville. "Camp was hard and rigorous on us, but we learned and accomplished a great deal. We learned valuable skills involving playing, winning, and cooperation," said junior Kevin Hedgecoth. It took strength and determination to be successful at camp. That same determination helped lead the team to a winning season. Senior Jeff Jones said, "We couldn't have made it to the bowl game without camp."

Sophomore Anthony Landrum helps to tackle an opposing player. Landrum says, "You can't afford to miss key tackles."

Seniors Travis Christopner and Israel Cox discuss the Jet strategy. Cox says, "it's good to know the game plan before you play."

Seniors Add Experience

"An important aspect of every football team is its seniors because senior players are the focal point of leadership and unity for the entire team," said senior Derek Tabor. The Jets team included twelve seniors. Some were three year players while others had joined the team only the season before.

"It means a lot to start on a winning team, and to be able to say you were part of the turn around at CCHS."

— Bruce Turner

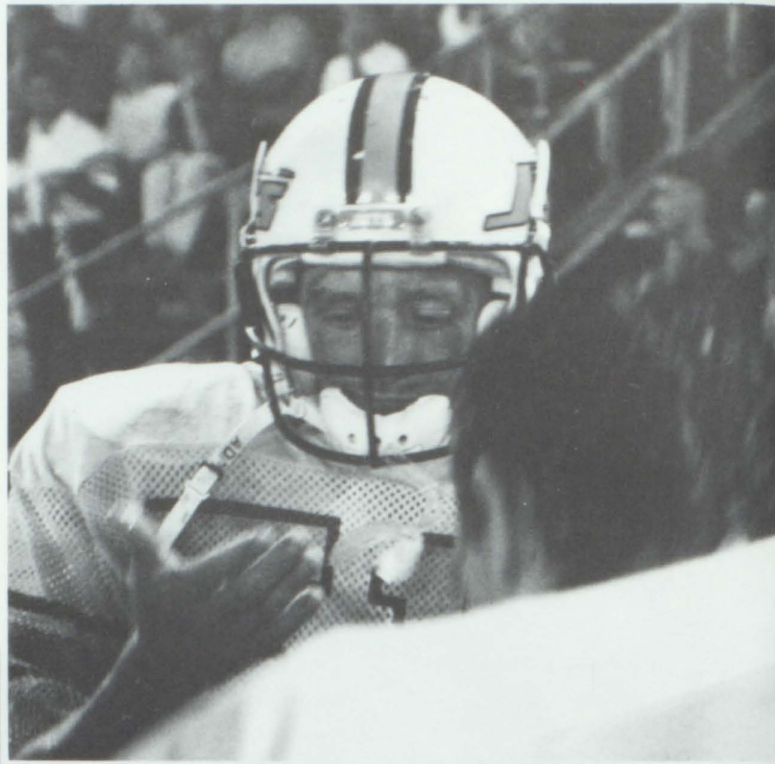

The seniors claimed various positions on the team such as starting quarterback, running back, and tight end. Senior place kicker Randy Lewis said, "The varied experience of the seniors helped everyone in the long run."

After a rough play, senior Aric Seiber examines his bleeding hand. He says, "It was a bloody battle, but for a ferocious person like myself it was easy."

As captains of the homecoming game, seniors Israel Cox and Rusty Mellette go out to meet the referees and opposing captains. "Being captain was great but not as good as New Orleans," says Cox.

Senior J. J. Walker attempts to tackle an opposing ball carrier. He says, "The season had a lot of highlights, but sometimes the tackling seemed like a form of lost art."

A Championship Season

The Lady Jets lost the first game of the season, but it was one of the few losses they had during the year. The Lady Jets not only had a winning season, but also tied for the district championship. Senior Jennifer Yoder said, "It's a great feeling to know that you're a part of a championship team. We had to work and practice hard, but it was more than worth it."

There was also a girls' junior varsity team this season. Besides playing their own games, the nine junior varsity team

"This year has been a lot of fun because I was confident that we could come out on top."

— Senior Jennifer Bass

members practiced against the varsity team, attended camp, and travelled with the varsity team. Head coach Teresa Sherrill said, "The girls have to have a lot of heart to stick it out even though they might not get to play in varsity games. The junior varsity team has a lot to do with making the Lady Jets program go well."

Sophomore Leslie Vanwinckle said, "We had a wonderful season, but I'm confident that next year can be even better."

Junior Kelly Wheeler searches for a way around her opponent. Wheeler says, "Basketball is great. We have so much fun when we're out on the court."

Determined Winners

"Starting the season out with a loss was rather disappointing, but it made us realize that we would have to work and practice harder. That hard work paid off with a winning season and a second place finish in the district," said senior

Charles Scarbrough.

While the Jets won many games, rather decisively, such as a 103-56 victory over Jackson Co., there were a few games which came down to the last seconds. Junior Wade Parsons said, "Close games are exciting for the crowd, but it's very disappointing when you lose by just a couple of points, such as our 76-74 loss to McMinn County."

Head coach Mark Bray said, "The team has a good knowledge of the game. They play very hard, and the game means a lot to them. Some of them are short on size and talent, but they more than make up for it with desire and effort. I am very proud of them for what they have accomplished during this season."

Junior Wade Parsons searches for an open teammate. Parsons says, "When the opposing team puts the pressure on, it's sometimes hard to stay in control."

Making his way past his opponent, senior Daniel Maddux says, "Once you get around the opposing player, you can concentrate on getting the ball to your teammate."

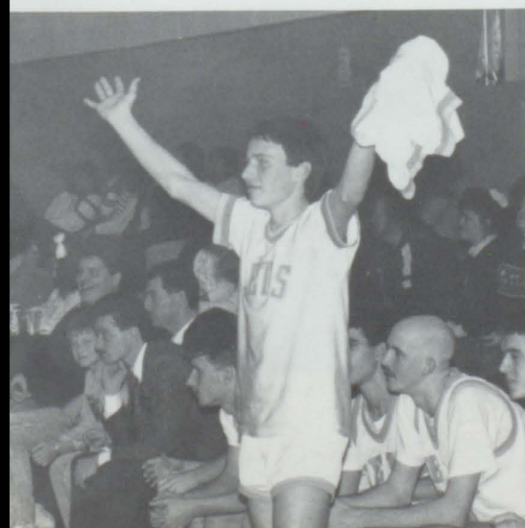

Senior Tony Whittenburg attempts a lay-up. Whittenburg says, "Breaking through the defense can be hard, but it's worth it when you get a good shot."

Shooting a three pointer, senior Russell Wattenbarger says, "Our team doesn't have as large of a lineup as many other teams, so the three point goal helps a lot."

Early Morning Goals

Many students who had not had the opportunity to play team sports got their chance through the intramural basketball league. Under the direction of Student Council, the league began its third season. Eight teams participated on Saturday mornings and three teams played on weekday mornings before school. "Just about the hardest part of the games was getting all your team members up early enough to play," said senior Sean Turner.

The season ended with a championship game between the top team from each league. This game was played during activity period in front of the student body.

Students found different reasons for playing in the leagues. Sophomore Patrick Smith said,

"I enjoyed playing because one could play basketball on a team without the pressures of playing for a varsity team." Senior Brian Melton, said, "The games were usually very competitive. We were of course the best though."

As junior Denny Brandstetter goes for the ball, he keeps a close eye on his opponent. Brandstetter says, "Playing early keeps you on your toes."

Sophomore Sean Graham blocks sophomore Adam Morris. Graham says, "It's fun playing basketball, especially when you get in on the action."

Senior Daniel Walz drives in for a lay-up. Walz says, "It is hard to concentrate early in the morning, but playing is fun."

HARLEM KNIGHTS: Thomas Mathis, David Sojka, Jason Carey, Jimmy Schiltz, Patrick Smith, Jimmy Day, Adam Morris

STUDY HALL BOYS: Vann Smith, Carl Norris, Brad Houston, Phill Richards, Mike Burdick, Kevin Woody

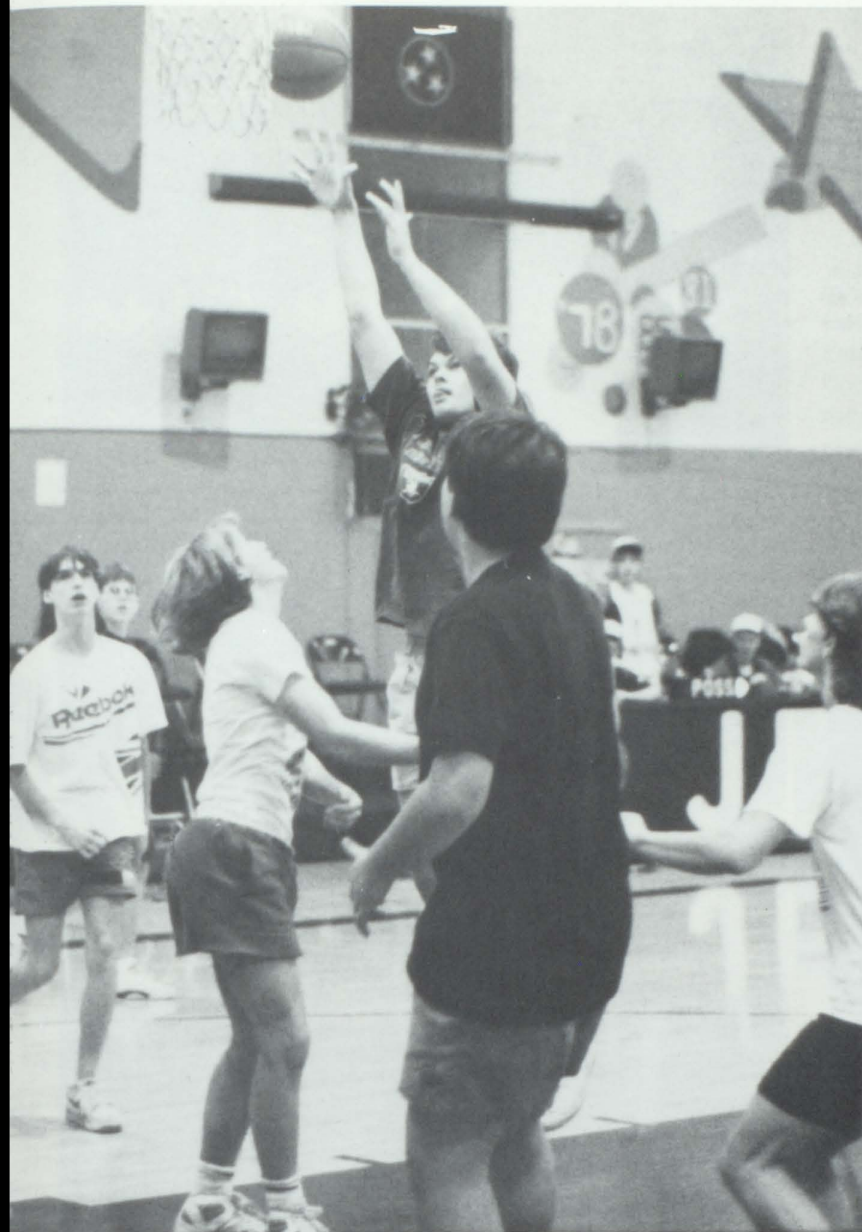

Senior Micol Guigou starts around his opponent. Guigou says, "You've got to be quick to get a good position on your opponent."

Junior Matt Bush takes his shot. Bush says, "The good thing about intramurals is the lack of stress."

Sophomore Mike Kerley tries for two points. Kerley says, "Intramurals has been a great experience. The only bad thing was getting up early."

As cheerleading sponsor, math teacher Kim Whitson looks over assorted paraphernalia for the squad. She says, "The girls were an absolute joy to work with."

The cheerleaders try to get the students fired up for the game. Junior Bethany Sweeney says, "Our dances can be difficult but fun."

Junior Paige Thackston concentrates on the pyramid. Thackston says, "Pyramids are fun. You feel like you can see everything."

Chanting For A Victory

The 1990-91 Jet cheerleading program was very successful. The cheerleaders attended camp at Tennessee Tech in Cookeville, where the sophomore squad won the camp championship in their division and the junior-senior squad placed first runner-up in the varsity division. The two squads competed in all-elite competitions including: chant, cheer, partner stunts, and dance, winning blue superior ribbons in each category. Camp was more than just getting together and having fun.

"Being first runner-up to Karnes High School was disappointing as well as rewarding. All the work we did should have justified a first place."

— Senior Allyson Mayberry

It was a week full of learning and competition. They began training before the 1989-90 school year ended. Winning first runner-up in the home routine competition was their reward. Junior Shona Mullinax said, "The heat was unbearable, but camp made us better athletes." For the girls, cheering meant making a total commitment. Knowing the material took hard work. Junior Monica Dodson said, "I enjoy cheering because it gives me a chance to show my school spirit and go wild!"

Sophomore Kristi Smith focuses to keep from falling out of a lift. Smith says, "Doing stunts is my favorite part of cheerleading."

Unity Sets Up Winning Attitudes

Before the 1990-91 volleyball season opened, the Lady Jet "Spikers" began practice with a new coach. Molly Graham took over the position as head coach from Teresa Sherrill. Graham said, "I believe this year has been a good experience for me and the team. We will miss seniors Meredith Simcox, Amy Wilson, and Kristin Kemmer. I am looking forward to next season."

The season record was a disappointing 2 wins and 9 losses. Sophomore Becky Seiber said,

"The season was difficult at first, but by the end of the year we began to really play as a team."

— Senior Kristin Kemmer

"We may not have had as many wins as we had hoped, but we had a lot of fun playing. I am confident that next year we will do a lot better."

The team members learned that the key to success was teamwork, hustle, and good attitudes. The team's setter, senior Amy Wilson said, "Unity is one of the most important skills you can learn."

The season ended with the district tournament held at White County. The Spikers placed fourth in the district.

Driving Toward Perfection

The golf team finished with a relatively good season. They finished the year with a 13-4 record. The team placed first at the District 10 competition and missed Regionals by only one stroke.

Junior Jeff Uphold, a medalist, was the top player on the team with an average of 39 strokes. He, along with junior Chris Uphold and sophomore Chris Meadows, will be returning next season.

Robin White, a senior member of the team, said,

"The competition throughout the course of the district tournament was tough, but it was a big thrill to be victorious."

— Senior James Parrot

"I really enjoyed being on the golf team this year. It was a definite experience. I only regret that more girls aren't interested in golf." She, along with Emily McDuffee, enabled the school to have a girls district team. The criteria suggests having two or more girls to be eligible. McDuffee said, "Even though there was only two of us, we had a lot of fun."

Coach Richard Fields said, "I wish we could have done better at regionals, although I'm not disappointed in the season."

Senior Kyle Houston attempts a long drive to begin his game. Houston says, "I enjoy playing golf because of the competition."

Strokes of Success

The 1990 tennis season came to an end with a final home match on April 27. Both the Jets and Lady Jets had winning seasons. The Lady Jets lost only one match while the Jets lost only three. The teams also had success during the district tournaments which were held May 2-3. Holly Owens captured the girls' singles title. Jake Turner placed second in the boys' singles competition, while Mark Krabousanos and Micol Guigou were runners-up in the doubles division.

"Tennis is a very competitive individual sport. You can't depend on a team to win your match."

— Senior Micol Guigou

Coming off their winning 1990 season, the 1991 players were ready to begin a new season. Junior Kevin Turner said, "I'm sure that there will be some changes since Sam Holdsambeck is taking over Jill Lay's coaching position, but we are all anticipating a great season."

Senior Allyson Mayberry said, "Tennis has long been a favorite sport of mine. Even though this is my first year on the team, I hope to be able to contribute to a successful season."

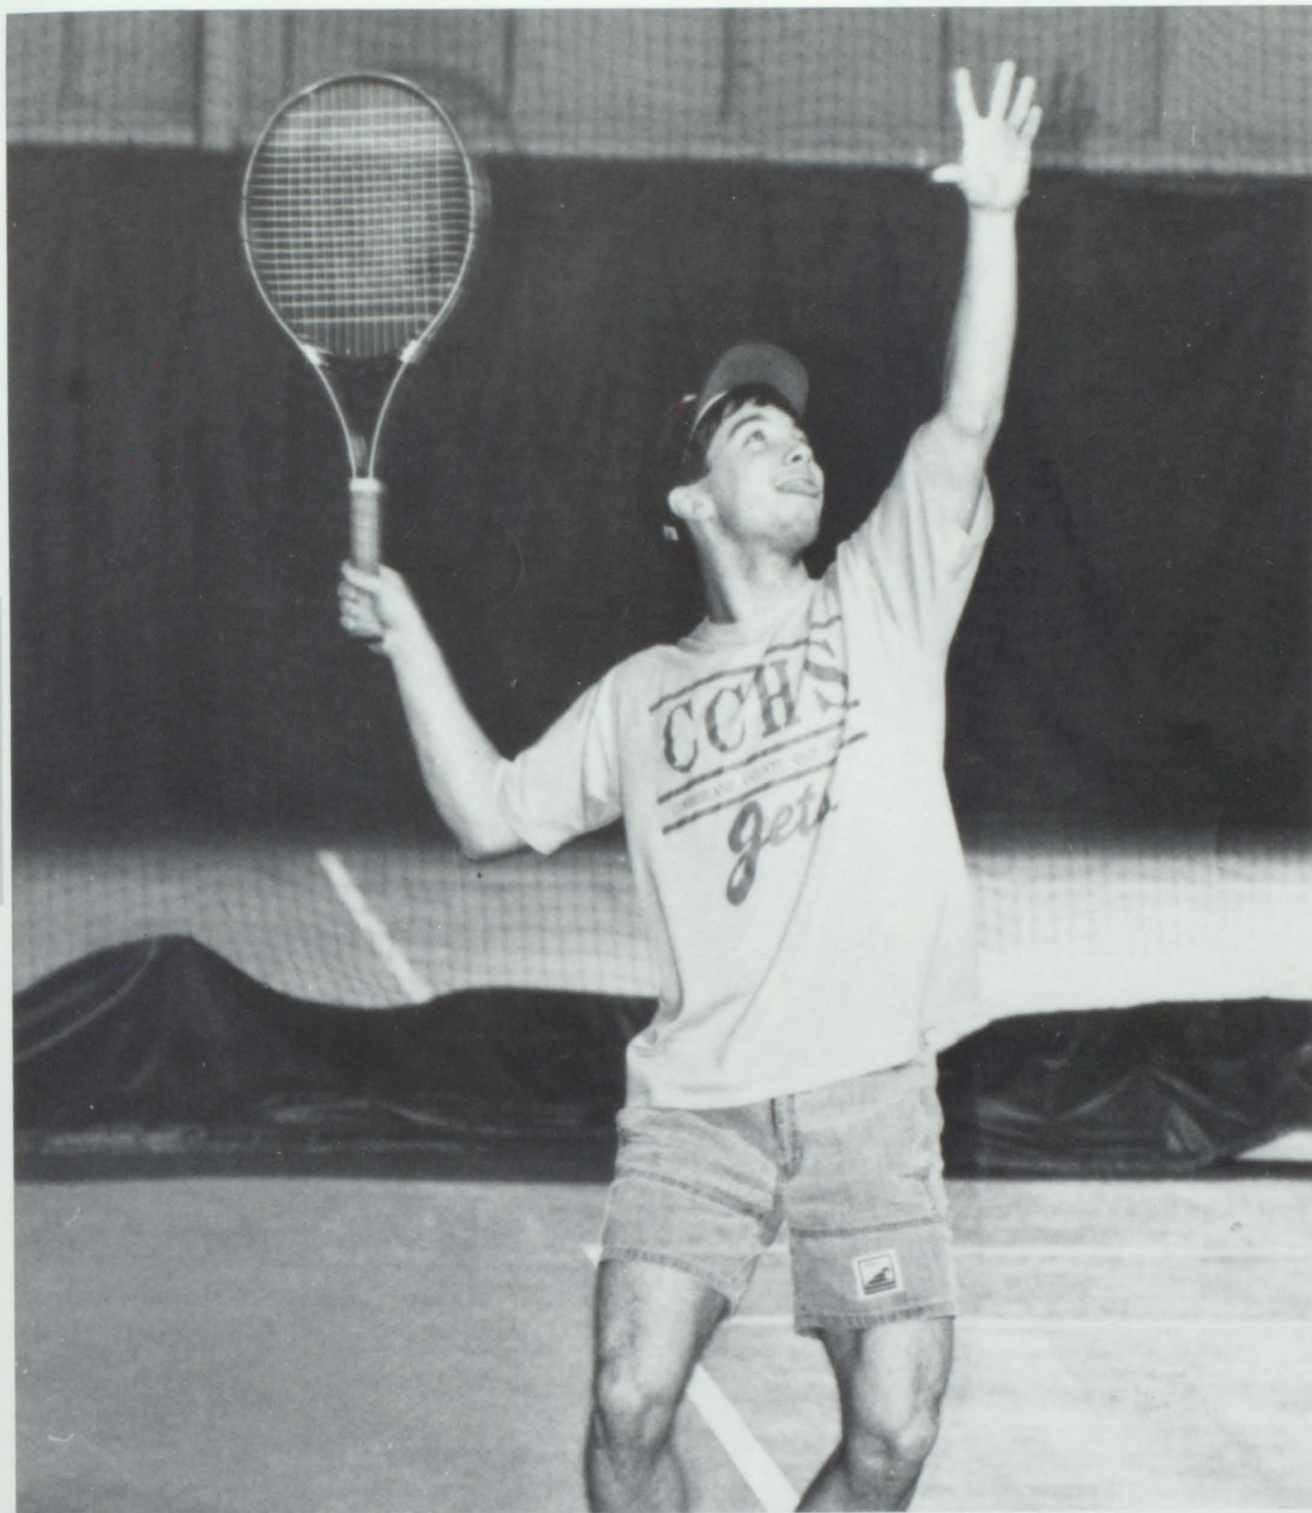

Junior Kevin Turner practices his serving stroke in preparation for an upcoming match.

Crossing The Goal Line

Spring soccer practices began February 21, 1991, which was much earlier than in the past. The season was also extended to May 1. Biology teacher Annell Shaffer said, "This is good because spring break always falls during soccer season." Many of the team members were geared up to play. Senior player Greg Calabrese said, "We are going to go to the regional finals this year and go all the way to the top!"

up for soccer this year. The team had one exchange student, Riccardo Vonstag, to help out. Shaffer said, "There have also been a few transfer students from other states which help."

Some youngsters in the county expressed a desire to learn how to play soccer. Team members helped the children from elementary schools. "We had a great time helping and it looks as if Crossville will have a great team in the future," said sophomore Chad Norris.

Sliding To A Victory

Although the softball team had some disappointing seasons in the past, most team members were optimistic about the 1991 season. "I feel like we are going to have a fantastic season. We have a strong team," said senior softball team member Robin

White.

Senior softball player Susie Speich said, "Softball is the best. Even though we weren't very competitive in the past, we hope that the games we played will help us improve and have a winning season."

"The girls on the team progressed a lot over the course of the season. Hopefully, they will rise to greater levels of achievement."

— Coach Jimmy Inman

Many fund-raisers were held to buy equipment for last year's team. A car wash was but one of these, and materials such as uniforms were acquired. Molly Graham, who coached the 1991 team, said, "I look forward to coaching the team this coming year. It will be a new experience for me."

Senior Amy Wilson said, "With the knowledge and experience we've gained and the new additions to the team, we hope to have a better season than last year."

Third Row: Coach Randy Herring, Keith Morelan, Jimmy Sutton, Pat Graham, Mark Hollingsworth, Brian Adams, Jason Flowers, David Newberry, and Joe Wyatt.

Senior softball player Robin White practices for the upcoming season. White says, "I really love playing softball, and I hope that we will have a good season. I'd like to leave my senior year with a good record."

Senior baseball player Rusty Mellette practices his pitching for the upcoming season.

Players Hope for Great Season

The Jet baseball team started the '91 season with a past record of 5-12, but the players kept an optimistic outlook. "I feel that we will win more games and have a better season," said senior baseball player Rusty Mellette.

Junior baseball player Wade Parsons said, "Baseball is a great spring sport. I think that the team will do really well this season. We have a lot of talented players and a good coach. Also, people are becoming more interested in the team. I think that the school support will really help us to have a good season, and I am looking forward to it."

"Playing baseball for the school has been hard work, but in the end it was all worth it."

— Senior Rob Kimbro

The coach for the Jet baseball team was science teacher Randy Herring. Coach Herring shared his players optimistic outlook for a good season. Herring said, "This season will probably be a big learning experience for all the young players we have and myself as well. I hope it will be a very positive situation for everyone involved."

Class Officers Ahead of the Pack

At the beginning of the year, elections for senior class officers were held. After all the votes were tallied, the results were announced. Jeff Maddox was elected president. Vice-president was Doug Monday, Stacy Gale was elected secretary, and treasurer was Sharmain Vanwinkle.

The senior class sponsor was science teacher Barbara Mayfield. Mayfield said, "It has been great working with the class of 1991. They were a great class. I hated to see them leave."

The officers were in charge of homecoming activities, class night, fund raisers, and graduation. Gale said, "The responsibilities included more than just being in charge of activities. We had to keep the class together and keep the spirit of winning a tradition which has been kept going for two years."

Senior Spirit Ahead of the Pack

The class of '91 did it again. Seniors were victorious for the second year in a row, placing first in football homecoming activities.

Senior Micol Guigou said, "This is the most spirited senior class ever. We are really proud of the Jets. It really wasn't a big surprise that we won."

Senior Chelsea Bilbrey said, "Homecoming activities were so much fun! It was so exciting to win not only football, but basketball homecoming as well."

The one thing that seemed to boost spirit not only for the seniors, but for the entire school, was the pep rally. Senior Beth Raper said, "I'm glad that we were able to win the homecoming competitions at the pep rally as seniors. It means a lot to win, and the spirit our class had made my senior year even more exciting."

After camouflaging themselves for the Christmas parade, senior Heather Forsyth and sophomore Daniel Brown throw candy to spectators.

Seniors Michael Hennessee and Jason Burton discuss their next class. "I like to take time to catch up with my friends," says Burton.

Senior Joel Hepburn concentrates on his next square dancing step. He says, "Square dancing with Ms. Landreth was a blast. She can really swing!"

Seniors Daren Wyatt and Andy Robinson take a friend along on the homecoming parade route. Robinson says, "Good friends make for good times!"

Each class had students that stood out and were looked up to by their peers because of qualities such as their leadership ability. Some of these students were chosen by their classmates to become class officers and take on many important tasks, including the junior/senior prom.

Being a class officer was said by many to be a great responsibility and also very rewarding. Junior class president Wayne Matthews said, "It was a lot of fun, but it did carry a lot of responsibility. We were proud of our work, and I feel like we did a good job throughout the year."

Lori Neal, junior class secretary, agreed with Matthews. "Despite all of the hard work and time we all put in, it was lots of fun," said Neal.

Possibly the biggest responsibility that was put on the shoulders of the junior class officers was being in charge of the junior/senior prom. Vice-president Vetta Farr said, "Working on the prom required a lot of hard work and dedication, but in the end it was all worth it. It took a lot of our spare time, too, but we had fun."

ACT Challenges Juniors

Each year, the American College Testing Board offers a test to high school students preparing for college. The test is geared mainly towards juniors, and was usually part of college requirements.

Students had many different views concerning the ACT. Junior Matt Bush said, "I don't think the ACT is all that important because it doesn't really pertain to real life unless you're getting ready to go to college."

The ACT was offered on four different dates throughout the year, giving students four chances to take the test.

Junior class sponsor Candy Woods stated, "It's good that students take the test while they are in school because they're better equipped to take it and are more likely to make a better score."

Many juniors waited until their senior year to face the challenge of the ACT. "I'm not sure whether I want to take the test this year. The test is only really important if you are going to college. Also, I think if I wait, I'll have had an extra year of preparation," said junior Kevin Ramsey.

Juniors Holly Oakes and Jeri Adams prepare for the ACT. Oakes says, "I was drained after the test was over."

Bejeweled Juniors

Getting a class ring was often considered one of the most important purchases a student could have made during the junior year. Some even felt that class rings symbolized the meaning of being a high school student.

Junior Loretta Sherrill said, "I thought it was really great to finally get my class ring. There is a sentimental value attached to them."

Class rings were available in a choice of sizes with a wide variety of stones and emblems that can be included on the sides. "I chose emblems for my class ring to fit the activities I participated in," said junior Tracy Birmingham.

Having the opportunity to order your class ring as a junior made that year special. In the past, students did not order their class rings until the middle of the year and received them just before school was out. This caused some students to order their rings as sophomores, but many felt that it was best to wait. "I wanted to get it last year, but I'm really glad I waited, so I could get it when the rest of the juniors got theirs," said Sherrill.

One More Year and Counting

While most seniors were working with transcripts, making plans for graduation, making last minute career decisions, studying for entrance exams, and finalizing college plans, juniors were faced with another year in high school.

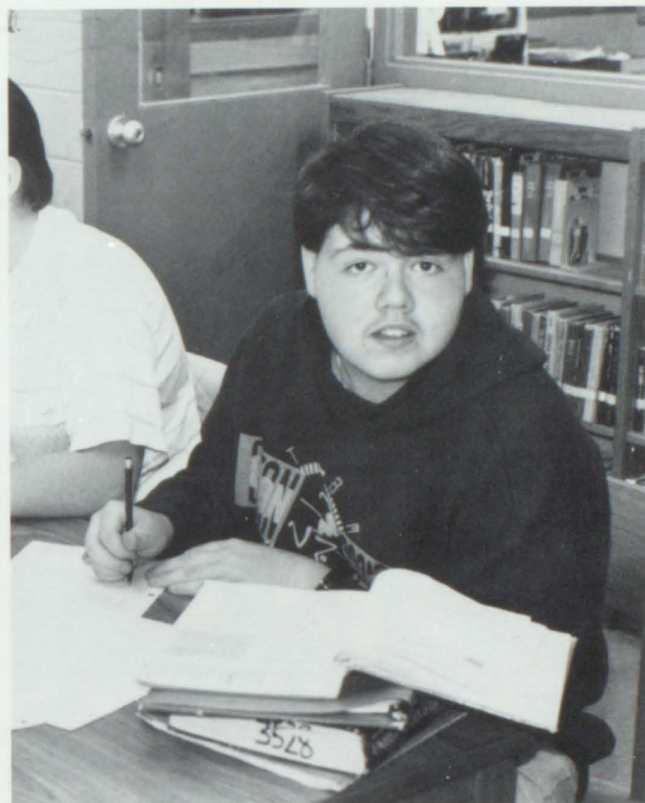

Junior Tammy Mahan said, "My junior year was a lot of fun, but I am really excited about my senior year. I know that it will be a blast! I'm really looking forward to it."

Junior Jamie Goodwin agreed with Mahan. "I am happy to have just one year left before graduation. I am excited about college and my future. It seems like a long wait, but it's exciting."

Juniors were exposed to many ideas from different colleges, careers, and even the armed forces. Although many students changed their minds frequently, they at least had some idea about what it meant to be a junior.

Junior Nathan Cox said, "Being a junior is like being the peanut butter on a peanut butter and jelly sandwich. Seniors and sophomores surround you, and you are left in the middle to just squish around."

Junior Kevin Ramsey studies in the library. Ramsey says, "I'm looking forward to my senior year!"

Juniors Donald Umphrey and James Keck take part in a human train during class competitions. Umphrey says, "I support my class."

The Winning Spirit

Class competitions have always created a big rivalry among the classes. A number of activities were participated in by all three classes. While it was a new experience for sophomores, seniors had two years of practice under their belts. The juniors however, came up with an unexpected victory over the other two classes during the football homecoming festivities. Junior Barry Morgan said, "I thought it was killer to beat the seniors and the sophomores."

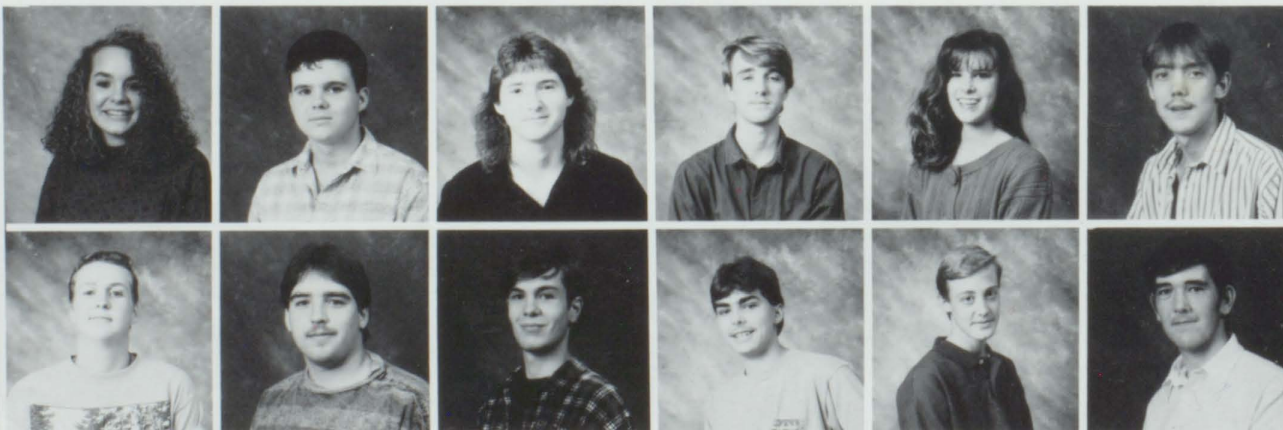

The students took part in such activities as the toilet paper roll and the lifesaver relay. Junior Rodger Hargis said, "I like to watch the juniors get into it and start jumping all over the place. Their reactions were the best part of class competition."

The other classes took their loss in stride. Sophomore Mark Hollingsworth said, "I feel that next time, we will be better prepared to destroy the other classes."

Junior class sponsor Randy Herring said, "Competition makes for good relationships among the students, and that's what it's all about."

Officers Take Pride in Work

The sophomore class elected officers at the beginning of the school year. Lisa Oakes was elected as president and Heather Kinstler was chosen as vice-president. The secretary was Jennifer Carr and the treasurer was Jimmy Schiltz.

The main responsibility of the officers was to organize class projects. With the help of their sponsor, Jim Dunigan, they arranged to decorate their homecoming float. Sophomore Keli Stewart said, "I feel as though our class officers are doing a very good job. I really enjoyed helping with the float.

The activity was well planned and thus everyone enjoyed it." The class officers were also responsible for the sophomore powder puff team. Kinstler said, "Being in charge of the team took some hard work, but at least I was also able to play."

Oakes said, "Being a class officer was an enlightening experience for me. I gained great satisfaction in knowing that I helped my class." Carr said, "Being a class officer makes you feel good about yourself because you are contributing to the school."

Enticing Entertainment

Entertainment took on many different forms as students found interesting ways to amuse themselves.

Some students enjoyed listening to music while others enjoyed playing music for entertainment. Sophomore Bill Dawkins said, "Music is great to listen to, but one never fully appreciates it until he learns to play it."

Other forms of entertainment were renting movies or going to the movie theatre. Sophomore Jennifer Oglesby said, "I enjoy going to the movies not only because I love a good film, but also because it gives me a chance to be with my friends."

Being with other people proved to be entertaining to some. "The best way I like to spend my time is by making those around me miserable," said sophomore Tammie Hood. Sophomore Jill Kemmer said, "It is not always what you are doing that can be entertaining. It is often who you are with that brings out the fun of an activity."

Sports were also a good form of amusement. "A little competition is great for a person as long as you win," said sophomore Joe Goss.

Sophomores Eli Hill and Sean Graham cut up at open house. Hill says, "My entertainment comes from watching Sean."

Shifting Through The Menu

Although a high percentage of high school students did not speak highly of cafeteria food, as sophomore Samantha Dav-enport said, "It's better than nothing." Over the years the food system has changed greatly. Students can now choose from the regular lunch menu, the salad bar, or the na-cho bar. The goal was for stu-dents to have a nutritious meal and a variety of foods to choose from.

A new product offered to students this year was Prime Time Pizzas. Many students found this to be a refreshing change. Sophomore Jeremy Kerley said, "I was skeptical when the pizzas were first brought out, but soon I gath-ered enough courage to try one. I was pleasantly surprised to discover how tasty they are. Now I have at least one a day."

While the majority of stu-dents ate cafeteria food, many students chose their lunch from the snack machine, the ice cream bar, or brought their lunch from home. Senior Robin White said, "I would much rather bring my lunch to school than to buy it here. It just tastes better when it comes from home."

Shifting Sophomores

To drive or not to drive? This was a question posed to many sophomores as they turned sixteen and became legal drivers. "Getting my license changed my life. I no longer had to depend on my parents for transportation," said sophomore Teresa Lawson.

Many sophomores found though, that once they got their license, they still might not be able to drive to school. Because of a lack of parking space, sophomores were only issued parking permits if they were involved in an early bird class or after-school activity. Sophomore Monica Graham said, "The school year was almost over when I got my license so it was not such a catastrophe that I could not drive to school."

Many sophomores found added responsibilities were also a part of getting their license. Sophomore Michelle Abel said, "Once I got my license, all I heard from my mom was go here, go there. It is a small price to pay though to be able to drive."

Sophomore Ben Stapleton said, "After waiting sixteen years to get my license, the road is now MINE!"

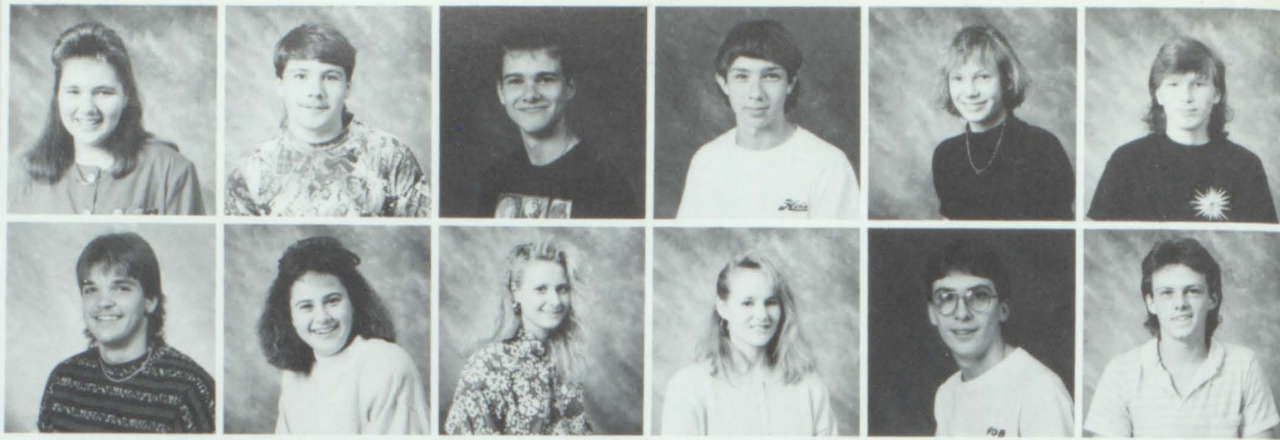

Sophomores Daniel Brown, Mike Norman and Marvin Dixon cheer on their class. Brown says, "Being a sophomore wasn't too bad."

Hair In The Nineties

Many students liked the long and straight hairstyles. Sophomore Missy Bristow says, "Everyone has their own style."

In the 80's, the hairstyles were teased and sprayed. The 90's brought in a few new changes. Many students gave up various hair products that were once thought essential to get a more down to earth look. Junior Missy Hayes said, "The look for hair was of a more subtle nature. It did not matter whether your hair was long or short as long as it was soft and natural."

While many students chose the more simple styles, the daring and bold look was also popular. Junior Cathy Parsons said, "Why be boring? Unique hair makes a unique person."

Several students felt that the best way to go was a short hairstyle. Senior Heather Triplett said, "For me, short hair is definitely the best style. It is a lot easier to care for, and that comes in real handy in the morning when you are running late."

"Most hair has a mind of its own. If mine feels like looking good, I do not have to worry about anything. If it decides to be unmanagable though, I have to spend time coaxing it to look good," said sophomore Misty Beasley.

Junior Kevin Turner listens for instructions in Mrs. Dunigan's class. Turner says, "I work hard at school because I know that it will pay off in the future."

Sophomores Brandy Luckey, Danette Hyde, and Kristy Holmes watch a pep rally and support the team. Hyde says, "Pep rallies are a lot of fun. It gives me a chance to yell and use up a lot of energy!"

Teachers Take Time Out

Students were not the only ones who lived to hear the 2:30 bell ring. Teachers also enjoyed the sensation of hearing that bell and seeing their students file out at the end of the day. Why was this? Because teachers had extracurricular activities just as students did.

Many teachers enjoyed sports for recreation. Besides the common sports such as basketball or football, teachers enjoyed sports such as golf, horseback riding, raquetball, and even hiking. Math teacher

Gary Cooper used his mornings for jogging. "It was a great way to start the day," Cooper said.

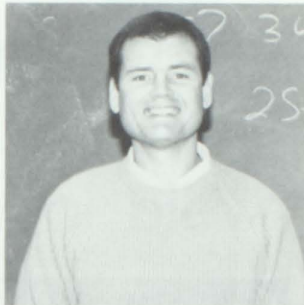

Other teachers found recreation in having a hobby or spending time with their family. There were even teachers who enjoyed learning when they had free time. English and French teacher Jane Parris, who took piano lessons in her after school hours, said, "I never knew George Gerswhin's hands were so big."

Principal Gary Nixon discusses new school policies with building trades teacher Roscoe Freeman. "If students cannot function under the high school policies, they cannot function in real life," says Freeman.

Filling in her calendar, librarian Donna Goss writes down things to remember. "I haven't had any dates in a long time, so I haven't had any to write down," she says.

English teacher Judy Quillen takes a break from a hectic day of registration. "The heat in the gym during August made postponing registration until November really tempting," she says.

WE DELIVER THE NEWS

Since 1886, the Crossville Chronicle has delivered the news that affects Cumberland County people as they go about their job of making a living on the Plateau.

We're proud of our rich heritage that makes us one of the oldest newspapers in the state of Tennessee and equally proud of our record when it comes to covering the news. When the wind storm and baseball size hail ripped its path through Cumberland County on August 29, 1990, the Crossville Chronicle staff was on the spot, cameras clicking and minds turning. The result was STORM '90, a comprehensive report of the biggest storm that Mother Nature ever hurled at our home county.

WE COVER THE NEWS...the good, the bad and the ugly!

Thanks, CCHS
for trusting your memories to us...

Time, like the 1990-91 school year, passes all too quickly and all we have left are the memories. And photographs. The magic of time captured in pictures. Like the school portraits and candid you find throughout this yearbook.

So, we take this space to say thanks. Thanks for the outstanding response you gave Bilbrey Photography in our first, of hopefully many years, of entrusting your memories to Crossville's own professional studio.

Though the years pass, your memories are preserved in brilliant color, and though your memories may fade in time, your photographs never will. Thanks to quality Kodak films and papers.

GOOD LUCK!

While raising funds at the open house for the teacher alumni, junior Kevin Turner sells pecans. He says, "Are you sure these are pecans?"

While waiting for their rides to pick them up from school, junior Starla Stewart and sophomore Jennifer Oglesby discuss the events of the day.

During the judging of the legs contest, sophomore Dion Ault struts his stuff. After wowing the crowd, Ault was named the winner.

Senior Scott Hawn graduates with twelve years of perfect attendance. He says, "It was hard work, but it was worth it in the end."

In preparation for her English class, junior Floranne Clayton answers discussion questions from The Scarlett Letter.

During the football team's trip to New Orleans for the Sugar Bowl, coaches Hollis Bolin and Dennis Webb discuss Tennessee's chances against Virginia. Bolin says, "It was a great trip because everyone had a good time and Tennessee won."

Juniors Scott Evans and Mitch Lowe, senior Kim Elmore, juniors Ron Nichols and Sheila Norris and seniors Robin Moore, John Griffith, and Krystal England take in the sights of Kansas City, Missouri, during the National FFA Convention. "It was a good trip but a long ride," says England.

Completing A Masterpiece

Dear Reader,

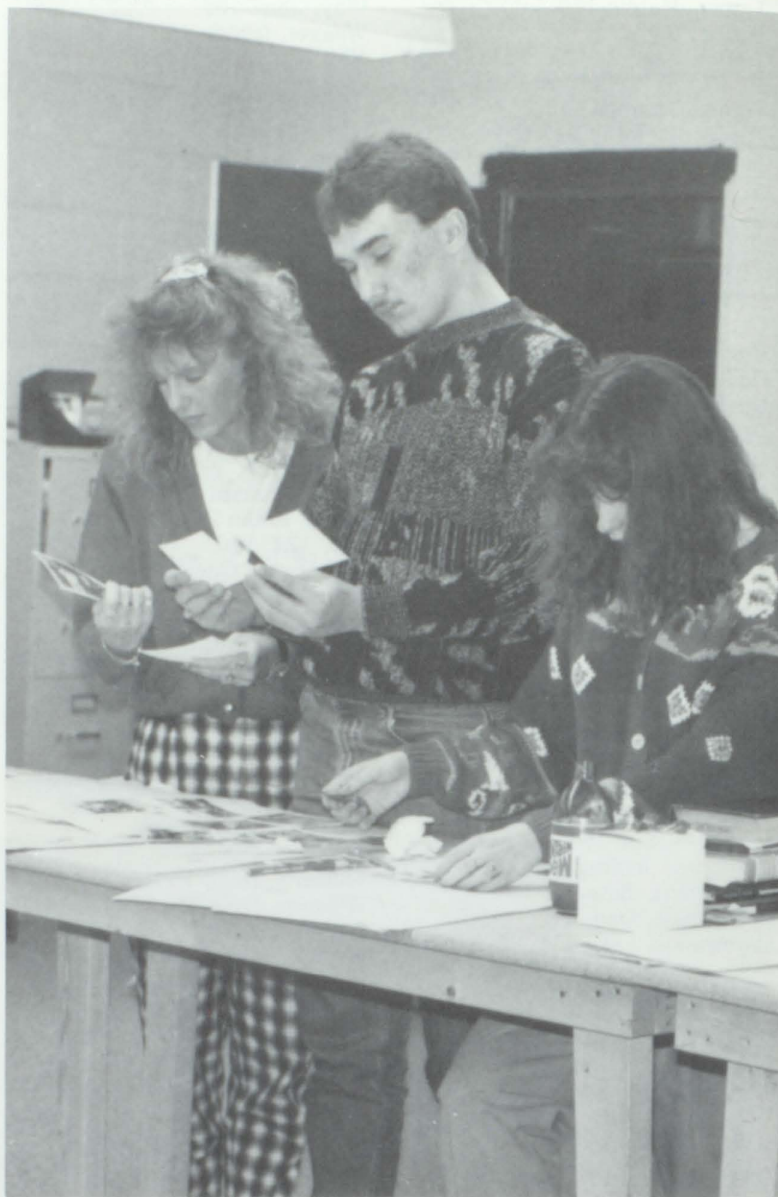

Here you are almost at the end of your yearbook. We here in the publications room hope that the finished product meets with your approval. Putting this book together was hard work. We can now say though that the many afternoons, Saturdays, school holidays, and snow days we spent chained to the computers, er, working were worth it. We feel our book is ON THE RIGHT TRACK.

We want to thank all of our staff members for their hard work, but which one of you told John Opfer the theme??? A special thank you goes to Teresa Lawson who was not on the staff but came in to help us out anyway. Another special thank you goes to Rinzi (aka Robin Choate) who receives our Most Dedicated Staff Member Award. Next year you won't have YOU KNOW WHO to worry about. And of course, we cannot leave out our wonderful advisor, Diane Hemmati-Arass. Thanks for all the food, help, and time you spent going stir crazy. You are a great lady.

Now, go let all your friends write all over the pages we spent seven months putting together. Enjoy!

Sincerely, your co-editors,

Amy M. Padgett + Misty H. Graham

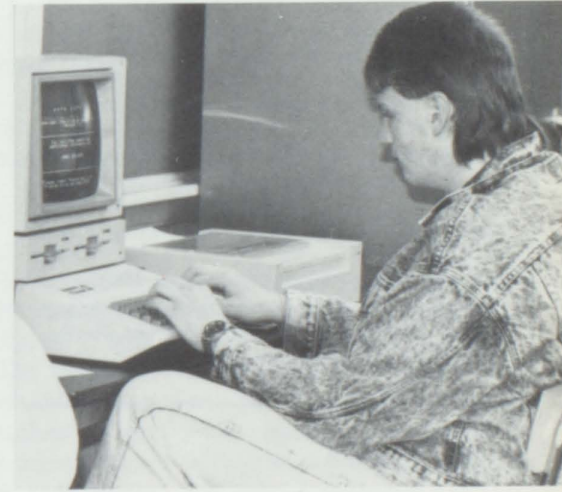

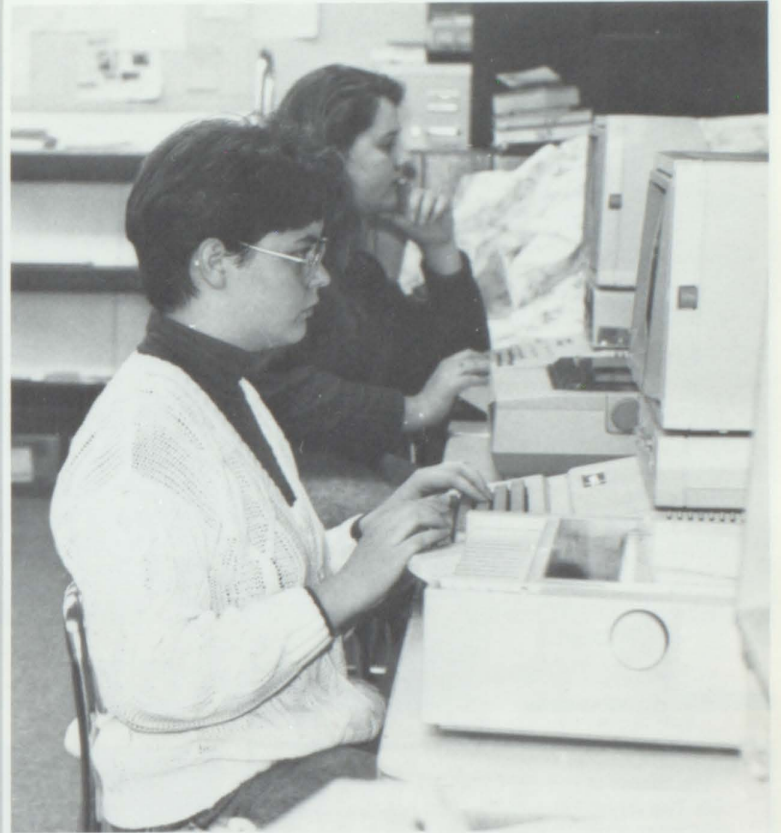

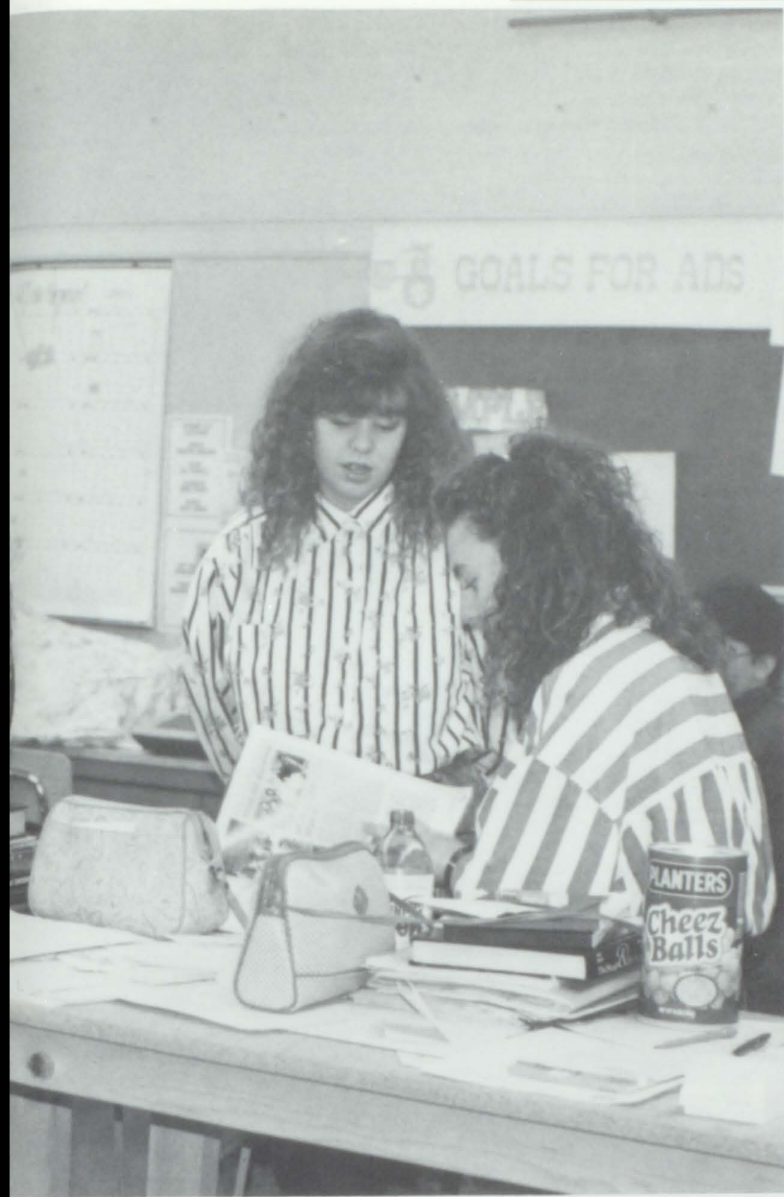

Seniors Cassandra Murray and Dena Houston discuss picture ideas. Houston says, "It was one of the few days I did not have to get quotes."

Seniors Meredith Simcox and Regina McClaran study past yearbooks for story ideas. "Often, we could find help in other books," said Simcox.

As seniors Shannon Isaacson, Jeff Jones, and Amy Padgett look over the basketball spreads, senior newspaper editor Lonny Higdon discusses the next edition with senior Misty Graham.

Working furiously on completing the club section, sophomores Robin Choate and Jill Sherrill finish pages on the computers. Choate says, "Yes, Mrs. Hemmati, I am typing with two fingers and my thumb."

1991 PUBLICATIONS STAFF — Meredith Simcox, Jenifer Breeding, Shawna Simmons, Lisa Houston, Regina McClaran, Traci Stevens, Cassandra Murray, Dena Houston, Lisa Lewis, Anita Burnett, Lonny Higdon, Jeff Jones, Amy Padgett, Misty Graham, Robin Choate, Jenny Axford, Melanie Bridges, Jill Sherrill, Scott Campbell, Shannon Isaacson, Marie Page, Eric Ritzman, Lisa Poore, Robert Clarke, and advisor Diane Hemmati-Arass.

Senior Eric Ritzman boots up the computer in order to type in copy. He says, "The most frenzied times were around our deadlines."

Elaine Meadows pins a ribbon in honor of her son during a salute to the Cumberland County soldiers before the basketball homecoming game.

Seniors Andy Myhr, Jimmy Sutton, Mark Krabousanos, Daren Wyatt, Doug Monday, Jeff Maddox, Jason Kemmer, and Stuart Millard cheer at a pep rally.

Geraldine Nixon's students displayed these ribbons with the names of Cumberland County soldiers in the Persian Gulf in the front lobby.

The theme of the 1991 Plateau, volume 28, is "On The Right Track". The 790 books ordered were printed by Jostens Printing and Publishing Co. in Clarksville, Tennessee. Each book consists of 224 pages. The custom design cover is laminated, using white with applications of medium blue, yellow, and black. The paper is Glossy 191. The endsheets are black halftone with 30% medium blue overprint.

The type is Style 21 Korinna. Captions are set in 9 pt., body copy in 10 pt., and main headlines in 42 pt. In the clubs section 72 pt. giant type was used along with a dropped initial.

Special thanks to the CCHS faculty, advertisers, contributing photographer Bilbrey Photography, Jostens representative Harold McGeehee, and plant consultant Gail Brown.

Members of the faculty once again go through the line at graduation ceremonies. Continuing tradition, each person wore her or his own college graduation stole and a black cap and gown.

Finishing The Final Lap

As the 1990-91 school year came to a close, many looked back and reflected on the changes the year brought about. There were memorable as well as disappointing moments for everyone.

On the minds of many was the war in the Persian Gulf. We anticipated the beginning of the war in January and waited to see what developments would occur. After war broke out, we watched as relatives and friends were called up for duty and sent overseas.

Continuing their success, the girls' basketball team tied for first place in the district. Facing a change, the volleyball and softball teams played under new head coach Molly Graham.

Some school related changes included the addition of new teachers in the math and English departments. In order to honor deserving students, the Beta club introduced the CCHStars program. Also new on the academic front was the Academic Booster Club whose purpose was to make the community more aware and more involved in what took place in the school system.

As we looked back on the ups and downs of the year, many chose to use the events as experience in learning to stay ON THE RIGHT TRACK.

Overwhelmed by the joy that graduation and the end of the year bring, members of the senior class collapse from the excitement.
